until Marie Louise left last spring for Europe. Florence is still persevering in the good work, and is at her post at 9 o'clock every day, and does not leave until 5. That means real work, you know, and I hear she is always ready to do anything she is asked at the hospital, so she is of immense use. It's splendid how so many girls who do not have to work for a living prefer to work rather than idle away their time in frivolity from morning till night.
