COCHRANE MAY REGAIN GUARD POST AT PENN

Veteran Is Making Great | Fair Rooter Outlines Fight to Start Dartmouth Game; Backfield Uncertain for Saturday

JOE BIBEN IS INJURED

WALTER COCHRANE, Penn's husky lineman and veteran guard of the last two seasons, is making a determined fight to win back his Berth that Graf, a former scrub player, took last Saturday. To be on a team for two seasons and then to lose the post to a scrub has fired the big Arizona lad with the fight that usually tells. Yesterday Heisman sent Cochrane into his regular place for the first time since early last week, and the manner in which the big guard smeared the scrub opposition brought a gleam of joy into Gus Ziegler's eye. Cochrane was all over the field yesterday and, despite the slippery gridiron and his weight, made tackles that severa! men many accords lighter failed to make pounds lighter failed to make, Almost from the start of practice

Cochrane worked like a beaver, and when the scrimmage drill started he exhibited the kind of play that made him a star last scason.

THE coaches were non-committal about the position Cockrane is fighting for, but one of the mentors said that a continuance of yesterday's work would win him back his berth. This is Cochrane's last year at Penn and he is anxious to finish it out as a regular.

Big Gig Gentliner, the former Brooklyn Polytechnic star who labored on the second team on Tuesday, was back at his second team on Tuesday, was back at his old post yesterday and exhibited the same amount of prowess in stopping the scrubs as his side partner, Cochrane. He will probably get the call on Saturday over Pendleton, who held down the tackle in the offensive scrimmage drill on Tuesday.

Change in Line

The remainder of the line will be the same as started last Saturday with the exception of changes of position. John Thurman, the veteran tackle of last year's eleven who has been playing runrd most of this season, was switched back to his old post yesterday and will remain there for the remainder of the

Plays for Coach Heisman

Now that women are in politics, baseball and most every other sport, all that remains is a football strategist of that sex. Coach Heisman. of the University of Pennsylvania football team, thinks that she has

For the last month the head coach of the Red and Blue team has been receiving fifteen to twenty letters datly from followers of the football team, some with words of cheer, thers with advice and not a few of criticism. It remained, however, for one fair miss to band the ceach a real knockout. In yesterday's mail Heisman received a letter from a rooter, who signed herself "A Penn Rooter."

Instead of offering advice or condemnation, she made two diagrams in her letter outlining playsthat should prove successful to Penn. In one diagram, which is drawn with all the cleverness of a veteran coach, the letter writer has the halfback going around the end all alone and the other three backs to the opposite side of the line to "distract" the opposing team. The other diagram has a spread eagle formation that is a pippin The backs, except the quarter and full, dive for the center of the line to draw away the opposing defenses. Then, with the quarter showing in-terference, the fullback dashes madly through an opening that is made for him by the quarterback, who works all alone, and, according to the diagram, should not be molested on his trip through the opposing line. Simple but not easy.
