

DRINK-CRAZED MAN ALARMS HOSPITAL

Fells Aged Attendant With Iron Bar Twisted From Cell at Hahnemann

RUNS WILD IN CORRIDORS

An elderly orderly was injured and the lives of a doctor and a nurse threatened just after 1 o'clock this morning when a drink-crazed patient ran wildly through the Hahnemann Hospital.

The man, Thomas Zeff, of Franklin and Vine streets, was brought into the hospital in a serious condition from the effects of liquor and confined in a cell used for such cases.

James Calanan, the orderly, who is sixty-four years old, heard noises in the cell and started to investigate.

After striking the orderly, Zeff rushed into the accident ward. Here the night superintendent, Dr. Joseph W. Small, and a nurse were on duty.

When they arrived Zeff had fled to the street.

About two hours later Detective Montague, of the Tenth and Buttonwood streets station, found Zeff hiding under a pile of blankets in the home of friends at 812 Callowhill street.

He was in $1500 bail at Central Station for a further hearing a week from today.

PATROLMAN ADMITS PERJURY AT TRIAL

H. F. Blaker Suspended and Ordered to Answer Charge

One patrolman was suspended and will be forced to stand trial for perjury and another restored to duty by Civil Service Commissioner Woodruff at a hearing of the Police Trial Board today.

Mrs. Frances Turpin, of Germantown, charged the two patrolmen with "conduct unbecoming officers," in talking with her ward, Marjorie Bassong, twenty years old, formerly an employee of the Sears-Roebuck plant on the Roosevelt boulevard.

Blaker flatly denied even knowing the girl until his story was contradicted by both Miss Bassong and Erb, and then he admitted he had been guilty of perjury.

Marian Purziski keeps a saloon at 1230 Chestnut street, Camden. He told police today a weird tale of the manner in which his place was held up, late last night, and robbed of $120.

"Never mind your brother," said the sergeant. "How about this customer?" "Well, sergeant, he is a most graceful man. He waxes his arms so, and so, and so. Then he says something to me in German. I do not talk German.

"Then he says to me, 'It's a nice night, ain't it?' and he says it in Polish. Maybe I'm not pleased. So I talk to my customer in my own language, and he talks well. Yes, he talks very well.

"So we become chummy, sergeant, see. We go over and sit down at a table and my new friend tells me what a nice place I have, and he tells me in Italian. This is very fine, sergeant, for I, too, know a little Italian. My brother, he—"

"Still my friend talks, still he is graceful. Oh, so graceful. I seize the table edge, and I glare at him. The table, he seem to move up and down. Then my friend talks in Hungarian.

"What was your friend's name?" inquired the sergeant.

"He said his name is Svengali, but I know him not," answered Purziski.
