MOVIEGRAMS OF THE WEEK

The New Karlton to Show "Son of Wallingford"—Wallie Reid New houses and this week which come to the Night Watch."

New Film of the Starter Description of Wallingford"—Wallie Reid New houses and this week which come to the Night Watch." in New Film at the Stanley-Dr. Caligari Here Two Days

THERE are some promising pictures at the big downtown houses next week which may not be hotly revolutionary, but which are pretty sure to be enjoyed by the movie fans. Of these "The Son of Wallingford," at the pictures at all. That is new Karlton is perhaps the most interesting. This picture had the supervision of George Randolph Chester, the author.

during its filming, and is what you might call a sequel to the original adventures the famous fat swindler and his friend, Blackie Daw. It tells about Wallingford's son, and how this son of a crooked father, but straight and honest mother, managed to keep on the straight and narrow path. Later, Philadelphia will have the chance of sceing the original Wallingford stories (which were made into a stage play which appeared here) done by a different company with a different pair in the roles of Wallingford and Daw. Wilfrid North, who used to direct Lillian Walker way back in the days of single reclers, is playing Wallingford in the picture at the Karlton. The Stanley has popular Wallace Reid in "The Hell Diggers." That frozen northlands. "Habit" has Milsounds very primitive and "westerny," Wally Reid but he has Lois Wilson in his support, and the two Talked About .. of them ought to
