TEN-SECOND SPURT GIVES PITT VICTORY OVER SYRACUSE TEAM

Thirty-Yard Run From Kickoff Is Turning Point and Causes Biggest Upset of Week-End-Chicago Hands Princeton Second Consecutive Defeat

By ROBERT W. MANWELL

Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger TT TOOK just ten seconds to decide one of the biggest football games played I in the East last Saturday. In that remarkably short space of time the University of Pittsburgh gained the upper hand on Syracuse and held it during the remaining fifty-nine minutes and fifty seconds of play. It is seldom that the break in the game comes so early, but such was the case in the unexpected reverse which sent Syrneuse back home with the wrong end

There were other surprises in the big games, such as the defeat of Princes on by Chicago, the unusually high the score in the Penn State-Harvard battle and the great showing of the Army against Yale, but the Pitt-Syracuse affair stands out above all others. This is because the Panthers were not

Up to Saturday, Pitt had played three mediocre games in a row, losing to Lafayette and just managing to defeat West Virginia and the University of Cincinnati. Syracuse, on the other hand, walked all over Brown, Maryland and a couple of other teams, proving to everybody concerned that the 1921 eleven was one of the best they have had up there in years and vastly superior to Pittsburgh. Such was the real dope on the battle before the opening ten seconds. The game was lost when the coin was flipped just before the opening whistle, but Syrneuse didn't knew it. Captain Gulick guessed wrong and Davies chose to receive the kickoff. That settled it.

Syracuse kicked off and the ball was caught by Holleran. The Orange athletes charged down the field, but the nimble quarterback started down the sideline, not more than one yard inside, and, after dodging two tacklers, appeared to be on his way for a touchdown. He was downed, however, after gnining 30 yards and energing the ball to midfield.

That run was the turning point. Syracuse was swept off its feet, the team went up in the air and never descended. That opening play threw them off their stride, took away all of their confidence and put them on the defensive. And their mental condition did not improve in the next four plays.

LINING up quickly. Holleran called the signal and Davies skirted left end for 13 yards. Anderson made another first dozen on an end play, but a line plunge failed. Then came the first touchdown on one of Warner's original plays.

Short Forward Pass Is Successful

THE ball was passed to Anderson, who ran to the left. Davies ran in the same direction, but was about four yards in front. The Syracuse line charged in and went after Anderson, paying no attention to the Pitt captain. This apparently was what was expected, for Anderson flipped the ball to Davies before being tackled and the star halfback ran over the line for the first touchdown. It took one minute and twenty-seven seconds to make

The play which was worked so successfully by Anderson and Davies was a short forward pass behind the line of scrimmage. Warner used it in a couple of games about five years ago and then dropped it. He brought it buck on Saturday and did not miss once in six attempts. Therefore it must be a

After that score Syracuse played desperately, but never could get going. Pitt had the ball most of the time, gained almost at will and gained 437 yards from serimmage against 4 yards for Syracuse. The Panthers made twenty first downs and the Orange made one. That was about the difference between the playing of the teams.

If Syracuse had a great attack it still is a secret. They never had a chance to use it. Plays were smothered before they got under way, and at the end only forward passes were attempted. It looked as if Mechan's men were suffering from singe fright at the start and never got over it. The oung couch had worked hard and had the team in shape, but his treatment didn't seem to take Still, it must be remembered that they faced a team playing superfootball. Pitt looked better than at any time since 1916, and played an unbeatable game. The attack was smooth and effective and the defense powerful and deadly. The few times Syracuse tried a running attack four and five Pitt men were there to block it. The linemen sifted through and the ends had no difficulty in crashing into the interference, sometimes not only taking out the interferers, but also tackling the man with the ball. It was taking out the interferers, but also the best defense ever shown by a Pitt team.

DITT stepped into the foremost rank of Eastern football teams after I the showing against the Grange, and from now on must be considered seriously. The eleven was a past improvement over the one which lost to Lafavette, and this was due to the shifting of one man,

Stein Plays Great Game at Center

AT THE start of the season Warner decided to use Stein at end instead of center, where he made a record and was chosen for the All-American last year. The result was not what was expected. Stein played well on the wing, but his successor could not handle the pivotal job. Many fumbles occurred, the offense was ragged and poor football was played. This, how-ever, was conspicuous by its absence when Stein went back to his old position. Stein, by the way, played a wonderful game. He easily is the best center in the country, and that is taking in a lot of territory. He steaded the team on the offense and did most of the work on the defense. He tackled on either end, broke through and smeared plays behind the line and made himself generally harmful to Syracuse during the afternoon.

Davies also had a great day. The speed merchant ran rings around the foe, gained a lot of ground and gave an exhibition of plain and fancy dodging in broken and unbroken fields. Holleran was a wonderful field general, and the rest of the team played up to the standard set by the stars. Outside of that, nothing need be said.

Pitt was aided in a way by the defensive work of the Syracuse tackles. They charged in too soon and played too close to the guards. They took themselves out of the play after every charge, for Holleran was sending his plays

PITTSBURGH will meet the University of Pennsylvania next Saturday, and probably will put over another victory.

Big Teams Are Cracking Early

THE big teams-meaning Yale, Harvard and Princeton-are cracking earlier this year. Princeton has been defeated twice. Harvard has had three parrow escapes and Yale barely was able to pull a victory over the Army in the last minutes of play Penn State made a great showing against Harvard, and had the game lasted a few more minutes the chances are that Bezdek's men would have shoved over the winning score. State tack the ball down the field and had it on Harvard's 10-yard line when time was called and the game ended 21 to 21 This game, in a way, typifies modern football. Two or three fouchdowns mean nothing newadays and the lead is likely to be washed out at any minute.

There are too many chances to grah forward passes or pick up fumbles. Vale intercepted a forward pass in the last period of the game with the Army and a 75-yard run resulted in the winning touchdown. Up to that time there was little to choose between the teams.

Princeton Misses Lourie

Tr LOOKS as if Princeton consisted of Lourse and Garmty this year. With those stars in the line-up the Tigers play great football, but when they are on the sidelines the team gets licked.

Chleago outplayed Princeton on Saturday, and had the Maroons taken a chance and given up the conservative, safe style they adopted at the start the score probably would have been larger.

Penn got revenge in the Virginia Military Institute game, winning by a large score. The other games in the East were played according to form. where the best team won.

No Fluke in Princeton's Defeat. Says Strubing, Who Lauds Witmer and Gilroy

LINE PLUNGING DECIDES

By JACK STRUBING

Once again Princeton was blanked. Outplayed from start to finish, the Orange and Black found themselves on the short end of nine to nix when the final whistle blow. And there was no fluke. The Maroon team gained more than 200 yards to a few more than 70 by Princeton, And they gained by straight, intelligent football. Thad it not been for Witmer and Gilroy it would have taken an adding machine to count These two men ought to be given the university as a present for raving it from diegrace. Every play reached them and every play stopped at that point. Verily, verily, two such defensive men have not been seen in many years. They are wonders.

Chicago, contrary to expectation, did-not play a wide-open game. On the other hand, it hammered at the line continuously and consistently gained on casionally, but the greater part of the play was inside tackle or over tackle. End runs were mixed in And they showed no discrimination as to which tackle was picked. Keek was gained over as well as Hooper. In fact, the immortal Stan was outplayed. Chiengo used every play from a shift and enught the Princeton line off balance time after time. The play would star while the defense was moving to meet he shift, and the Tiger forwards were simply form to pieces.

Princeton came back with the same kind of a game. Whether Roper is trying to keep his open game under cover or not is hard to say. But against the Navy and again last Saturday, Princeton tried to play powerful football against teams which possessed more strength. In the last five minutes Machine Phee was sent in to try the usual wild passing game which the team behind isnally pulls, but up until then one sould not have known Princeton had any passes except the short time that Garrity was in the fray. For a team that has been the leader in modern football it is really disheartening to see his reversion to "golden nineties" The sub quarters are certainly in mental ability. They ran plays which were so obviously rule-of-on the same type as the Navy's, start-ing like an end run and suddenly driving over tackle. The ends were smeared and the tackles boxed or smothered by the driving interference. The Chicagoans ran their plays from a shift very much like the old Minnesota shift, and how that team was drilled! Alanzo Stagg certainly knows his busi-ness. Every play went smoothly and the team moved as by clockwork. It was a beautiful machine. They worked an open formation very little, usually to kick and several times to pass. Occasionally they would try an end run from this formation, but the majority of end runs started from close formation.

Excel in Passing

Chicago's passes from center were better than Princeton's. The ball went back like a shot, and accurate, Wil back like a shot, and accurate. Wil-nier's passes, although much more ac-curate than last week, are still a lit-tle slow, especially in reaching the kicker or passer. Van Gerbig was always harried in his kicks, and so was MacPhee in his passes. Of course the line must take some blame for this. Once three men were through on a pass-tine blocked it and another (aught it. Had it not been for a beautiful tackle by MacPhee there would have been an-other touckdown secret.

The touchdown which Chicago made in the last quarter was the result of a well-executed pass. The Princeton halfback let the end get by him, and that is all that is necessary. But the outstanding point of the pass was that the passer actually had time to bluff to the right and then turn and throw to the left. Chicago's line held. Princee left. Chicago's line held. Prince-n's passer had to chuck it, and chuck usual, the campaign will end with the fray against Cornell, whose triumph over Colgate was more impressive than the victory scored by Princeton over the Hamilton eleven.

Must Watch Davies The one-sided victory turned in by Pitt was one of the numerous surprises on Saturday's slate. Warner's ath-letes ran wild against the Orange, got the jump in the first period with a pair of touchdowns and was never in danger. The score might have been even larger, but a flock of substitutes were sent in in the final period. In other words, Pitt won, pulled up, at 35 to 0.

the wee Panther back is sure to be a thorn in the side of the Quakers next Saturday. The entire backfield showed splendid improvement over their play in previous games, and with Herb Stein back at center the line was better by a big percentage.

Elliott led the Lafayette parade through Fordham in New York. This former Kiski line-cracker tore off gain after gain through the first defense of the opposition. Coach Sutherland's team used only straight football in gathering three touchdowns in the first quarter. The fourth tally came in the final period.

Captain Jim Robertson, who unquestionably is one of the best backs in the country, was out of the Dartmouth line-up, and yet the big Green team was able to get four touchdowns and a field goal against Columbia. Siegfried booted the field goal from the 30-yard line, and also kicked the four goals after touchdowns. Colgate threw a scare into Cornell in the opening period by getting away for a touchdown on a trick play, but the advantage did not stay long with the Hamilton collegians. The figures were tied before the period was over, and three touchdowns were scored in the remaining quarters. Hanson also came through with a field goal. Westerners were at least three touch-downs better than the Orange and Black, according to the respective play of the two elevens on Saturday. There was nothing to it but Chicago,
Milton A. Romney, the Maroon quarterback, scored all of the nine yards and was caught on the 5-yard mark.

The touchdown caused much jubilation among the Chicago players, who hugged each other in full view of the 20,000 spectators. Captain Maguire failed to kick the goal, but he was busyed and hackslapped anyhous. hugged and backslapped anyhow,

Van Gerbig Good Punter

The Maroon outplayed the Orang and Black in every department of the game save one. Van Gerbig's punting was the outstanding feature of Princeton's play. His boots were long and they had plenty of height, but a number of them were wasted, for the Tigerends failed to cover properly. On one occasion Van Gerbig punted 65 yards. The wind aided his drive considerably but even against the wind he got of some fairly long boots.

In the first two periods Princeton was outclassed. Three times the Westerners carried the ball on short gains through the line and off tackle from deep in their own territory to near the Tiger goal. Romney's three-point kick, however, was the only score netted from these advances, two drives being spoiled by fumbles.

The Tigers braced somewhat in the third period, but again weakened in the fourth. As evidence of Chicago's meaning the Westerners as against three for the Orange and Black.

Princeton Outclassed

Princeton's margin of victory over Colgate was 19-0, which makes Cornell look better than Roper's athletes, if comparative scores count for anything. The Tigers looked good against Colgate three weeks ago, but it was a different story against Chicago on Saturday.
