Nancy Wynne Talks of the Teas Held Yesterday Afternoon—Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Michell's Dance for Their Daughter at the Ritz-Carlton

It was very solemn and very beautiful yesterday—Armistice Day. Services in the various churches and at the Garrick and Academy of Music were crowded with men, women and children, and many hearts prayed for peace, which will bring about a lasting peace. No one wants more war so long as we live. Nor do we want our descendants to live through such years as we and the other nations of the world lived through in the great war.

The afternoon we all put aside our serious thoughts and went to the teas and parties for the occasion and had a wonderful time. It was nice that the Nixons and Donaghu's teas were both on Walnut street. It made it easy to get to them. The Nixon tea was the daughter of the Horace Nixons, of Woodbury. They have taken the Alton Kennedy's house at 2233 Walnut street for the winter and the tea was held there. I found Mary looking exceedingly pretty in a lovely frock of white fluff, which seemed to be veiled with silver and silver trimmings. She was holding pink roses in her hand and looked just like a rose herself. Mary is a graduate of Westover. She has light hair, brown eyes and a fair complexion. Mrs. Nixon looked charming in a gown of gray lace. Mary is a sister of Caroline Nixon, who came out a couple of years ago.

MARRIAGE was the theme of the Acorn Club, an always charming background for an affair of that kind. The rooms were decorated in yellow and bronze chrysanthemums and the bouquets included every kind of flower. Marian, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Donaghu, is as dark as Mrs. Nixon is fair. She has dark brown hair and a quantity of it, and her cheeks were like roses yesterday. Her frock was white broadcloth, a panel of the same material forming a short train and the tea was held on the skirt, while a large bow of chiffon was arranged at the other side. She was carrying orchids.

Mrs. Donaghu chose a gown of rose crepe chiffon, which was elaborately embroidered in red and blue panels of the material arranged at the hips. She looked extremely well. There were supporters for both the teas and the guests all went down to the Ritz-Carlton, where the Henry F. Michell's had a wonderful party for Helen, who is their daughter.

IF IT were possible to say which deb is the greatest favorite, I am sure we would have Helen Michell's name very often on our lips. Helen, who is now being introduced without an additional remark such as "Gee, she's a peach," or "Such an attractive girl, my dear," with such a charming manner from the older generations. And so she is. The dance was given from 9 until 2 o'clock, and the ballroom was almost jammed with American Beauty Blues and polkas.

Helen wore a frock of silver lace with in blue tulle and held at the waist with a circle of pearls. Mrs. Michell looked very handsome in a gown of black sequins over satin slip. After several days without tea, it was interesting to see the little bands once more and there was a great many to go, for Marian Donaghu had a large receiving party, and so did Mrs. Nixon. I saw Rosemary Howe at the party and she was very lovely. Margaret Hamilton and Amelia Seaman. They all were schoolmates in Springfield and graduated from there last year. And there were a number of other ladies.

I HEAR that the members of the Philadelphia Ice Skating Club are to be regularly taught to skate at their weekly meetings from 7 to 9 o'clock. It is said that a number of skating lasses will join in the early winter which always comes along about the middle of March. The club includes all ages, has a large membership and is great fun.
