

SAY SCHOOLHOUSE IS LIKE 'COAL BIN'

Overbrook Parents Assert Conditions in 62d and Lebanon Ave. Building Are Deplorable

'PUPILS' HEALTH IMPAIRED

Declaring that their children are attending "cellar classes" in a "cool, unventilated bin" which is dark and unventilated and endangers their health, parents of pupils attending the Overbrook Public School at Sixty-second street and Lebanon avenue are going to fight to have a new building.

More than 100 parents went to the school in a body and inspected it and declared conditions are deplorable. They charge that attending classes in the "cellar" has caused colds, impaired the sight and otherwise endangered the health of their children.

The school yard, according to the visitors, is nothing but a "pen of mud," while rubber boots are stamped with mud and worn, making them dangerous.

Parent associations are preparing an arrangement, which the cramped conditions make necessary.

Committee to Act

Nothing but a new school building will satisfy the Overbrook taxpayers, it is declared. When the committee visited the school they formed a parents' association, elected Henry F. Vache, 1156 North Sixty-fifth street, chairman, and organized him into a committee of twenty men and women to carry their case before the Board of Education.

Mr. and Mrs. Vache have been active in getting the present school building repaired. Mr. Vache has already named several members of the committee. Mrs. Vache said today she has refused to allow her daughter to attend classes in the "auditorium" as the room in the basement has been named by the school.

"My daughter's sight was becoming affected," she said, "and I was ordered by a physician to keep her out of the poorly-lighted room. We want a general protest against conditions at the school and I think after the next meeting of the parents all will refuse to allow their children to attend classes in the basement."

"Many of the children have suffered in health because of this improvised classroom and the health of one teacher whose health was virtually broken because she was in that room much of the time. There are now three "floating" classes which are being held in the basement. We have made repeated requests for a larger building or a correction of conditions but there has been no action.

Larger Building Necessary

"A new and larger building is absolutely necessary. An addition cannot be built to the present structure that would not leave space enough for grounds, nor would there be as much floor-space as is required by law. The Board of Education now owns a plot at Sixty-third street and Lansdowne avenue, which would provide room for a proper building.

"The next meeting of the parents will be held November 5 and it is expected that there will be some action after that."

Principal Talks

Miss Lillie G. Toole, principal of the school, says the best efforts are being made to care for the children in the overcrowded conditions. She said she had heard his information that the patrons of the school that lack of funds has prevented expansion of buildings except where absolutely necessary.

"There are more than 1200 children in this school," said Miss Toole, "and in order to take care of them all it is necessary to have six grades on part time. Without this arrangement the school would be unable to operate. The classes that are held in the basement are only lectures, and when classes as do not require close attention by the pupils.

"An addition was built to the school about seven years ago, which provided twelve new rooms, but two years after that some of the classes were on part time."

SEEK 17-YEAR-OLD ELOPER

Relatives of Brooklyn Girl Ask Philadelphia Police to Aid in Search

Grieved over the elopement of her seventeen-year-old daughter with a middle-aged Philadelphia man last Friday, the mother of the girl has refused to cut until she returns home.

The condition of the mother became so serious yesterday that the brothers of the missing girl, Alice George, 29 Strong place, Brooklyn, came here to ask local authorities to help her.

According to the brothers, Charles and Joseph, the missing girl is a Syrian and is the youngest of three children. She had been employed in a factory.

Last Wednesday Alice was introduced to a Philadelphia hunter or salesman by another girl employed at the factory. The man took her on an automobile ride and for dinner. She was apparently infatuated with him and told her mother about the affair.

The following day Alice met this man, whose name is unknown to her relatives, and they came to Philadelphia.

SPEAKS ON ARMS PARLEY

Delegates Must Have Inspiration of 'King of Kings,' Pastor Says

The present conference at Washington, proposed to bring about universal peace through disarmament, will come to nothing if it does not enter its callings with inspiration from the Prince of Peace and the King of Kings.

This was part of an address by the Rev. Thomas G. Pollock of the Oak Park United Presbyterian Church, delivered this morning before a meeting of Presbyterian ministers in Witherspoon Hall. The title of his address was "The Peace of Jesus Christ in the New Testament." Dr. Pollock's thesis was that since Christ is God the creator and the motivating force of the world, and attempt to correct the evils of the world without His inspiration is wasted effort.

HOUSE TAKES FINAL VOTE ON REVISED TAX BILL TODAY

Republicans Say They Have Enough Votes to Pass Measure

Washington, Nov. 21.—(By A. P.)—The tax revision bill was started today on the last lap of the extremely rough road it has traveled since the House passed it exactly three months ago. Several Republican leaders doubted whether it would reach its journey's end in time for the adjourning of this session of Congress on Wednesday night.

The measure, with its conference report, was before the House today, with approval leaders determined to send it to the Senate tomorrow with the final approval of their branch. Democrats were ready with a motion to recommitt the bill with instructions that certain things done in conference be undone, but proponents of the measure said they had the votes to defeat this motion and bring about adoption of the conference report.

Senate opposition is expected to be stiffer. Members of the agricultural bloc are not at all satisfied with what the conference did to certain features of the compromise program which they brought forward. The measure, however, has opponents are opposed to the measure and plan a fight on it.

While he finally has signed the conference report, Senator Smoot of Utah, one of the Republican Senate managers, is far from satisfied with what the conference did to certain features of the compromise program which they brought forward. He said today he would tell the Senate so before the conference report comes before the body.

While regarding its administrative features as a slight improvement over those in the existing law, Senator Smoot said it was not what the American people had been led to expect they would receive. He characterized the measure as a makeshift and said Congress would have to do its work over before very long.

GIRLS' MEASURE 'HEARTY' OF PHILA.

Golden Rule Yardstick Is Being Applied to All for Federation Drive

$621 A MINUTE NECESSARY

The measure of Philadelphia, figuratively at least, is being taken this afternoon by 200 Quaker girls.

Just after luncheon the girls, clad in a duplicate of the costume worn by Letitia Penn, daughter of William Penn, entered the central city streets armed with a yardstick. "The Golden Rule." Every citizen passing the girls is being stopped and asked if they have "measured up" the demands of the Welfare Federation campaign for $4,000,000.

The girls have been recruited from the "Golden Rule" Clubs and similar organizations affiliated with the work of raising the fund for the federated charities of Philadelphia. Society, club and college girls are numbered among the active girls taking part in the campaign. Walnut and central city streets in the effort to collect the $621 a minute which is necessary to make the campaign a success.

Pledges Will Be Accepted

No one is actually being measured, the yardstick being carried purely for the moral effect and each girl is instructed not to "hold-up" pedestrians. The demonstration is planned to bring personally to Philadelphia the need for "one cent" for charities.

All Saturday morning and Friday afternoon will be asked if they have "measured up" and if they have not they will be asked to contribute. The contributions can either be in cash or in the form of pledges. The girls will be walking throughout the city in terms to collect the money.

The team captains and members will meet tomorrow and Wednesday at 12:30 in the Bellevue-Stratford ball-room for a luncheon and reports.

How Cleveland Succeeded

How Cleveland has "put across" its community welfare drive—and Cleveland, it may be said, has had probably the most success in that line of endeavor of any city in America—was held here yesterday by Samuel Mather, Mr. Mather has been identified many years with the civic, religious and philanthropic interests in Cleveland.

Asked for his views on the welfare federation, Mr. Mather said: "A man or a woman may side-step the appeal of one charity, but it is difficult to refuse the appeal of many of them affiliated in one group. The people must be on one side of the line or the other, and if they are on the wrong side, they had better come across."

"I am not here to tell Philadelphians how to manage their own affairs. I am here to tell them the appeal of our philanthropic affairs in Cleveland—in case they want to know. I want to place at the disposal of Philadelphia the experience and information which we have gained during the fourteen years that have elapsed since the movement for welfare federation was begun in Cleveland."

We learned from observation and experience that five things can be accomplished with welfare federation. First, federation does not destroy the individuality of the participating organizations; second, it tends to free the managers of charitable agencies from financial anxiety and so enables them to improve the quality of their work and service; third, it substitutes fellowship for rivalry among the agencies and workers; fourth, it reduces the social welfare administration, and fifth, it increases the number of people who support welfare work."

To a question as to actual financial results, Mr. Mather replied: "No one of our organizations has had a deficit for three years, and we have increased the number of contributors to the welfare work of the community from 5000 to about 165,000."

HAPPY ENDING NEAR IN HUNT FOR CHILD

Mother's Four-Year Search Finally Brings Arrest of Deserter Husband

TOOK LITTLE GIRL AWAY

A mother's long search for her child approached the happy ending she dreamed of for four years when Willis W. Glessner, formerly of 1721 West Huntingdon street, was brought back to Philadelphia today from Youngtown, O., to answer a charge of wife desertion.

Glessner, reputed to be wealthy, is said to have left home April 13, 1917, taking with him his two and a half year old daughter, Miss Marie. Mrs. Bertha A. Glessner, his wife, began a long hunt to find her child.

Though Glessner did not bring the little girl back with him, the mother understands that she is in Cleveland, O., and hopes to find some legal method by which she can regain custody of the child.

According to Charles Walls, in charge of the Domestic Relations Bureau of the District Attorney's office, Mrs. Glessner interested District Attorney Rotan in her case, and since then has spent most of her time and money hunting for her husband and child. She came close to catching up with them in many occasions, but each time was just too late.

Meanwhile, Joe McClain, of the county detective force, was sent out to bring him back, but they passed each other on the way. Glessner walked into Mr. Watts' office at City Hall today, and when he revealed his identity was arrested.

According to Mr. Watts, Mrs. Glessner was only able to get hold of a tentative building and loan stock owned by her husband through the intervention of Assistant District Attorney Taulane, instructed by Mr. Rotan to prevent the transfer of the stock to a brother of Glessner under an agreement.

Mrs. Glessner said today that she did not intend her husband back, but did want the little girl.

FRENCH BLUEBEARD'S COUP PROVES TO BE BOOMERANG

Witness Contradicts Landru's Testimony on Two Vital Points

Yersailles, Nov. 21.—(By A. P.)—The dramatic announcement by Henri Landru last week that one of ten traitors, for whose murder he is on trial here, lived at a Paris hotel six months after her alleged murder today proved to be a boomerang.

The prosecution, at the opening of the third week of the trial of the "Bluebeard of Gambais," in the Assizes Court here, said a police investigation had shown that Madame Heon, the alleged victim in question, had never lived at the address Landru gave, but that instead they had found a wife and child.

This witness appeared today and testified that Madame Heon had lived with Landru at one of his numerous apartments where the prisoner previously had testified she never had been.

The witness also contradicted Landru's assertion that another of his alleged victims, Madame Gillin, had been seen alive after the date when the prosecution alleges she was murdered.

LEGALITY OF THE SHIMMY WILL BE TESTED IN COURT

Chicago Witnesses to Testify That Dance Is Immoral

Chicago, Nov. 21.—The courts will be called to decide whether dancing the "shimmy" in extreme forms is illegal in Chicago as a result of a series of raids conducted by the police yesterday. A score of cabarets, gambling houses and saloons were invaded by the police in the most concerted drive launched against them in many months.

It is planned to prosecute under a seldom-invoked law which makes any person producing or taking part in an immoral dance subject to a $200 fine or a year's imprisonment.

Officials say they had witnesses who would testify the "shimmies" was immoral.

It was intimated that another candidate would be presented from New York. He said, however, that Senator Calder and other New York political leaders had endorsed Baruch.

There also were intimations that Ellis Loring Dresel, recently appointed charge d'affaires for the United States at Berlin, might be made the permanent minister to Austria.
