Geographical Scope of Crimson Schedule Gratifying Feature of Athletic Policy at Harvard

PRINCETON BOUND TO SHOW IMPROVEMENT IN COMING BIG GAMES

Three First Downs in Two Battles No Boost for Tigers' Offensive Ability—Georgia Tech May Have Trouble With Shift Against State

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL
Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

LOOKS as if the 1921 football season has headed into the homestretch, and in a short time the grand finale will be put on. Time surely has sped by quickly, for it was only a couple of weeks ago that the season was in its infancy and the big teams were indulging in practice tilts to get in shape for the important battles to come. Now they are here.

On Saturday Princeton will have its last chance to experiment against a minor college, for after the game with Virginia, Harvard will be played in Palmer Stadium. The following week Yale will be played in New Haven and the season will end for the Tiger. Yale and Harvard also have a strenuous time after this week-end.

The Big Three is not so strong as in previous years. No longer does it dominate the football world, and other teams have proved that victories can be scored. Harvard has had three narrow escapes, Princeton hit the skids twice and only Yale stands out as a representative team. This is due, in a way, to the easy schedule.

One of the most gratifying features is the attitude of the Harvard authorities in meeting all comers, regardless of the geographical angle. The Crimson played the University of Indiana, from Bloomington, Ind.; the University of Georgia, from Atlanta, Ga.; Penn State, from State College, Pa., and Centre College, from Danville, Ky. Intersectional battles were sought, and this was a great boost for the sport. Princeton also did good work in that line, playing Chicago and Virginia.

Many surprises have been coming this far, but the biggest one was the showing of Princeton. Last year the Tigers had the best team in the country and prospects for another [illegible] eleven were unusually bright. However, after Lourie [illegible] and two starred and several of the best men on t[illegible] found [illegible] and the [illegible]

The [illegible] wrong with the offense. Coach St[illegible] of Chicago, [illegible] the Tigers attack was so simple that even a kid could tell what was going to happen. This cannot be doubted a bit, but when one looks over the box score of the last two games one will discover that Princeton has made exactly three first downs, while the opponents registered twenty-six. Something MUST be wrong with the attack if that is the best Princeton can do.

* * *

PERHAPS Roper is saving all of his good stuff for the big games. And perhaps, again, the team depends on Dan Lourie to carry it along. No matter what it is, the Tigers are bound to improve in the Harvard and Yale games because there is lots of room for improvement.

Georgia Tech May Have Trouble

WHEN the coaches and football officials met in New York last month to discuss the rules and hand down a few interpretations, it was decided that in all shift plays a period of time shall elapse between the shift and the passing of the ball. In other words, there must be a perceptible stop which is discernible to the referee.

This was accepted by all coaches and there hasn't been any trouble in the Eastern games. The shifts are used, but men are not in motion when the ball is snapped. They come to a full stop, meaning their bodies are not tilted forward after landing on both feet.

However, there is a story that Georgia Tech did not cotton over the ruling and registered a vigorous protest against the interpretation. They held that the body could be in motion if both feet were on the ground and it was permissible to get a flying start on shift formations.

"I was talking to an assistant coach at Tech," said a Penn man the other day. "He said that Georgia would not pay any attention to the rule and play it the same as last year. They say they will make a joke of the game if the officials persist in penalizing them."

That's something to look forward to when Tech plays State in New York on Saturday. If the Southerners have their own interpretation of the rule and are called down several times for offside, the poor, struggling, hard-working and unappreciated officials will come in for a terrible panning in the Atlanta papers. This has happened in the past and will occur again. Tech always has drawn several offside penalties in the games up North because some of the men occasionally are five and ten yards offside when the ball is snapped.

* * *

HOWEVER, we shall be able to see what kind of a play the shift really is on Saturday. Some coaches have discarded it entirely and are not missing it.

Babe Ruth, the Actor, Here Next Month

BABE RUTH, the actor, will be in our midst late next month. The Big Bambino was reported to be in this city yesterday, but the rumor was several miles from the truth. In fact, it was thirty miles away from fact. Babe and Mrs. Babe appeared unheralded in West Chester, and last night the King of Swat, as the guest of the Kennett Square Coon Club, went out in the woods to seek a couple of coons over the trees. On Saturday he will participate in a fox chase. This is part of Ruth's vacation every year immediately after the season is completed. Herb Pennock, the old A's pitcher, who is a close friend of the famous Babe, entertains Ruth every fall at West Chester.

According to a report from New York, Ruth was supposed to come here yesterday to sign a contract for a vaudeville tour. George Young, who pinch-hits for Harry Jordan at Keith's, spiked the rumor.

"As far as I know," said Young, "Ruth has been signed already to appear on the Keith circuit. We have been notified that he will show here the last week in November. He will be in a baseball play."

Ruth had both his arms bandaged yesterday, but says he is feeling fine. Apparently he isn't worrying about the decision Judge Landis will hand down in a couple of weeks. It is said that there is a very strong chance that the Bambino will be suspended for the entire season of 1922, but it is scarcely likely that the commissioner will affect such a severe penalty for the offense of the barnstorming trips. It is probable that he will be forced to sit on the bench for a stretch at the beginning of the season and to pay a few hundred dollars' fine.

* * *

IT IS peculiar during a baseball controversy such as the one being staged by Ruth and Landis not to hear some heated words from Ban Johnson. All the American League boss is talking about is reducing the player limit to Methuselah.

Stevenson	left guard	Deeble
Mackenzie	center	Rahauser
Nave	right guard	Bush
Fay	right tackle	Thomas
V. Zimmerman	right end	Hueber
Lubrano	quarterback	Acheson
Lucas	left halfback	Scully
Young	right halfback	Padgett
Meredith	fullback	May

Substitutes — Scribes, already mentioned. Managers — Varsity team. Referee—Dr. Jack Keogh. Umpire—Probable choice, Dr. John Hart. Time of periods—Five minutes each.

The second battle of Franklin Field that has only one parallel in history—the Second Battle of the Marne—is scheduled for 10 o'clock Saturday morning on Franklin Field between two carefully-chosen teams named anonymously—the Scribes and the Managers, two rival branches of the followers of Penn football team.

Last year the bloodiest, fiercest and most awe-inspiring game in a generation [illegible] with [illegible] on [illegible] such as [illegible] broken [illegible] bones, [illegible] out of [illegible] and [illegible] such as are [illegible] a [illegible] fight. No clawing and no kicking, except on fourth down.

Biting may be indulged in in moderation.

No pads. (The Scribes reserve the right to use all pads to bolster up their expense accounts).

The English language will be used exclusively, except where profanity is necessary.

No open-work or drop-stitch stockings are to be worn by either team except the referee.

Neither team, except the Scribes, may protest the decisions of the officials.

Dr. Jack Keogh, who when not putting the molars of his patients in shape also looks after the freshmen football team, will act as referee of the contest.

Betting at last reports was so lively that the Mint was running out of pennies.

The Scribes ran through a speedy workout that carried them long into dusk yesterday afternoon, Coach Byron Dickson giving his men the benefit of his knowledge of the proper conditioning necessary.

NATIVITY TO PLAY SPHAS

Rivals in Cage Game Will Clash Tomorrow Evening

The Nativity and South Philadelphia Hebrew basketball teams, which were members of the American League last season and have decided to play independent ball this season, meet in the first of a series of games tomorrow night at Nativity Hall, Belgrade street and Allegheny avenue.

The uptowners and Sphas are rivals in both baseball and basketball. The ball team banned Nativity one of its few defeats on the home field, and the basketball five expects to repeat, as they have not been beaten to date.

Nativity opened the home campaign with an overwhelming victory over Holy Name, and with the strong line-up signed for Dr. Sands has visions of winning for it repeat as champions of the city. Nativity wants games at any time from now with West Chester, Downingtown, Atlantic City, Kane, Conshohocken, Atlantic City K. of C. and teams of that caliber. Address William Sands, care Nativity Catholic Club, Belgrade street and Allegheny avenue.

TIPLITZ SCORES KAYO

Knocks Out George Brown, of New York, in One Minute

Boston, Mass., Oct. 27.—Joe Tiplitz, of Philadelphia, knocked out George Brown, of New York, in the first minute of their fight here last night.

Tiplitz started in like a whirlwind, and although Brown landed a few first lefts and rights to the body and head, Tiplitz was unmoved and pushed his left and right uppers fully into Brown's face. A couple of lefts and the New Yorker was groggy and a left and right put him down.

Young Goudreau, of Nashua, N. H., was given a decision over Harry (Kid) Brooks, of Philadelphia, but the verdict was hardly popular, unofficially, and not many heard for Brooks from the time he came to the fore by his clever boxing. Goudreau got away to a good start, but Brown was not slow in scoring honors.

BOXERS ARE URGED TO MANAGE SELVES

New York Commission Advises Mittmen to Dismiss Handlers. 33 1-3 P. C. "Cut" Limit

RULING IS MISINTERPRETED

By LOUIS H. JAFFE

Managers and boxers have misinterpreted a recent ruling of the New York State Boxing Commission, whereby contracts must be filed with that body. It was believed that in order for a boxer to appear in a contest in that State it would be necessary for him to have a manager. That impression has been dissipated by the commission, and an announcement has been made by the solons that they would greatly prefer a mittman to conduct his own business affairs.

In an effort to bring down the high cost of boxing the commission in New York has added another rule by the terms of which a manager cannot "cut" more than a third of a boxer's net earnings.

Charles F. Mathison, of New York, explains the new regulations of the commission and brings out each point plainly as follows:

"The inference is that when boxers are relieved of the necessity of handing their gross earnings to their managers they may be willing to spar a few rounds for a trifle less than the amount of money in the sub-treasury.

"To further accentuate the necessity for less expensive boxing the commission announced that it was not necessary for a boxer to support a manager.

"A report had been circulated to the effect that a boxer minus a manager would not be permitted to appear in the ring in New York State, and the boxing solons poignantly stamp the rumor as untrue. On the contrary, the commissioners announce that they would greatly prefer all boxers conducted their own business affairs and permitted the managers to engage in other pursuits.

"It is not difficult to perceive that if Dempsey discarded Jack Kearns, Leonard separated from Gibson and Leo P. Flynn's fifty-seven varieties of boxers deserted him, there would be a marked reduction in the cost of putting boxing members set afoot in the ring.

"The commission considered that in the event of a boxer being so unwise as to retain a manager a written contract between the pair must be filed with the commission.

"The proclamation concludes with the declaration that there are few good managers, and that a majority of them do nothing except telephone to club owners for engagements for the boxers. If a large number of managers are suddenly thrown out of employment they will have no one to blame except the commissioners."

Limits Boxing Clubs to One Show a Week

Boxing clubs operating in New York State will be permitted to conduct only one show each week, according to the latest ruling of the State Athletic Commission. The new rule becomes operative on November 7. The governing boxing officials hold the attitude that one show a week is enough for the various clubs now operating through the State.

The rule will affect all clubs, big and little. Several of the smaller organizations have been conducting two shows each week. Tex Rickard, Madison Square Garden boxing promoter, planned to hold two shows each week in the Garden, beginning with next Tuesday night, but this plan now will have to be abandoned.

Scraps About Scrappers

Another big club will be entered in Philadelphia shortly, according to a report along the pugilistic Rialto for several days. It is said that one of the armories will be converted into a boxing arena. Jack Hanlon as matchmaker. Here's hoping the rumor further has it, will box in the first show on Thanksgiving Day afternoon.

Al Valentine, dynamight and former amateur boxer, is ready to make his professional debut. He is a product of Matty Deckert's gym and is a 108-pounder.

Peter Ross has made a big hit in Logan on the State. He has been booked for a match by Willie Edwards for November 4, and is expected to box at the Ice Palace the following week.

Young Joe Tuber is in training for a return to the ring. He will be ready for 112-pound competition in a fortnight. Young Feeney has taken Joe, Jr., in tow.

Carl Dietz, Jamestown, N. Y., lightweight has put himself in fine fettle at Hermanville and he is confident of trimming Frankie Smith, of South, at the Coliseum tomorrow night.

The wind up at the Gym on tomorrow night will be between Al Wallace and Eddie Hogan. Hogan, the dusky South Philly scrapper, whose other claim to fame is that he once boxed Benny Burke at Nanticoke, plays host to Johnny Dougherty and Tony Henderson vs. Jack Gilligan.

Jimmy Brown, a Trenton 110-pounder, is now under the management of Billy Fagan, of this city. Brown has met Tim Droney three times, twice in fifteen-rounders and the other in an eight-round encounter. Droney also represents Bobby Dyson in Philadelphia.

Pat Deeney has been selected by his fight-matchmaker, Patrick L. Dooley, of Kingston, to meet Young Sockey at the Ice Palace next Tuesday night. Deeney, Jr., also is booked for the O'Connell and Sullivan opening November.

Phil Krug is the latest New Jersey scrapper to [illegible] a manager. He is now [illegible] and is [illegible] every Lou Bogash, Abe O'Dowd and Jimmy O'Gatty.

Spellman to Start Against Yale

Providence, Oct. 27.—Brown's prospects for the clash with Yale at New Haven on Saturday brightened considerably when it was learned that John Spellman, star fullback who reported out with water on the knee on the result of an injury, will [illegible] able to get into the game. Spellman has been the Bruins' most consistent ground-gainer.

MAIN LINE OPENS NEW GOLF EVENT

Tredyffrin Will Stage 36-Hole Medal Tussle November 7, Open to All Comers

NATIONAL STARS INVITED

By SANDY McNIBLICK

The local links season, though faltering, is not yet finished for the year 1921. A brand-new tournament will be written into the records.

This is the open golf championship of the Main Line, to be played November 7 over the turfy undulations of the Tredyffrin Country Club at Paoli.

It will be a one-day fete for low-medal scoring over the thirty-six-hole route. This tournament is the result of one which was in the brewing for some time, but never materialized, namely, that local pros get together during their leisure of the Mondays and play that day every week on different courses.

There were several hitches, but Tredyffrin has come to the rescue and crystallized it all in what is expected to be a very impressive event.

All local amateurs and professional golfers are invited to get in the tussle. The championship is not confined to players along the Main Line, so that it will be possible for an invader to step in and take the title.

Everybody is invited to take a fling and much talent is expected. When the idea of a one-day tournament was broached to Jim Barnes, the open champion was not at all averse to the idea of entering, and pressure is being brought to bear on the tall tutor to come down from Pelham a week from Monday to joint the hunt.

Walter Hagen, Jock Hutchison and others are also being sought. It is the intention to make the going snappy.

It is understood that Tredyffrin is offering a nice fat purse for first money in order to attract the satellites hither and yon. The question of entry fees is being debated and these, if any, will be pooled into the minor prizes.

The famous Falls of Schuylkill open championship is confined to golfing residents of the Falls, but the Main Line outing will be open to all-comers. It is hoped that local amateurs as well as the pros will enter. Entries are receivable by Bob Barnett, pro at Tredyffrin, which should be sent in not later than a week from this Saturday.

The Veteran Speaks Again

"I warmed both hands before the fire of life;
It sinks, and I am ready to depart."
—Walter Savage Lander.

I left the field to maudlin blares of strife;
With rag and pack I face tomorrow's start.

For I have found how soon contentment comes
When Fame no longer through the portal gleams;
Where one can hear no more the rolling drums
That from afar break in on quiet dreams.

THE debate is now raging as to whether Lloyd George or Judge Landis has the gentlest assignment. They should pool their troubles and declare a stock dividend of sudden gales.

How Long?

WORDS have been bandied back and forth as to how long the multitude would remember Ruth out of major league harness.

There are many who have believed his absence would have a depressing effect upon the game.

This belief was held many years ago concerning Matheweson and Wagner.

We reprint our balladic version of the situation written ten years ago in fall—

When Matty is finished and through,
When his shadow has passed from the hill,
When he stalks with the Vanishing Crew,
And fades where the firing is still,
You will miss him forever, the thrill,
The magic and sweep of his play;
Yes, Rooter, you know that you will—
But who weeps for Rusie today?

When Wagner has drifted from view,
A Has-been and out of the drill,
A Used-to-Be gone from the pew
Of those who belabored the pill,
I know—you will mourn him until
You have come to the dusk of your stay;
The echoes that claim him are shrill,
But who thinks of Keeler today?

When T. Raymond Cobb throws a shoe,
When Walsh comes to fame's final spill,
When all of the masters you knew
Pass out from the whirl of the mill,
There will never be one who can fill
The gap each must leave on his way;
They are heroes no future can kill,
But who speaks of Ewing today?

When Matty and Wagner are nil,
The glamour fades out from the fray;
The shadow creeps on to the sill,
But who misses Radbourne today?

"AND as for quarterbacks," writes Colgate Fan, "there was Ellery Huntingdon." One of the best of the top layer. Undoubtedly.

REACHING for the succulent statistics with an unsteady grasp we can recall the names of only three or four teams that were unbeaten last season. Chief among these were Princeton, Harvard, Penn State and California. This season Pittsburgh and Princeton, powerful machines, both took an early nose-dive. Both of the leaders face harassing trouble. The Navy and Lafayette have the best chance to escape, but we get once more the haunting blur of many words thrown around December's discussion of the championship title. It listens like another conversational winter, with bitter and burning repartee rampant.

STILL, a country that can turn out a Paderewski, Zbyszko and Covaleskie must have some versatility concealed in its rugged hills.

O, East is East and West is West,
But who can say which system's best?

BETWEEN Tad Jones at Yale and Howard Jones at Iowa, the Jones combination in restraint of forward passes and line smashes seems to be a growing menace. Tad may not weather the Princeton-Harvard storm, but Howard has his Iowa caravan already by the main hurdles tossed into the desert track, with one of the star ensembles of the year.

Harvard, Yale and Princeton may draw a breathing spell on Saturday, but Penn State can see no open spot to sit down and rest with Georgia Tech coming at full gallop, all keyed up for the joust. Stopping Barren and Harlan is enough to insure a fair afternoon's work without any additional accomplices.
