Altogether it will be a gay afternoon and evening, and tomorrow we have Sarah Baily's ten and the Pickering Hunt meet in the afternoon, and several other things, including the Drexels' dinner dance. THE Pickering is always a very de-

The farmers from all the country of the property of th which adjoins the Fickering Hunt Gub, and the farmers from all the country round are invited and attend a large breakfast which is given in their honor. The farmers are keenly interested and many of them have entries in the flat

One of the events which every one over at these races, and by the way One of the events which every one loves at these races, and by the way this is the Pickering's eighth annual affair, is a mule race. Mr. R. Penn Smith is managing the meet, and I hear there is to be a first and second prize for every race.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Stockton Pear-son, who have been spending part of the'r wedding trip in Bermuda, returned home yesterday and will live with Mr. Pearson's mother, Mrs. Davis Pearson, of 5939 Drexel road, Overbrook, Mrs. Pearson before her wedding on Saturday, October 15, was Miss Bertha Elizabeth Bott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

SUPPOSE because there is so liter-I ally nothing to do on Sunday afternoons and evenings here, except to go to church, and many who have gone in the morning and afternoon both think they want a little relaxation in the evening, or vice versa, that accounts for the Sunday entertaining which is becoming quite prevalent this year. Take this Sunday. The Tom Dolans are giving quite a large luncheon out at their place Devon in honor of their daughter Sara and her husband, Paul Denckla, at which there are to be about seventy guests. And further up the road on the Main Line the John Kent Kanes are planning n informal supper in honor of Flor-ence Kane, their attractive daughter. Florence, you remember, is on the hockey team which the Morris girls have gotten up, and will probably be playing hockey down there in Villanova the afternoon before the supper. You know, the Kanes have a farm up near Frazier, beyond Paoli. It's a delightful house and quite ideal for big informal ITELEN SCOTT has come on from H Boston for several of the parties this week just as I predicted. Her mother, who was known here as Helen Sanders, has so many friends in this city I don't believe there's been a debutante party given to which Helen, Jr., has not been invited. Of course she cannot come on for all of them, because she has to go out in Boston too, but this week-end she is here and the Graham dance. She will also go to the George Drexel's dinner-dance at Wootton tomorrow evening.

Helen is good looking and very much liked for her own sake as well as her mother's. She is the daughter of General Hugh Scott.

Miss Mary I. Nixon, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace F. Nixon, of Red Crest. Woodbury, and 2203 Walnut street, and Miss Pauline du Pont, debutante daughter of Mrs. William du Pont, of Wilmington, Del. have returned from a few days' visit to New Haven, Conn.

Mary was her maid of honor at the wedding in Detroit a couple of years ago, and there are several others of that age she knows very well. She is very vivacious, very smart-looking and dresses exceedingly well, indeed she is a decided addition to the younger set THARLIE was kneeling by mother's side with head devoutly bowed, re-peating the Lord's Prayer, when Bill and Dick, his elder brothers were heard to snicker from the entry way just as he finished "our daily bread." Then ald he, "'Scuse me, mother, while I fix those fellers," and proceed to the door where he punched each in turn, and then back on his knees once more continued.
