

VARIED PLANS MADE FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Philadelphia Preparing Great Celebration Tomorrow—American Legion Posts Take Lead

MASS-MEETING IN ACADEMY

Tomorrow is Armistice Day—and plans are in order for making it the greatest celebration here since the bells and whistles and the shouts of the millions proclaimed the glad news November 11, 1918. Two big meetings will be held tomorrow evening commemorating the day.

One of these will be a mass meeting in the Academy of Music. A committee of 100 prominent citizens arranged the details. There will be speakers of national prominence, including Mrs. Forber Robertson Hale, who will speak on "England and America," Matthew W. Hill, of the Federation of Labor, and Colonel John Temple Graves, of Washington. The meeting will have for its purpose support of President Harding's plans for world disarmament.

The second meeting will be held in the Baptist Temple, Broad and Berks streets, in conjunction with the annual convention of the Philadelphia Sunday School Association. There will be a program portraying the horrors of war and several addresses. Among the speakers will be Prof. M. A. Honline, of the International Sunday School Association. Dr. Russell H. Conwell will conduct a short prayer service for the success of the Disarmament Conference.

The children will have their share in the general celebration, at least in the spirit of rejoicing, for schools will be closed tomorrow all over the city. Children will participate in many of the sectional celebrations, which will be held in all parts of the city.

There will be a marked religious observance of the day.

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, an organization embracing thirty Protestant communions throughout the country, has sent a message to all its members urging them to return thanks to God for peace.

Bishop Rhinelander has issued a pastoral to the Episcopal Churches, ordering that religious services mark the day. He will speak at a meeting in the Gracie Theatre under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, at 12:30 o'clock. Mayor Moore and his Cabinet have been invited. There will be music by the Lenten Service Choir of the Brotherhood.

Hundreds of women who did volunteer war work will attend a service at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning in Holy Trinity Church, Nineteenth and Walnut streets. The Emergency Aid, the Red Cross, the Navy League and the Women's Veterans Legion will take part. There will be religious exercises and a flag raising at the Peace and Faith Tabernacle, Twenty-second street and Hunting Park avenue.

Noon-Day Service for Business Men
At a luncheon of the Rotary Club, held yesterday in the Bellevue-Stratford, approval was given a plan whereby a non-sectarian service for business men will be held in this city tomorrow coincidental with the services at the National Cemetery at Arlington, in honor of America's unknown hero.

It is planned to have representatives of all creeds and sects present to conduct the service, which will be held from 11 o'clock to noon. A committee of thirteen was appointed to take charge of the matter and make all the necessary arrangements.

The plan was proposed by Harry T. Jordan, manager of Keith's Theatre, who has offered the use of the playhouse for the occasion. The idea was received with enthusiasm, and the committee rushed plans for the affair.

The students at the University of Pennsylvania plan a parade, headed by the University Band and members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps in uniform. The parade will be both a celebration of Armistice Day and a send-off for the Penn team, which is going to play Dartmouth Saturday.

There will be many sectional celebrations, one of the largest being that of the Eighteenth Ward. The Soldiers and Sailors' Welfare Committee of the ward will dedicate a memorial in Palmer Cemetery, in the form of a bronze tablet placed on a monument to those who gave their lives. Among the speakers expected are the Mayor, Franklin Spencer Edmonds and Captain Sterling Tate, U. S. Navy.

John Temple Graves will speak at a joint Bala-Cynwyd celebration, in which the community choral society and the school children will take part.

At Roslyn, Pa., a marker will be placed on the grave of Flying Cadet Arthur Triol Elsting, in the Hillside Cemetery. He was a member of the 101st class in the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, and was prominent in all student activities. He died in Camp Dick, Texas. Darby will have a mass meeting in the evening, sponsored by the William C. Greafus Post, No. 608, and preceded by a parade through Darby, Colwyn, and Collingdale. Lansdowne likewise is planning an elaborate celebration, at which George S. Graham will be the principal speaker.

WHO dat? That's a man.
Who? That's the piano tuner.
Why? Why what?
Why, jus' why? You mean the piano tuner?
Ess. I don't know what you mean.
Is he yere daddy? Who? The piano tuner?
Ess. Why no, of course not.
Is he mama's daddy? No.
Why? You mean why isn't he mama's daddy?
Ess. Why, because he ten't, that's why.
Hub? Because he isn't.
I like him.
Do you?
Ess. He has a big nose.
Sh-h-h. Not so loud.
HE HAS A BIG NOSE.
Hub, he'll hear you.
BUT HE HAS A BIG NOSE, DAD-DY. IT'S RED, TOO, DADDY.
Sh-h-h. You mustn't say that.

Why? Don't be like a big nose?
I don't know.
Why haven't you big nose, daddy?
Hush up, or you'll have to go to bed, Why?
Never mind why, keep quiet.
(Silence for a minute.)
Who's he doin'?
Who?
Him, panner tuner.
He's tuning the piano.
Tell him shut up boilerin' on panner, Sh-h-h.
HE MAKE ME SICK.
Not so loud, he'll hear you.
HE MAKE ME SICK.
Hush up.
I won't.
What did you say to daddy?
I will.
That's better.
I won't, I will, I won't, I will—
HE MAKE ME SICK.
Go out and play and keep quiet.
Why? (Etc., etc., etc.)
