

DISEASES OF HEART TOP DEATH CAUSES

This City's Records Show 3285 Persons Died From Malady Last Year

FURBUSH ADVISES PARENTS

Heart disease as the cause of death headed all others in this city last year, according to the records. Thirty-two hundred and eighty-five persons in Philadelphia were victims. This cause even exceeded pulmonary tuberculosis by a thousand.

In consequence of this Dr. C. Lincoln Furbush, Director of the Department of Health, has issued the following bulletin:

Although seven eighths of the deaths from cardiac disorders are among adults forty years and over, the influence of the disease among young adults and children is causing that injury to the heart by disease in early life may be responsible for the large number of premature or, at least, feeble deaths in middle and advanced age.

A large number of the causes of heart diseases are preventable. The infectious diseases in many instances directly responsible for muscular and valvular heart disease. This is especially true of diphtheria, scarlet fever, pneumonia and typhoid fever. Since these diseases can in a large measure be controlled and prevented, a reduction in their prevalence will necessarily be accompanied by a corresponding decrease in cardiac defects.

It is well known to the medical profession that diphtheria, scarlet fever, rheumatism, chorea, throat infections and pneumonia may be accompanied by cardiac defects. These diseases also may be largely avoided and prevented by careful examination of school children for physical defects and by advising parents to have them corrected promptly.

The prevalence of heart disease may be further combated by constant and continuous attention in our schools, recreation centers and public schools. The care of the baby as taught by the Division of Child Hygiene includes the prevention of disease and the promotion of the baby's health.

The recreation centers assist in building up a sturdy childhood population, while the public schools inculcate into the minds of children the necessity of health habits.

The co-operation of the public in the prevention of the infectious diseases, the correction of physical defects among school children and the teaching of health habits will, in the near future, show its value in a lowered mortality from heart disease.

TURKS RATIFY TREATY

Angora Assembly Approves Pact Fixing the New Frontier
Constantinople, Oct. 24.—The Angora Assembly has ratified the Franco-French treaty by an overwhelming majority. The treaty fixes the frontier to the north of Alexandretta. The new line embraces Marash, Aintab and Urfa, and extends to the Persian border.
The Turks concede French economic priority in the Vilayets of Adana, Diarbekir, Sivas and Harput. The French recognize the Angora Government.

STEALS GEMS IN ARMORE

Home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bullock, Jr., Robbed
Several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry was stolen Saturday night from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bullock, Jr., of 110 Edgewood road, Ardmore. The loss was discovered when they returned home about 1 o'clock Sunday morning.
Mr. Bullock found the bedroom door on the second floor locked and discovered the contents of the dressing table drawers scattered about the room. An open window in the room indicated that the thief had entered the house by climbing a drain pipe. It is thought by the lower Merion police that he had just begun to rob the house when the owners returned home.

FINDS CRUSADERS' CHURCH

Dr. C. W. Fisher, of University Museum, Uncovers Ruins at Beisan
Remains of a large Christian church built by the Crusaders and burned by the Arabs were uncovered by Dr. Charles W. Fisher, of the University Museum, who for the time being has completed excavations at Beisan, the Beth-Shan of the Bible in the Valley of Megiddo.
Dr. Fisher has returned to Egypt to continue excavations of the Palace of Merophtah, at Memphis. He will return to Beisan in the spring.
His reports having obtained great quantities of relics at Beisan, including articles of iron, bronze, brass, marble, and many pieces of pottery. It is expected that several years will be needed to complete the work of excavation.

HUNGARIANS JOIN EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Twelve Congregations of Reformed Body in America Accept Affiliation—3 Here

ANNOUNCED BY BISHOP

Announcement has been made by Bishop Rheinlander at the Church House of the proposed affiliation with the Episcopal Church of nearly the entire membership of the Hungarian Reformed Church in America, representing twelve congregations in the Eastern States. Those of these congregations are in Philadelphia and vicinity.
The movement of the Hungarian Church into union with the Episcopal Church has been prompted by the disintegration of the Lambeth Conference on Church Unity. It is in direct line with those recommendations and is the first practical step toward church unity that has been taken since the Lambeth recommendations were promulgated. Under an agreement entered into at a conference of Bishops of the Episcopal Church at Princeton, N. J., this year, the Hungarian churchmen, upon formal ratification of the Princeton concordat by the separate congregations, nine of which have already acted, will be admitted into full privileges in the Episcopal Communion under the pastoral direction of the Bishops in the dioceses where the Hungarian congregations are now located.
Commenting upon the action at Princeton, Bishop Rheinlander said: "The Conference was most interesting and hopeful. We were impressed by the character, ability and earnestness of the Hungarians, both ministers and laymen. The practical working out of the concordat will be a most important matter and should have a far-reaching influence. The next step will be to perfect the arrangements for the admission of our Bishops of these Hungarian ministers with the least possible delay."
The Reformed Church of Hungary, of which the congregations in the United States were a branch, dates back to the time of the Reformation. The agreement of union entered into at Princeton is between the parishes and missions of the Hungarian Reformed Church, concerned, and the Bishops of the dioceses of the Episcopal Church in which the former are located and the presiding Bishop and Council, or executive body, of the Episcopal Church in the United States.
The Right Rev. Ethelbert Talbot, D. D., Bishop of Bethlehem, presided at the Princeton conference, which was held in Nassau Hall. Other Bishops of Episcopal dioceses present at the conference were the Right Rev. Paul Matthews, Bishop of New Jersey; Bishop Rheinlander; the Right Rev. James H. Darlington, Bishop of Harrisburg; the Right Rev. Edwin Stevens Lines, Bishop of Newark; the Right Rev. Robert Carter Jefferis, Bishop of Southwestern Virginia; and clerical and lay delegates from nine of the twelve Hungarian congregations, representing parishes in Philadelphia, Phoenixville, Pa.; Bethlehem, Pa.; Perth Amboy, New Brunswick, South River, Trenton, Roebling, Woodbridge and Franklin, N. J.; Kreischerville, Staten Island, and Bridgeport, Conn. The Right Rev. William T. Manning, Bishop of New York, and the Right Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, Bishop of Connecticut, were not present, but Bishop Manning has since added his signature.
J. Wilson Hayward, chancellor of the diocese of Pennsylvania, and an authority on ecclesiastical law, who drew up the concordat, participated in the conference, along with Robert H. Gardiner, secretary of the Commission on Faith and Order of the Episcopal Church.
All the details of the concordat were carefully discussed and agreed upon at the conference. One of the essential features in the details of the transaction is a broad plan of Americanization. There is no intention on the part of the Episcopal Church to absorb the Hungarian Church, but rather to permit it to retain its identity as an organization with the right to preserve its forms, to retain titles to all its property, to continue its own deanery, while at the same time the congregations will place themselves under the pastoral care of the Episcopal Bishops in whose dioceses they are located and conform to such rules and laws of the Episcopal Church as are fundamental.

'Vienna Exchange' Messages Quoted
Chicago, Oct. 24.—A copyright London dispatch to the Chicago Tribune says: "Vienna Exchange messages from Warsaw reports Bolsheviks have crossed the frontier and invaded Polish territory."
Although there have been vague stories every few months of a coming Bolshevik offensive, no serious suggestion has been made of an attack on Poland. What military concentration the famine has permitted the Soviet to carry out has been in the South, designed to impress Rumania. It is possible the foregoing dispatch may be based on some bandit raid along the frontier.

Find Night Watchman Dead
Stricken with hemorrhages while on duty as a night watchman, William J. Lawler was a member of Camden Aerie of Eagles.

23 HEAD OF STOCK BURN
Incendiarism Suspected in Farm Blaze Near Almonesson
Woodbury, N. J., Oct. 24.—A disastrous farm fire occurred yesterday on the Shuter farm, along the Good Intent road, near Almonesson, when seven horses, two mules and fourteen cows were burned, together with 1000 bushels of corn and other grain, besides two automobile trucks and an auto.
The Almonesson, Blackwood, Blackwood Terrace, Berlin and Woodbury fire companies were called, but the best the men and engines could do was to keep the fire confined to the big barn. Incendiarism is suspected.
