PENN STATE MAKES 1921 TOURIST RECORD, TRAVELING 8500 MILES

Nittany Nomads Play Four Games Away From Home in Regular Season and Go to Seattle, Wash., to Perform on December 3

> By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

DENN STATE'S football team has carned a new nickname this year. Be-I cause of the exceedingly tough schedule, which called for games almost every place except Penn State, the eleven has used up several dozen mileage books and should be known as the Nittany Nomads. They always are going some place to play a football game. State is located in Center County, and Center County can be located by means of a large map, a compass and an experienced guide. It is a very hard place to get to, is State College, and for that reason most of the big games are played away from home. Heretofore the principal contests were with Penn in Philadelphia and Pitt in Pittsburgh. This year, when the Red and Blue decided that Bezdek's team was too strong for competition, other plans were made. Harvard was played in Cambridge and Georgia Tech in New York one week later. Now comes the Navy contest today, and on Thanksgiving Day Pitt will be entertained on Forbes Field.

Quite a traveling schedule for the college boys. However, it gives them a chance to study our transportation problems and excess fares from close observation, and also check up the railroad companies on their timetables to see that no towns are held out,

State started to play the grand old game of football 'way back in 1887. which is slang for thirty-four years ago. That year an elaborate and healthy, to say nothing of a strenuous, schedule of two games was arranged, both of them being with Bucknell. In those days a fifty-mile trip in carriages drawn by uncertain and short-winded horses was quite a jaunt. A couple of days had to be devoted to the trip.

Now take a look at the globe-trotters. Long journeys mean nothing. After finishing with Pittsburgh on November 24, the team leaves immediately for Scattle, Wash., to play the University of Washington on December 3. The Nittany Nomada will cover 6000 miles on this trip, which will give them a total of 8500 miles for the season. Try that on your victrola some time. No team will even come close to the record, except possibly Centre if the Southerners play in California on Christmas Day.

PENN STATE is doing a lot of touring, but not from choice. It is impossible to get good teams on the home grounds, so it is necessary

State Plays "at Home" Today

AS STATE is playing here today against the Navy, and the team is considered one of the best in the country, it might be well to mention that Franklin Field for twenty-four hours in State's home grounds. This answers the question asked by Ring Lardner in New York, viz.: "Has Penn State any home grounds this year?'

State usually was the visitor when stacked against Penn. The annual game was one of the features of the season and very popular, because it afforded the large number of alumni the only chance to see the team in action. Today will be another chance, and perhaps a better one, because the game with the Navy will go a long way toward determining the 1921 champlenship of this section.

The Nittany Nomads did not gain recognition on the gridiron until 1909. when Bill Hollenback first took charge of the football team.

Hollenback was not at Penn State in 1910 and the team suffered accordingly, but with his return in 1911 success once more crowned the efforts of the Nittany Lions. The 1911 and 1912 teams will long be remembered in the annals of football at Penn State, for both teams were undefeated after playing through the hardest kind of opposition. Hollenback continued at State in 1913 and 1914, but his efforts were not so successful in those last two years. During 1912, 1913 and 1914 Hollenback had as his assistant Dick Har-ow, star tackle on the 1908, 1909, 1910 and 1911 teams. Bill Martin, present track coach and trainer, who halls from Walla Walla, Wash., made his initial appearance at Penn State in 1913, and he has been there ever since.

WITH the departure of Hollenback, Dick Harlow took charge of the team in the fall of 1915, and continued in that position until he left for military service early in 1918. His 1915 team was a good one, giving Harvard one of its hardest games of the season.

Bezdek Took Charge in 1918

THE fall of 1918 was the S. A. T. C. year at the colleges, and Hugo Bezdek, former couch at the University of Oregon and manager of the Pittsburgh National League Baseball Club, was secured by Penn State as head of the department of physical education and athletics, where he soon launched his famous mass athletic movement that has been adopted by scores of colleges and universities since that time. He also coached the football team that year. winning one game, tying one and losing two. Not an auspicious start, every Penn State regular and substitute from 1917 was in military service and Bezdek had only a few green youngsters to nick from, The return of hosts of former stars who had been in military service brightened the outlook in 1919, and Bezdek began to force Penn State football to the forefront. After losing a heart-breaking early season game to Dartmouth, the Nittany Lions swept everything before them, ending the season n a blaze of glory by defeating the University of Pittsburgh 20 to 0. . . .

LAST fall was a repetition of the year before, except that not even one defeat marred the record. Two tie games score played, but they did not detract from the great record made by Rezdeli's eleven. The first four games of the present season have resulted in easy victorics for Penn State. but the hard ones are still to come, Copyright, 1821, by Public Ledger Company
