Nancy Wynne Tells of Seeing Mrs. Craig Biddle in Town—She Is Interested in Welfare Work to Be Done by Women Here

I SAW Mrs. Craig Biddle at Broad Street Station on Tuesday and I must say I marvel at her beauty. She is the youngest looking person to have a daughter of sixteen and a son two, who is growing into young manhood that I have ever seen.

month to Arthur Pew. They are both great favorites in the younger set. LITTLE JEAN, who lived in town, had never seen a lady in riding clothes till one day recently she rode in the car with father to one of the race meets. She is five years old and is beginning to love horses very much and yet all afternoon during the race she had a rather worried expression on her face and on her way home said: "Does anything bother you, daddy?" "Ye-es, daddy," said Jean. "What is it, darling, maybe I can answer the bother." "Well, daddy," said she, "I've just wondered if you would 'ring why so many of the mammals out there were rompers."
