

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

"Dame Instinct" By DADDY

Winter is near, but Jack and Janet are surprised to hear a bird singing in the big woods.

CHAPTER II The Wheelless Auto

JACK and Janet looked with astonishment upon the little old woman they had met in the big woods.

"Who did you say you are?" asked Jack. The little old woman giggled.

"I am Dame Instinct, the fairy godmother of the birds," she answered. "It is something that birds and beasts have that tells them what to do."

Jack and Janet looked doubtfully at the basket. "I seem foolish for them to get into it, and yet they didn't like to offend Dame Instinct by not doing as she wished."

At once the basket began to wobble. It shook like an auto that has just been started. Then it began to lurch and carrying Dame Instinct and Jack and Janet on a queer bobbing, bouncing journey. It took long leaps, touched the ground lightly and leaped on again. But swift as the wheelless auto ran, the fairy godmother could not catch the singing bird. The songster always kept out of sight.

After awhile the bounding basket came to the tree where Perky Squirrel had his nest.

"What a wheelless auto!" cried Dame Instinct. At once the bounding basket came to rest.

"Perky Squirrel! Come out of your nest and answer my questions!" cried Dame Instinct. Perky Squirrel at once popped his head out of his nest far up in the tree, and when he saw who was calling him he flashed down the tree and stood up before Dame Instinct.

"First class in nature study," she cried out. "Perky Squirrel, why do squirrels put on thicker fur in the fall?"

"S-s-s-o t-t-they will keep warm in the winter time," chattered Perky Squirrel, stammering badly.

"Have you put on your heavy undergarments?" demanded Dame Instinct. "Y-y-y-es, in-m-m-m-am," stammered Perky.

"And have you got in your winter's supply of nuts?" demanded Dame Instinct. "Y-y-y-es, mam-m-m-am," again stammered Perky, then he gave Jack and Janet a sly grin.

"These children helped me," and Perky Squirrel chuckled, for he had tricked Jack and Janet into filling his storehouse with nuts.

"Good," said Dame Instinct. "Now, as you know everything that is going on in the forest, tell me who that singing bird is."

But Perky Squirrel just grinned and flaked away.

"That's a joke," he chuckled. "That's a joke. I cannot tell you, because I am not a tattletale. You will have to find out for yourself."

(Jack and Janet go farther into the woods with the fairy godmother of the birds and beasts, and there they find a creature that scares the children, as will be told tomorrow.)

We are pleased to announce that 750 entries of fudge were received at our booth at the Philadelphia Food Fair.

While every one was unable to win a prize, every one has the satisfaction of knowing that the fudge she made is helping to brighten Thanksgiving for some crippled or needy child. The entire supply of fudge was delivered to the following institutions:

- Methodist Orphanage, Belmont Avenue near City Line, Phila., Pa. Foster Home, 24th and Poplar Streets, Phila., Pa. St. Edmond's Home for Crippled Children, 44th and Haverford Aves., Phila., Pa. University Settlement House, 26th and Lombard Streets, Phila., Pa. Lincoln Day Nursery, 18th and Bainbridge Streets, Phila., Pa. North American Sanatorium, Ventnor, N. J.

We take this opportunity of thanking our many friends for their kind interest in this competition. Checks will be mailed within the course of a few days. Contestants not receiving prizes will be mailed a small gift novelty.

Packard CLEARANCE OF USED CARS

November 21st to 26th

A successful year in the automobile business today is invariably accompanied by a used-car problem. Naturally, our stock of cars taken in trade is unusually large. It is imperative that we reduce it.

The logical solution lies in price reductions, notwithstanding the assumption of a loss, to clear our floors at once. Our decision has been made. Obviously this creates an opportunity for you to purchase a dependable used car at a price that cannot be equaled in all the city.

These cars were but recently in the hands of new Packard buyers; men who exercise care in the use of an automobile. Not only are they underpriced, but they are mechanically right and attractive in appearance.

You may be sure they will serve you in such a way as to sustain our good name and reputation, which are far too priceless to be risked on a single misrepresentation of a used car.

Among the different makes of cars offered at this sale are:

- Apperson Hupmobile Peerless Biddle Jordan Pierce-Arrow Buick Maxwell Premier Cadillac Mercer Standard Chalmers Moline Knight Stanley Chandler Oldsmobile Studebaker Dodge Overland Stutz Franklin Packard Vim Hudson Paige Willys-Knight

Terms May Be Arranged if Desired

This sale will be held in our Main Showroom, on Broad Street, and we will remain open in the evenings for your convenience.
