COL. GREBLE NEW TARGET OF WATSON

Friends of Former Commander of 108th Field Artillery Indignant at Accusations

DENY BRUTALITY CHARGES

Colonel E. St. John Greble, a retired regular army officer, of this city, who commanded the 108th Field Artillery, Twenty-eighth Division, during the war, has been named in charges made by Senator Watson, of Georgia.

The Senator recently created a furore by his statements that American soldiers were hanged in France without a trial. Brutalities to soldiers under Colonel Greble's command were alleged in a letter read into the Congressional Record by the Georgian.

Colonel Greble, a West Point graduate, is now an official of the Baldwin Locomotive Works. He is returning to this country from Bucharest, Rumania, and cannot be reached for a reply to the allegations made public by Watson.

The letter the Senator read into the Record was said to have been written by Kenneth C. Robinson, of Washington, who was a private in the 108th Artillery.

Robinson's Letter

The letter follows:

"It was in July, 1918, that a private of the 108th Field Artillery was tied up to a tree by his wrists with a rope suspended over the limb, with only the balls of his feet touching the ground, and he was left in that condition from 7:30 P. M. until 3 A. M. the next day.

"There was a guard placed around him with orders to fire on whomever came close to him. He had never had any court-martial, and the only thing against him was going into a French town and getting too much wine on board. It was under the command of Colonel E. St. John Greble, 108th Field Artillery, Twenty-eighth Division.

"I also knew of Colonel Greble knocking a prisoner down while his feet were tied. The prisoner was on bread and water, I think, and the Colonel wanted the prisoner to work, which he refused to do, on bread and water.

"Colonel Greble bought about twenty dresses and forced the prisoners to wear them. He forced them to clean their teeth with soap and made them take cold shower baths at 4 o'clock every afternoon during the winter time."

Commends Colonel Greble

Walton Clark, now a lieutenant colonel in the National Guard, served as captain, and later as major in the 108th Artillery. He expressed indignation over the statements made in the letter. He commended Colonel Greble as a splendid officer, who kept fine discipline and who was popular with his men.

Colonel Clark said the incident of the soldier strung up by the wrists probably was greatly exaggerated. He said it is possible that a soldier who became drunk, violent and unmanageable may have been trussed up as an example.

As for putting prisoners in women's apparel, Colonel Clark said the letter probably referred to an instance when refractory soldiers were put in nightgowns to humiliate them for foolish conduct.

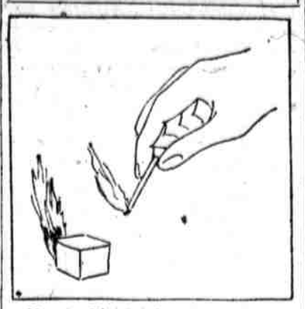
William R. Nicholson will be the guest of fifty-five friends and business associates at dinner tonight at the Ritz-Carlton in celebration of his thirtieth anniversary as president of the Land Title and Trust Company. Besides being head of that institution, Mr. Nicholson is president of the City Club, treasurer of the Y. M. C. A., and a director of many financial corporations.

After-Dinner Tricks



No. 4—Illuminating Lump Sugar

Now that sugar has come down in price, the following trick will prove a most perplexing problem.

A match is set to a lump of sugar, which ignites and burns with a slow, blue flame. When the spectators attempt to duplicate the feat, their efforts are unsuccessful—the sugar will not light.

To present this little mystery, one corner of the lump is secretly dipped into the ashes of a cigar or cigarette. It will then ignite when set to the lighted match; but those unacquainted with the secret will find the trick impossible.

HOPES FOR REAL PEACE

Dr. Paul Jones Talks on Arms Parley at Germantown

The Rev. Paul Jones, formerly a bishop of the Episcopal Church, and now head of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, spoke on "The World of Peace" today before students at the Germantown Friends' School.

Dr. Jones declared all should back up the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armament to the best of their ability, but the Conference alone cannot bring world peace. The spirit of peace must be shown by the world's peoples, he said, before it can become an actuality.

War, he said, is due to fear, jealousy, greed and rivalry.

KISSES FOR BRIDEGROOMS IS BAIT OF WOMAN JUSTICE

Mrs. Cecelia Champion, Just Elected at Somers Point, N. J., Hopes to Give Marrying Parsons a Run for Business

Somers Point, N. J., may become the new Gretna Green, with extra trains running day and night, all because on Tuesday's election, when Mrs. Cecilia Champion won the title justice of the peace.

Mrs. Champion, who is avowed to be "very handsome," and is almost thirty years old, has announced she will put the marrying parsons who kiss the bride out of business, because she is going to kiss all the bridegrooms. What could be fairer or more satisfactory (to the bridegroom) than that?

Mrs. Champion's husband, an undertaker, says he won't interfere because business is business.

"I think the groom is entitled to some consideration," she said, "and with every marriage ceremony he will get a big smack. He can have either a loud one, or medium, and in case of stage fright I will have a couple of attendants to hold him

"I have seen a lot of marriage ceremonies, and the groom is always nervous and blushing and has a terrible time finding some way of hiding his hands. I think a nice big smack square on the lips from a lady justice would put him self-consciousness at an end and restore his equilibrium."

Mrs. Champion admitted she might lose a lot of hair and receive many scratches from the bride, but she said she would take a chance.

So Mrs. Champion's business slogan of "One Big Smack for the Groom With Every Marriage Ceremony," may spell the downfall of Elkton, Md., unless Elkton can elect a prettier lady justice, and it is said that this would be hard to do.

But don't all start for Mrs. Champion's office at once. She will not get her commission until next May, but that will be just in time for the opening of the June season.

For more than 24 years, Philadelphia's most popular dessert-cake!

IVINS' were the first fine dessert-cakes available to every housewife in Philadelphia. Since 1897, they have been Philadelphia's first choice.

Of course, Ivins' cakes have been imitated. But their goodness has never been equalled.

Housewives know that Ivinssponge, for instance, contains only super-fine ingredients (tested eggs, clarified whole milk, ingredients such as you would use in your own kitchen) insuring purity, wholesomeness and rich flavor in this delicious cake.

Your grocer willingly pays more for Ivinssponge than for other cakes. He knows you will like it, and buy it more often. And you will.

A wholesome, tasty pudding for children

RECIPE:

Heat milk in a double boiler. Sweeten with sugar, then drop Ivins Lunch-on-Thins in the milk. Season with a little grated nutmeg and serve for lunch or dinner.

Ivinssponge Cake

Be sure to see the beautiful "75th Anniversary" Ivinspound Cake at our booth at the Philadelphia Retail Grocers' Food Fair, First Regiment Armory, Broad and Callowhill Sts., all this week and next. Four prizes will be awarded to visitors who guess nearest weight of this magnificent "birthday cake." Our booth is just inside the entrance, to the left. See the big cake—win a prize.
