

Evening Public Ledger

PUBLIC LEDGER COMPANY
CYRIL H. K. CURTIS, President
John C. Smith, Vice President
Charles E. Smith, Secretary
Philip S. Coe, Jr., Treasurer
George S. Goldhamer, William E. Smith, Directors
DAVID R. SMILEY, Editor
JAMES J. HANCOCK, General Business Manager
Published daily at Public Ledger Building
Independence Boulevard, Philadelphia, Pa.

WHY IT WAS STOPPED
COINCIDENCE DEVELIN'S explanation of why the survey of the Municipal Court by the Bureau of Municipal Research was stopped might not be a very convincing one to people thinking about what the Job Commission is doing.

Mr. Develin says that the agents of the bureau began their work in the accounting department. They found so many clerks employed there that they had to take turns working. If they all worked they got in one another's way.

Mr. Develin himself made an investigation of the probation department on his own account. He found 200 probation officers on the payroll, with only seventy of them employed in the Juvenile Department, where the need for probation officers is greatest.

THE NEW ACADEMICIANS
JOSEPH PENNELL, now Johns. Owen Wister as a representative of this city in the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

AN INCONSPICUOUS PEACE
INCONSPICUOUSNESS is not ordinarily regarded as an attribute of a proclamation. The formal assertion of the restoration of peace with Austria is the exception.

GRIDIRON MYSTERY
THE "gridsiron game" of Albee's wind-blown, in which everybody won, presented a simple problem in proportions compared with some of the puzzles of football this season.

THE CLOVE-PINK CANDIDATE
THE appearance of campaign buttons bearing a white carnation on a blue ground, with the inscription "For Governor," has set the uniformed to wondering what candidate was seeking the nomination under this sign.

PREFER PEACE TO WAR
THE patriotic and high-minded address of Charles M. Schwab upon disarmament ought to correct to some degree the thinking of the people who have been insisting that the manufacturers of war material would fight every plan proposed to do away with war.

A NEW SLANT ON CANAL TOLLS
WHILE the bill for exempting American coastwise ships from Panama Canal tolls rests in obscurity, it is permissible to note the emergence of a new argument against its adoption.

Strange Oversight
Germanly was asked to bank-rupt the Overseas Trust Co. in the United States. German Minister of Finance, which is strictly in accordance with what appears to have been the plan of German statesmen and financiers.

SHORT CUTS
It is a far-drawn problem that faces the London conference. The year 1921 will go into history as the meteorological freak of the ages.

Trade Is Upset
"Where do we stand? Importers in this country are able, through intermediaries, to buy in Germany, and the values at which those goods can be laid down in the United States are far below the cost of manufacture in this country.

What Do You Know?
1. Who was Mother Goose?
2. What is the highest mountain in the world?
3. Who is the head of the Italian delegation to the Disarmament Conference?

Answers to Saturday's Quiz
1. James Madison was President of the United States during the War of 1812.
2. Geography is the science and art of map engraving.

AS ONE WOMAN SEES IT
Matter of Begging for Others Helps One to Realize the Plight of Those Forced by Circumstances to Plead for Themselves
By SARAH D. LOWRIE
THE air has been full of the word budget. Those of us who have been weifaring for the Federation have worked it hard.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

Mr. Schwab announced that he would scan his great gun foundry at Bethlehem in the interests of peace if it were necessary. No man, he said, would lose more than he if the building of battle-ships were stopped, but he hoped it would never be necessary to build any more of them.

ANSWERED

HUMANISMS

By WILLIAM A. HERTHORN DU PUY
MR. FRANKLIN ADAMS, counselor of the Pan-American Union, who has climbed every mountain in the Andes, was introduced by Mr. Stuyvesant Mott to a group of men who assured Mr. Adams that the latter gentleman also knew all objects Latin-American by their first names.

Mr. Adams asked Mr. Morley, "I am a gliffer?" "I'm m-n," said Mr. Adams, interrogatively. "A gliffer?" "Yes," said Mr. Morley, "for the Carnegie Institution."

Mr. Adams asked Mr. Morley, "I have worked as a gliffer for many years. Mexico, Central America, Egypt and the Near East?" "As a gliffer," repeated Mr. Adams.

Mr. Adams asked Mr. Morley, "I have worked as a gliffer for many years. Mexico, Central America, Egypt and the Near East?" "As a gliffer," repeated Mr. Adams.

Mr. Adams asked Mr. Morley, "I have worked as a gliffer for many years. Mexico, Central America, Egypt and the Near East?" "As a gliffer," repeated Mr. Adams.

Mr. Adams asked Mr. Morley, "I have worked as a gliffer for many years. Mexico, Central America, Egypt and the Near East?" "As a gliffer," repeated Mr. Adams.

NOW MY IDEA IS THIS!

Daily Talks With Thinking Philadelphians on Subjects They Know Best

C. W. ASBURY
On American Valuation Plan
"WE HAVE never before confronted a situation such as we now have affecting our international commerce," says C. W. Asbury.

Trade Is Upset
"Where do we stand? Importers in this country are able, through intermediaries, to buy in Germany, and the values at which those goods can be laid down in the United States are far below the cost of manufacture in this country.

Ballad of Dead Authors
IN BATHOOD'S pleasant hours, beside our underneath the creaking apple trees, in fancy I adventured, page and squire, with Walter Scott's emblazoned companions.

What Do You Know?
1. Who was Mother Goose?
2. What is the highest mountain in the world?
3. Who is the head of the Italian delegation to the Disarmament Conference?

Answers to Saturday's Quiz
1. James Madison was President of the United States during the War of 1812.
2. Geography is the science and art of map engraving.

Answers to Saturday's Quiz
1. James Madison was President of the United States during the War of 1812.
2. Geography is the science and art of map engraving.