

HELD FOR MURDER OF WELLENBACHS

Liser Pinsel Arrested in Camden After Group Says He Confessed

POLICE THINK HIM INSANE

Liser Pinsel, sixty-two years old, is said to have confessed in Camden that he was the murderer of Louis Wellenbach and his wife Fanny, the aged couple who were found murdered September 6 in their home, 523 South Randolph street.

Pinsel is believed to be of unsound mind. He is held by Captain of Detectives Schlegel, of the Camden force, until his story can be investigated.

Detective Tyson, of the Murder Squad, was sent to Camden today by Captain of Detectives Souder to question the man. Tyson took with him Adolph Wellenbach, 906 Wyoming avenue, a son of the murdered man.

Pinsel last evening got into conversation with some Jewish people at the Camden ferry. The talk turned on the Wellenbach murder mystery, and after saying he knew the Wellenbachs, Pinsel is said to have confessed to the group he talked to that he was the murderer. It is said he told them he had lived near the Wellenbachs for years, and had worked for them, attending to their fires on Jewish holidays when they could not work.

Though his story was a rambling one, those who heard him thought they should tell the authorities. Patrolman Maurice Dieola was summoned, and took Pinsel to the Camden Courthouse, where he is being held.

Detective Tyson, who has been working on the Wellenbach case, recalled Pinsel as a man who had evinced great interest in the crime, and had been present at the inquest. Detectives say Pinsel came to them several times with theories about the murder, and undoubtedly knew the murdered couple and had lived in the neighborhood.

Philadelphia detectives are inclined to doubt the man's story, but probably will bring him here so it can be investigated thoroughly. Pinsel made no statement to Camden police beyond saying he knew the Wellenbachs and they were good friends of his.

ORIENT GIVES OCCIDENT THE "O-O"

Muang Than Tin, Burmese publisher, is shown inspecting a Public Ledger linotype on a tour of inspection of American publishing methods.

BURMESE PUBLISHER GETS VIEW OF AMERICAN METHODS

Muang Than Tin, of Rangoon, Here to Find Out Why Occidental System Is the Best in the World

The Orient stepped into the composing room of the EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER yesterday when Muang Than Tin, Burmese journalist and publisher, stopped in this city to examine the processes of a modern newspaper.

Clad in his native costume, he moved about amid the roar of the linotype machines and clattering machinery. He is a young man, small in stature, as are most of his race, with the brown skin and almond eyes of the Far East.

On his glossy black hair was coiled a turban of flowered silk, while from beneath his dark blue jacket hung a long shirt of the same material, bright with many colors. The design was like a Scotch plaid, and indeed the garment gave the effect of a Highland kilt carried down to its logical conclusion.

The only European item in his attire was a pair of black shoes of custom make, which he is forced to wear in this country because of the paving.

"I was educated," he said, in excellent English, "at Rangoon College, which is a native institution in Burma, India. I am here to study industrial processes in general and newspaper practice in particular. I am spending almost all my time in visiting different plants in this country."

"In Philadelphia I shall see several weaving and spinning mills, and I am anxious to learn American methods of sugar refining. These two industries are the ones which I should like to see developed in my country."

"Some time within the next month I shall return to Burma, where I am connected with the Than Tin Press Agency. It is a publishing house which prints nine newspapers, six in the vernacular and three in English. I am a Burman Buddhist by faith and a member of the Burmese Chamber of Commerce."

2 ARRESTED AGAIN FOR STEALING CARS

Recently Freed in Media, Autos Are Found in Garage They Rented

VAUCLAIN MACHINE THERE

After two weeks' shadowing by Detectives Helt and Stueckert, of the auto squad, Percy Rosenberg, who runs a poolroom at 6047 De Lancey street, and Fred Heckler, of Darby, were arrested yesterday in a garage rented by Rosenberg, at 7615 Dick's avenue, where the detectives found three stolen automobiles.

Rosenberg and Heckler were arrested recently at Media with three other men, charged with a number of auto thefts. The other three were convicted and Rosenberg and Heckler were discharged.

Police identified the three automobiles found in the garage yesterday as having been stolen from Samuel M. Vauclair, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works; Julius Peters, 624 Spruce street, and Joseph Stein, 1818 Passunk avenue. The detectives also found a number of automobile parts at the Dick's avenue garage.

Rosenberg and Heckler were arraigned before Magistrate Carson at City Hall today, and each held in $5000 bail for a further hearing next Friday.

FOILED ROBBER CARRIES OFF WOUNDED COMPANION

Alexander Goldberg Routs Two Men Trying to Break into Home

Early this morning Alexander Goldberg, twenty-eight years old, 105 West Chelton avenue, heard a disturbance in his back yard and, looking out the window, saw two Negroes attempting to break in.

He picked up a revolver and went out the side door. "What do you want here?" he said to the two men. One of them answered with a shot which struck a tree a few feet from where Goldberg was standing.

Goldberg fired back twice. One of the men fell with a groan. Goldberg rushed back into the house and summoned police, but when they arrived they found that one of the men had carried his wounded companion away.

Near the spot where the wounded man fell police found a blood-soaked handkerchief and spots of blood on the ground. They are watching all hospitals and doctors' offices where the man might apply for treatment.

Goldberg said he had been home only half an hour before he heard the men trying to break in. When coming home he said he saw two Negroes standing at the corner near his home. He believed they were the same two who tried to break in.

Goldberg, who is in the automobile business, lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Goldberg.

NEW FRIEND GETS HIS BAG

Casual Acquaintance Goes Off With Theatrical Man's Stuff

Max Ginsberg, a theatrical man, lost a traveling bag valued, with its contents, at $75 last night in a hotel near Ninth and Walnut streets, through a man he describes as a "casual acquaintance."

"I gave your bag to your friend," said the clerk. "He came down a short while ago and said you sent him for it."

Ginsberg and the police are looking for the casual acquaintance.

Ginsberg, who had been living at the Lorraine Hotel, went with a friend to the other hotel to close a business deal. They invited their casual acquaintance up to the room while they conducted their business. A short time later the casual acquaintance left the room, saying he would be back shortly. He did not return, and when Ginsberg went downstairs he asked for his traveling bag, which he had left with the room clerk.

Out of Darkness

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER

Well-meaning Editors have said that through my writings I have lifted Death out of a horrid state into a socially conversable subject, out of Darkness into Light.

Why should the funeral services of a beloved departed be dreary, mournful, tearful? Why make them a memorial of heartache and grief, instead of a memorial of pleasant thoughts, of a happy past, and a belief in a bright future?

There is nothing funeral in the Asher's Broad Street Chapel, 1309 North Broad Street. A service of understanding is held to comfort the living in honoring the dead. Come and see for yourself.

ALL HEP for the day of SPORT

AFTER ALL, is there any day on the old desk-pad like Saturday? The week's grind over—the office problems pigeon-holed in the office desk, your cares released like birds, and nothing ahead of you but life. Why, Saturday is dessert for the rest of the week!

AND WHAT better opportunity to buy clothes!

NO NEED to go to a football game when you can take part in one yourself. Dodge through the Saturday throngs on Chestnut street and go straight through the goal posts at Perry's. You'll make a gain worth cheering—savings of many dollars on every Suit or Overcoat. We're all in readiness for the Day of Sport with:

SUPER-VALUES in OVERCOATS and SUITS

33
38
and
DOLLARS

WE CALL especial attention to these first three prices. We have Suits and Overcoats for even more modest sums. But we have expended every ounce of our energy in an effort to buy, make and sell the best clothes obtainable at these prices at any clothing store, in any city. Judge for yourself how well we have succeeded.

WE'VE only one word of caution about the Suits at $43. If you are critical or in any way conceited about your personal appearance, these Suits will make you more so. And, of course, we wouldn't want that to happen, even though the savings on each Suit would make you a Life-Customer of ours. They're the sort bankers wear—ask to give them the glimpse.

WISE IS NOW WISER

Pays $2.50 for Target Practice With Unoffensive Goldfish

"Goldfish and moonshine are some combination," Joseph was told Magistrate Oswald this morning while awaiting his turn at the bar—of the court—for throwing a bowl filled with iridescent wrigglers from the third floor of his home at 2913 Girard avenue last night and nearly striking Patrolman Leyman.

When the deluge of water and fish had subsided Leyman arrested Wise. During the long hours of the night Wise lamented the sudden death of the fish by continually murmuring "The poor fish."

Magistrate Oswald gave Wise the choice of paying a fine of $2.50 or serving five days in the "boil." The fine was paid and the prisoner left, sadder but still Wise.

PHILADELPHIANS HONORED

Two Are Elected Directors in Child Hygiene Association

Two Philadelphians are included among the newly elected directors of the American Child Hygiene Association whose names were announced at the twelfth annual meeting of that organization, held yesterday in New Haven, Conn. They are Mrs. Charles F. Jenkins, of Germantown, and Sherman C. Kingsley, of 820 Woodbine avenue.

Dr. Thomas E. Fitzgerald, Superintendent of Public Instruction for Pennsylvania, presided at one of the two sessions held yesterday, when health education and rural problems were the subjects under discussion.
