Nancy Wynne Talks of the Graham Tea—She Attends the Monday Morning Musicals at the Bellevue-Stratford—Miss Arnett to Hold Exhibition

The Graham tea was an attractive affair, and Gertrude looked awfully well. She had one of the dearest dresses I have seen this season. It was so simple and had such exquisite lines and yet was so youthful. It was French, I'll stake my word on that, and it was of soft, white crepe de chine embroidered in silver, and had a grille of silver with feathers all over it.

and finished with a rather narrow trim at the other. Mrs. George Dallas Dixon wore a black gown and her rather icy face was topped with long French veil. Mrs. Ralph Derr looked handsome in a black fur coat trimmed with squirrel.

Gertrude, like her sister Lorraine, who married Mr. Bacon, of Milwaukee, has part in a number of Shakespearean plays. She is also an extremely good dancer. I suppose she will join the Players and I know she has not already. Lorraine joined the year she came out, and I remember how remarkably she played in that old Chinese play they gave at the Little Theatre when she was the mistress of the Willow Pattern china.

Daddy went down to Atlantic City for several days after an attack of grip, and when he returned home small Charles, aged three, trotted upstairs to his room after him, and stood there watching him as he dressed for dinner. Finally he remarked: "Daddy, 'm awful glad you're home again." "Are you," said Dad: "Why?" Charles smiled sweetly as he answered in a soft and confidential small voice, "Cause I like you."

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison S. Morris, of the Annex, Oak Lane, will entertain at the Annex on Friday evening, December 2, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Morris. Finally he remarked: "Daddy, 'm awful glad you're home again."

I WAS so interested yesterday to hear that Eleanor Arnett had been doing such fine artistic work. I am told and is having an exhibition of her work at the Plastic Club opening with a private view and tea next Tuesday afternoon and lasting through the week, including Tuesday afternoon.

Charles Francis Griffith, who you remember was Beatrice Fox, and Mrs. Alice Kent Stoddard will preside at the tea table at the club tea on Tuesday afternoon.

I understand several thousand invitations have been sent out. Eleanor is the daughter of Mrs. William Woodard Arnett, of 2118 Pine street, and a sister of Dr. John Arnett, who married Katherine McCollin last spring. Mrs. Arnett has much to do with things musical in this city. Eleanor has been in California for some little time.

The first of this season's Monday Morning Musicals at the Bellevue-Stratford, which Mrs. Harold Yarnall started a number of years ago, was held yesterday and Miss La Salska was the soloist. The prima donna, who is lovely, wore a beautiful gown of old rose velvet made with a round neck and plain bodice and skirt. There were two wing panels of the velvet down the side of the skirt, and golden bronze sequins in a design were placed at the top of the panels just below the waistline.

There were a great many people there. Mrs. Bertram Lippincott had five guests in her box, and with Mr. Van Rensselaer were Miss Anne Meigs, Mrs. Robert Sturgis and Mrs. Schuyler Warren, of New York, who has been here visiting Miss Meigs and Mrs. Sturgis. Mrs. Warren was handsomely dressed in black broadcloth, topped with a straight-trimmed hat of black, trimmed with rather stiff wings.

Mrs. Warren was wearing a smart in a sports suit of gray plaid and a small, round hat of gray braids. Mrs. James Winsor, Jr., looked extremely well in dark blue. Her hat was a combination of velvet and she wore drop earrings made of a reddish brown mineral which were extremely effective.

Mrs. Churchean was wearing a dark tulle and a rather small hat trimmed with ostrich feathers. She was the guest of Mrs. George Lorimer, who wore a black velvet frock with black and gold trim in sleeve ends, and a hat made entirely of black velvet which was very becomingly looped at one side.
