

WIFE SEES TOTTEN, AFFINITY DOES NOT

Woman He Deserted Visits Him in Jail—School Teacher Denied Access

PLEA OF GUILTY EXPECTED

Dover, Del., Nov. 17.—Roger L. Totten's deserted wife and the school teacher affinity with whom he eloped two weeks ago were among the favored callers at the Kent county jail, where the former State educational official is awaiting disposition of the charges of non-support and desertion against him in behalf of Mrs. Totten.

The former obtained an interview with her recent spouse last night, prior to her departure from Dover today. The affair, Miss Margaret Hill, Sussex county school teacher, who arrived in town this morning, was denied access to the prisoner.

Disappointed by Sheriff Graham's refusal to give her entrance to the jail, Miss Hill had a conversation with R. H. Kenney, attorney for Totten, supposedly to secure from him some means of communication with Totten.

Subsequently, she saw Prof. J. J. Jupp, Assistant Superintendent of Education, who is in charge of the County Prison, and requested her to return to her school. To this Prof. Jupp replied that in the absence of the Holloway State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who is out of town today, he could give no satisfaction as to her status, but believed that if she would not be allowed to teach a school in Delaware.

Affinity's Request Denied by Sheriff. Miss Hill's appearance in Dover today was somewhat known to the town-folk. She came up from the station in a taxicab and went at once to the jail, where she sought admission.

Sheriff Graham told her she could not see Totten, but referred her to Deputy Attorney General Earl D. Wilcox. Miss Hill went to Mr. Wilcox's office and pleaded with him to permit her to see Totten, who also asked for the papers and by which the State will detain and the case is pending in Dover.

Miss Hill made no secret of the fact that she had made the case in the interest of her schoolhouse in Sussex county and that she would like to see Totten, who she believed was innocent.

It is believed that Totten plans to plead guilty to the desertion and non-support charges tomorrow or Saturday, and the court is expected to order him to pay his wife a specified sum every month and to give bond for compliance with the order.

Deserted Wife Sees Him. Mrs. Totten, in her last night at the jail, was accompanied by her father and two other friends, and the meeting took place in the presence of Sheriff Graham's posse. Her one object in seeing him before leaving Dover, she said, was to ask him to reconstruct his life and make a man of himself.

The meeting at first was with the entire party, but later all withdrew from the room except Mrs. Totten and her husband, then having a conversation alone. This, however, lasted only a few minutes, when she retired from the room. Another meeting of the party then had a brief conversation with the husband.

As the party was leaving the house part of the jail Totten peered through the window for a last look at his wife. Sheriff Graham, who was near him, thought he detected signs in the man's eyes, which led to his first indication shown by Totten of regret over his acts.

Mrs. Totten was visibly affected as she left the jail, although she here up under the ordeal.

SEEK BASIS TO END STRIKE. N. Y. Arbitration Bureau Trying to Settle Garment Workers' Walkout. New York, Nov. 17.—By A. P. Connelley of the State Bureau of Mediation and Arbitration are seeking today a basis for compromise by which to break the deadlock of the garment workers' strike, involving men and women. Efforts in this direction have been made by the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association, known as the "Trade-Unionists." A Peace Committee of 150 is being formed, in the expectation that the various interests involved may be induced to settle their differences before the making of spring goods starts in January.

The strikers were distressed by the announcement by Benjamin S. Westinger, of the International Garment Workers' Union, that members of the Women's Garment Manufacturers' Association in Philadelphia also had agreed to settle on November 21 against restoration of the piecework system.

PEGGY MARSH'S HUSBAND ACCUSED BY NEIGHBOR

Woman Says Johnson and Others Struck Her Because of Protest. New York, Nov. 17.—Albert Johnson, nephew of the late Tom L. Johnson and husband of Peggy Marsh, English actress, who came to America in 1920 to fight for a part of the fortune of the late Henry Ford, 2d, on behalf of his son, Henry Anthony Marsh, was held by Magistrate Corrigan, of the West Side Court, in $500 bail until tomorrow.

He was arrested yesterday on a complaint by Miss Mary Daly, who occupied a room in the Great Northern Hotel adjoining the Johnsons. Miss Daly alleged Mr. Johnson struck her after she had protested to the hotel management that they were giving noisy parties and interfering with her sleep.

"I didn't do anything wrong," said Johnson, who was accompanied by his wife when he went to the West Side Court to answer to the charge. "I merely walked into Miss Daly's room with my wife and two other people to call on her."

Miss Daly said the call was made at 1:45 o'clock Tuesday night, just as she and her friend, Miss Grace Bontelle, were preparing to retire for the night.

"We had just come in," said Miss Daly, "and left our door slightly ajar to get some air, when suddenly I flew open and in walked Mr. Johnson and two other men. Johnson was holding a lighted cigarette, crossed his legs and announced, 'Well, darling, here we are.'"

Miss Daly alleged that because she could not see a word, Johnson began pulling at the telephone and tore it loose. He then ran over to the table on which stood a box of cigars and threw them out of the window.

"I started to protest and he put me in the face," said Miss Daly. "After that Mr. Marsh spoke up and said, 'Well, I guess we've come tonight, let's go.'"

HANNA PLANNED TO WED FORMER SOCIETY BELLE. Miss June Evans' Identity Revealed When She Attacks Will. New York, Nov. 17.—The will of Miss June Avis Evans, named as beneficiary in the will of Don R. Hanna, who left an estate of $100,000, was seen today.

It revealed her as a former society belle of Evanston, Ill., who was to have become Hanna's fifth wife. In a letter to her mother, Mrs. Hanna, who had been living at the time of the testator's death, she suddenly left the place after the testator's death. Hanna had a marriage which terminated their engagement.

What caused the rupture between the millionaire and Miss Evans, who followed a stage career for a number of years, was not disclosed.

In marginal notations on the original document in which Hanna disposed of his $100,000 estate, Miss Evans was named as a beneficiary to the extent of an income of $25,000 a year for life, provided she did not marry. A large part of the personal property of the estate.

These notations were so phrased as to be readily discernible, but the names of the witnesses are fairly plain. On the top of the instrument there is a copy of a letter dated October 14, 1921, just fourteen days after Hanna and Miss Evans were parted.

A new development in the case is the assertion of Mr. Hanna's friends that he died embracing the Roman Catholic faith.

These, it is said, to be true, because he attempted to buy from his wife the shares of the stock of the Hanna Trust, which she refused to sell, and Miss Evans, actress, for his fifth wife.

One of the priests at the Catholic church, who said he knew of Mr. Hanna's death, said that his acceptance by the church would have included a declaration that his first marriage was his only true and lawful marriage, and that any further marriage would have been barred.

SEE NEW MYSTERY IN STEWART'S LIFE

Speedometer Multi-Millionaire Said to Have Settled Claim of Partner's Widow

WAS AT CLARK'S DEATHBED

Chicago, Nov. 17.—The strange career of John K. Stewart and his equally mysterious movements of his early business associates seem never to have been known by associates of his later years.

It is known that his first partner, Michael Conlon, changed his name to Thomas J. Clark, when Stewart dropped "K" and appeared as Stewart. Clark died in 1900. The firm was then known as Stewart & Clark.

Mrs. Martha C. Love, widow of Clark, and a son, Thomas F. Clark, are now living in Pasadena, Calif. Stewart was named executor without bond, and he paid the income from the $125,000 to the widow and her son.

Clark also was named. When Stewart died he began suit for $1,500,000 against his estate. She alleged Clark was his full partner and that the Clark estate was absorbed in the Stewart estate. It is said there was a settlement for $275,000 to the son and $125,000 to herself.

Then there is the mystery of the two wills. A will executed by Stewart in 1914 is here in the Probate Court. The outline of another will is in the Surrogate's Court at Riverhead, L. I. The two are contradictory.

In the first document he leaves $125,000 to young Clark, in the second the income from $125,000 until he reaches twenty-five years. The Long Island will disappeared mysteriously after Stewart's death. A Negro servant testified that she saw it and it was the same as the draft in Riverhead.

Stewart lived on Long Island during his last years. He paid income tax here. He never voted.

Chicago will fight for the inheritance tax, and will contend he was a resident of this city.

New York, Nov. 17.—How Terence O'Brien, before he had become John K. Stewart, millionaire head of the Stewart-Wagner Speedometer Corporation and the Twentieth Century step in its westward rush to let him reach the bed-side of Michael Conlon, who had been a friend of the "Three Musketeers" days, died, was told yesterday by the man who arranged with the railroad company for Mr. Stewart.

Frank M. White, New York representative of the Stewart-Wagner Speedometer Corporation, worked in close association with Mr. Stewart from 1907 until his death, and had known him several years before, he said yesterday, but never had the slightest idea that his name was not really Stewart.

"I never knew where he came from," said White. "He said little about his early days. I knew him and Clark when they first came to Chicago. They were good boys then."

Clark was killed in the Glidden Tour, at Bryan, O., in 1906. Mr. Stewart was a wealthy man by that time. When he heard of the accident he had the nurse's statement arrangements to have the Twentieth Century step at Bryan so he could reach there in time. He was at Clark's bedside when he died.

It was Clark's widow who claimed the money. Her son's name is Thomas Clark, which probably gave rise to the belief his still living.

DOWNFALL OF CIVILIZATION FORECAST BY CHURCHMAN

Methodists Urged to Awaken World to Sense of Great Peril. Detroit, Nov. 17.—(By A. P.)—The Christian church must awaken the people of the world to the fact that a great peril confronts mankind, that the downfall of civilization is not unthinkable, J. Stitt Wilson, of Berkeley, Calif., church lecturer, told delegates to the Methodist Episcopal Conference here today.

"The ruthless passion for gain and economic power in individuals and nations has eaten into the moral and spiritual fiber of the world," he said.

Roy A. Haynes, Federal prohibition commissioner and a prominent Methodist Episcopal layman, asked the church to continue its fight against liquor.

"The universal unrest of today is a blessing, because out of it will grow a better world for our children," the Rev. Earnest F. Fille, of Evanston, Ill., told the delegates.

Other speakers were the Rev. Lucius H. Bagbee, Minneapolis; David G. Downey, of New York, book editor of the Church, and Robert L. Kelly, head of the Church's educational work. The conference will end tonight.

Believe Youth Killed Parents. Saginaw, Mich., Nov. 17.—(By A. P.)—At the office of Prosecuting Attorney Crane, Charles E. Hoiges, Under Sheriff, planned today to swear out a warrant charging Richard Champlin, twenty-two years of age, with the murder of his father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Champlin, whose bodies were found in their partly burned home near Henlock last Monday night.

BLUEBEARD EXULTS AT SCORING POINT

State Admits at Trial Charges Are Based on Circumstances

ONLY INDIRECT EVIDENCE

By the Associated Press. Versailles, Nov. 17.—When the trial

What is 'A Blessing on Your Head'? ED. PINAUD'S HAIR TONIC of course!

of Henri Landru, called 'The Bluebeard of Gambala,' adjourned last evening until today the prosecution had made acknowledgment that it was basing its case on circumstantial evidence alone in charging that Landru was guilty of numerous murders.

"We have no direct evidence," M. Godefroy replied to the prisoner's counsel, "but the accumulative mass of circumstantial evidence is so strong that the prosecution is basing its case upon it."

Landru was exultant over the admission of Prosecutor Godefroy. With regard to the disappearance of women in Paris, Landru turned to the prosecutor and said: "I can point out 150 women taken from the morgue and buried in Potter's Field each year during 1915, 1916, 1917 and 1918.

The disappearance of Madame Buisson, the most prosperous of the eleven alleged victims of Landru, was taken up at the opening of yesterday's session.

Mme. Buisson's fortune, according to charges of the prosecution, amounted to about 18,000 francs, more than half the total that Landru is charged with having realized from the eleven murders for which he is on trial.

At the opening of yesterday's session, Judge Gilbert rebuked the levity which he said the French public had assumed toward the trial, and threatened to expel all spectators and hold closed sessions if they continued their attitude.

Contrary to other famous trials, in which interest has decreased as the hearings proceeded, the number of spectators in the courtroom yesterday was much larger and more select than on any day since the opening of the hearings. A member of the French Academy, theatrical stars and famous authors were present.
