Nancy Wynne Tells of the William Elliotts' Tea Yesterday-Theatre Party Tonight for Debutantes-Charity Ball December 1—Tea and Dancing at Flower Show

THE Elliott tea yesterday afternoon was a pretty affair. Hannah is the second daughter and is as popular as her sister Betty, or rather Mary Elizabeth, who was married early last month, you remember, to Arthur Pew. The tea was given at the Elliotts' house, tea was given at the Elliotts' house, tea was given at the Elliotts' house, tea was given at the filliotts' hous were like heavily perfumed conserva-

Hannah wore a frock of white lace and looked very sweet. She's a West-over girl and has ever so many friends. I was particularly struck with the wonderful American Beauties in the center of the dining table—I've seldom en so attractive a tea table.

both of whom are debutantes of the season. Ellen and Dorothy are close friends of Ellen Lloyd, who is also a debutante, and it's going to be great fun tonight. After the theatre they will go to the Ritz-Carlton for supper and dancing.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Sailer, of 1718

MY DEARS, have you realized that the Charity Ball is only four weeks off? It's on December 1 this year, Why. only seems the other day since we all sat breathlessly watching the pageant, which was the bringing to life of the which was the bringing to life of the little figures on the fans from various countries. This year the pageant is to be called a "Waltz Dream." and the four groups of girls and men will represent "Madamoiselle Modiste," the "Merry Widow." "Gypsy Love" and the "Pink Lady." I hear it is going to be most awfully pretty, and, judging from other years, I do not doubt it.

WAS talking to some one the other day about the Chrysanthemum Show at the Academy of Music next week, and was utterly amazed to learn that the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society dates back to November 20, 1827. And there have been shows for years and years, though not every year since the dent in 1827 was Horace Binney, and on the first board were Nicholas Buddle. George Pepper, Robert Patterson, David Landreth, Jr., Thomas Biddle and a number more of the scions of old Philaon the show is going to be unique this ear, in that the proceeds are to be shared with various charities each day, and there is to be tea and dancing in the Foyer of the Academy in the after-noon and evening. Isn't that a great idea? On November 7, the opening day, the receipts will go to the Orphans' Soclety, of this city. On Tuesday they will be turned over to the School of Horticulture for Women at Ambler, and on Wednesday, the third and last day, the proceeds will be given to St. Fran-Country House for Convalescents

Pretty little aides in fancy costumes will serve tea, and altogether it sounds tea to be given by her parents on Frito me like a most attractive affair. The day afternoon, November 25. officers of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society include Mr. James Boyd, president; Mr. Hartman Kuhn and Mr. C. F. C.
