

TORN BY COUSIN GIRL TAKES POISON

New York Woman Arrested on Charge of Annoying Jeweler, a Married Man

SHE IS IN HOSPITAL

Miss Minnie Loeb, of New York, is in St. Luke's Hospital with little chance of recovery from effects of poison taken when she was arrested for annoying with love protestations Harry Kerstine, a jeweler, at Ninth and Market streets, this city. Kerstine is a cousin of Miss Loeb and is a married man.

The tragic net which may end this unusual affair came as a climax, it is said, of months of annoyance to Kerstine, whose home is on Seventeenth street above Butler.

Police say Miss Loeb began pressing her unwelcome attentions on her cousin two months ago. He is the father of two children. Before his marriage it is said he and the young woman were intimate, but that their friendship was broken up by relatives.

Visit after visit was made to Kerstine's home and to his store, it is said, so that his daily life was hounded with the attentions of his cousin, who is thirty years old.

Had Warrant Sworn Out

The continued alleged annoyance led Mr. Kerstine to swear out a warrant for his cousin on the charge of disorderly conduct. It was his hope to get her to leave the city, he explained; nothing more.

"What can a man do?" he asked this morning. "When a man is persecuted and pestered there has to be some remedy. It's just like having your arm pinched by somebody. The pinching keeps up. There never seems to be any end. There is nothing else to do but get rid of the person."

The climax of a series of dramatic incidents staged in both his home and place of business came when the young woman was brought into the Twenty-second street and Hunting Park avenue station. Almost the moment she came in she fainted. When brought back to consciousness she calmly explained she had taken poison.

Immediately she was taken to the hospital, but there authorities hold little hope for her recovery. "While there's life there's hope," a physician said this morning. "But at the same time her condition is critical."

Withdraw Previous Warrant

Police say Miss Loeb visited Philadelphia about three months ago, and renewed her love suit, which had apparently been abandoned for some time. She carried it as usual to Mr. Kerstine's home and store on Market street. At that time he swore out a warrant, on the same charge, but withdrew it when she promised to leave the city.

On this visit, police say, she dropped into her cousin's store several times a day, and made every effort to get him to bestow the love he withheld from her. Finally her pleadings became so embarrassing that he had to swear out a warrant, in the hope it would bring about the same result as the previous one.

GIRL SEEKS MOTHER

Writes to Camden Police Chief Asking Help in Finding Her

Chief of Police Gravenor, of Camden, has been asked by a sixteen-year-old girl, of Blakelyville, Pa., to help find her mother. The girl, Miriam Munderoff, is the oldest of six children. The father works in the mines at night.

Hilda wrote to Chief Gravenor that her mother had gone away once before. This time the last letter received from her was last May. "My mother is thirty-five or thirty-six years old, but only looks twenty-five," the girl wrote. "You would never believe she had had six children." The woman is described as being very dark, with brown eyes.

CHARGES ROBBERY IN TAXI

Man is Arrested After Being Driven Over Town With Friend

After a row in a taxicab at Seventeenth and Wood streets at 2:30 o'clock this morning, James White, nineteen years old, of Vine street near Sixteenth, was arrested, charged with robbing John Hoy, thirty-one years old, of 3147 West Harmer street. Both were passengers in the taxicab. When police arrested White they found $70 in his pocket and $36 tucked away in his sock.

According to the story told Detective Roney, White and Hoy met last evening and were driven over the city in a taxicab, seeking the various "sweet" places. Hoy, police say, became very much intoxicated, while White remained sober. When the taxi arrived at Seventeenth and Wood streets this morning White is alleged to have attacked Hoy and taken his money. The taxi driver, Frank Conroy, 1230 South Stanley street, summoned the police.

Helen Edwards, six years old, 108 Poplar street, accidentally swallowed a pencil sharpener last night and is in the Hahnemann Hospital, where she will undergo an operation for its removal today.

CITY TO HONOR INSANE

War-Deranged Heroes to Have Armistice Day Celebration

While the eyes of the Nation are focused on the exercises attending the burial of the unknown soldier in Arlington Cemetery on Armistice Day, Philadelphia will honor 430 mental wrecks of battle who are dragging out their days in the Public Service Hospital on Grays Ferry road.

For these men Armistice Day has never sounded. They still fight their battles in the mud of France, and the sight of anything military puts them in a state of melancholy likely to offset ## all the reconstruction work done on their deranged nervous systems.

For them there will be simple exercises in the hospital and a concert by a band of sixteen of their own number. All suggestion of military pomp will be purged from the observance.

FIND BOYS IN FREIGHT CAR

Twenty-four Hour Tour Seeking Adventure Lands Pair in Jail

Sigmund Koelarsky, thirteen, 2340 Hope street, and Francis Mallon, twelve, 28 East Silver street, ended twenty-four hours of adventure this morning when they were taken out of a locked freight car in the Pavyonia car yard of the Pennsylvania Railroad in East Camden.

The boys left their homes yesterday morning and decided to hike Jerseyward. They hopped a truck at the ferries and went to Woodbury. There, according to the story they told the police, they decided to turn back, so they slipped into the open door of a freight car on a train that was just preparing to move out.

A few minutes later the door was locked. The car was shifted to the Pavyonia yards. About 9:30 this morning William Alexander, a member of the Pennsylvania Railroad police, heard the boys shouting for help and had the car opened. They were taken to the Camden Jail, where they are now being held for an investigation.

AS GOOD AS A BOND

The paper in a railroad bond has to be good. A bond is too valuable to be trusted to the keeping of any but the toughest and most durable paper that can be had.

So railroad bonds are engraved on CRANE'S papers.

Your business letters would look good on the kind of paper that is obligatory for bonds. It isn't obligatory for business stationery - but that's where the fine advertising touch comes in.

It shows that you think your letters - what your firm has to say to its customers and correspondents - are important enough to be written on the only paper good enough for bonds.

NAB 559 DRUNKS IN MONTH

Arrests at 10th and Buttonwood Station in October Record

The number of drunks arrested during October increased remarkably in the Tenth and Buttonwood streets station over the record for other months, according to information given out today by Acting Lieutenant Thomas Walsh. Of the 905 arrests made during the month 559 were charged with intoxication. The total arrests in the district for October exceeded the total arrests of any other three districts combined.

Liquor flowed so freely in the district that the arrests for drunkenness mounted far above the average for months previous to prohibition, when the total seldom reached the 400 mark.

In addition to the drunks one bootlegger was arrested, two were charged with transporting liquor illegally and one with conducting an illicit still.
