Jesse Guilford Says Movement of Head Means Movement of Eyes, Which Throws Off Every Other Motion in Stroke

By JESSE P. GUILFORD nateur Golf Champion of the United States HERE are several maxims in golf which are very well known, the most

A which are very well known, the most popular one being "Keep your eye on the ball." Next to that we hear, "Keep your head down."

A dubbed drive is usually the result of the eye wandering from the ball. A shadow, a speck, anything which might attract the affention at the time of driving, is likely to be futal if the greatest concentration is not practiced. This might bring the question to the the concentration which is needed?" remember distinctly of having read a good many years ago that a golfer of note asserted that he could play a good game of golf blindfolded.

Probably Didn't Work

N ORDER to support this contention he was one day blindfolded on each tee after making his address, and with these olds against him he indulged in a match. Whether he was beaten or not I do not know, but I have a very good idea that he was. The point which this professional wished to demonstrate through this act was that it is not necessary to keep the cre on the ball provided the swing is it good form and the timing perfect.

My own view of the matter is that "Keep your head down" is practically the same as "Keep your eye on the be willing to gamble that a good many ball," and for this reason.

With a movement of the eye there is: movement of the head; perhaps only a sufficient to realizing it, playing contrary to their throw every other motion in the stroke teachings. off. The head, if it is kept still, insures the body against swaying or jerk-ing and is a guarantee on a well-timed

MY INITIAL attempt at playing Mein front of a gallery was an erent which I shall never forget, for on that ausnicious occasion I topped the ball off the first tee.

DO NOT know just what caused I this catastrophe, but I later rea-moned it out as being the result of hitting my head. There was undoubtedly a shadow which flickered across my path. or a whisper from one of the gailery, which took my attention, and the ratsing of my eye for a fraction of a sec-ond, or perhaps I might say the lifting of my head, was sufficient to completely unbalance my swing and the topping en-

Even though the same iden is conrered by the two expressions, "Keep your eye on the ball" and "Keep your head down," there is no harm in both being taught the prospective golfer, for the importance of either one of the maxims cannot be overestimated. If the eyes are on the ball the head is bound to be still, and if the head is till the eyes are undoubtedly on the

THE question then arises, "After the balt is on its way, shall I then keep my eyes on the spot where

COME professionals teach this doc-O trine, but why I cannot understand, To keep the eyes on that spot would mean that the head would be retained awkward and unnatural position which would interfere with the follow-

In the follow-through the body and head should follow along the line of the flight at the ball, and if the eyes are on the spot where the ball was it means that the body is moving in advance of

As a matter of fact what should be done is at the moment of the impact the body should continue to swing and the eyes should pick up the flight of the ball. This would, of course, cause the head to move in the same direction as the body, and the result would be a batural and easy follow-through.

by "Jake" Schnefer, of Chicago, 400 to 26, in the international tournament being held here. The victory gave Schnefer a tie with Hoppe for first place, and the title will be decided in an extra contest to be played tonight.

The defeat not only was Hoppe's first in years but also the worst beating in the play-off between Hoppe and he has ever received. Since he became Schaefer tonight, follow: internationally famous as a billiard . Home player, the champion has lost but three Schnele tournament contests. In 1908, Jake Continua Schaefer, the father of last night's winner, defeated Hoppe 500 to 425. In 1912 Koji Yamada, the Japanese, won from the champion 500 to 497.

During his career as world titleholder Hoppe has defeated every player of importance in the world, and was looked on as unbentable. He is thirty-four Yale Tackle Has Played Varsity ears old and Schaefer is twenty-six. The inning score:
