

THINK COUNCILMEN LACK POLITENESS

Pupils at Session Deplete Constant Interruption of Speakers—Give Weglein O. K.

HIT AUTO POUND PLAN

City Councilmen should have some elementary instruction in politeness and should not all talk at once, in the opinion of thirty pupils of the Edward T. Steels Public School, who had an afternoon of practical civics yesterday in the gallery of Council chamber.

The most impressive thing to the children, who were escorted by Isabella E. Adams, their teacher in civics, was the constant interruption of speeches and the clamoring among the Councilmen to get the floor.

"We never act that way," said one of the pupils, "when we conduct our own Council meetings at school. Whenever one of us is talking we are not interrupted until we are through. I think that would be a mighty good plan to introduce in City Council."

Emanuel Lowenstein, thirteen years old, of 4623 North Broad street, who is president of the class, said he "would tell at once" that President Weglein was a "well-educated man."

"I could understand everything he was saying," the boy declared, "except when he was interrupted, and that seemed to be often."

During the session when Councilman von Tugen attacked the "automobile pound" and said he thought the police could do more good for the city by spending their time hunting auto thieves, the children were quick to indorse his view.

"I think he is quite right," said Lowenstein; "we have too many petty rules and regulations that get us nothing and waste patrolmen's time which could be spent more profitably."

"I know," he said, "that the traffic problem is one of great proportions, but the establishment of an auto pound will never solve it."

The school children also expressed opposition to the argument of Councilman Limeburner, who wanted to allow city officials to park their cars around City Hall.

Dorothy Rouse, thirteen years old, of 1612 Blavis street, said: "Councilman Limeburner is wrong; there should be no special privileges. The city officials are no better than any one else, and if the city ordinances say automobiles cannot be parked around City Hall they have no more right to violate this than they have to violate the law against burglary."

The children remained until the end of the session and took an interest in every bill that was considered, and especially in the recommendation for a traffic semaphore at a corner near their school.
