PENN STATE RANKED FIRST AMONG TEAMS IN EASTERN SECTION

Nittany Eleven Had Harder Schedule and Played Best Football, Says Bob Maxwell—Lafayette Is Placed in Second Position

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL
Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

THE 1921 football season which has just ended furnished the usual thrills and upsets that usually characterize the greatest of all outdoor sports. Good teams which had pleasing prospects at the start of the schedule did not look so good after a few games were played, and others seemed to improve with age. Now that everything is all washed up and only a few exhibition contests remain, it is time to award the championship to the team which has won the most games and which has played the best football.

Every year a few of the national champions step out on the scene, hand out their official gear, and then disappear. However, there is nothing new about this. The teams which have been successful in the past are ready for the making of the first team trophy in the East, according to our idea.

Having seen a big number of the Eastern teams in action at close range, in the capacity of a critic, I have taken the liberty of submitting the following:

- 1. Penn State
- 2. Lafayette
- 3. Cornell
- 4. Harvard
- 5. Washington and Jefferson
- 6. Yale
- 7. Navy
- 8. Princeton
- 9. Pittsburgh
- 10. Syracuse

Penn State is the most deserving Eastern champion. It has the best record, the most consistent play, and the best football. It has defeated all its opponents, and has played the best football of any team in the East.

When Harvard was defeated by Penn State, it was a great disappointment. Harvard had a great season, and was expected to win the championship. However, Penn State's defense was too strong for Harvard's offense.

LEONARD IS SORE AT N. Y. COMMISH

Champion Threatens Not to Defend His Title Unless Rules Are Changed

BENNY GIVES REASONS

By LOUIS H. JAFFE

BENNY LEONARD has started a little "war" all his own in New York. This means, and it is intended by the champion, that he will not be seen in action there—much, until the commission changes some of its rules. The titleholder's grievance is against the new controlling body in Gotham which will result in the championship more often in Philadelphia rings and other places where the art of fistcraft is practiced.

Having decided absolutely that he will not defend his lightweight crown under the present code of the New York State Commission, the only chance of Leonard's leaving the city will be against some weighty, in other words, a number of reasons for taking this stand, and he is not at all backward in mentioning at least some of them.

It is true that Leonard is angry to see the title of the light eight withdrawn from his name, but he is not angry because of the commission. Leonard does not like the idea of having his title decided away from his home, but he is not angry because of the commission. Leonard does not like the idea of having his title decided away from his home, but he is not angry because of the commission.

Money Reason
The "secret reason" isn't the real reason for Leonard being "all burnt up" with the commission. Leonard is a regular champion and has no fear for any of the eight titles hanging on his trail at the present time, despite the fact that he is fighting for the title of champion of the world.

Interpretive Rule
This rule, as Leonard interprets it, means that in addition to him and his opponent, the referee is to be a judge. ## WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FRIEND

Golf Beginner Must Not Ignore Slogan, "Slow Back"

Distance Is Prime Essential With Wood, Says Guilford, Who Maintains Full Swing and Speed Must Be Acquired Gradually

By JESSE P. GUILFORD
Amateur Golf Champion of the United States

THERE are two principal objectives to be attained in the play of the golf club. In the former distance is the main issue, whereas direction is of lesser importance, and in playing with the iron distance is sought above everything else.

In driving the full swing is used. The full swing varies with different players. In my case I draw my club back slightly less than horizontal, and I do not go back as slowly as the majority. It is not that I do not value the slogan, "slow back," for I do, and this point in his instruction, it is thought by a good many authorities on the game that in swinging the club beyond the horizontal one loses control of the club.

Limit Swing
A player knows his limit, and I agree with those authorities who say that the club has to be taken back far enough to permit the wrists to get under, but as I explained in a previous article, I disagree that the wrists should not go to the limit of their range, when the player is willing to pay for them.

ANOTHER SHIFT IN EASTERN LEAGUE

Coatesville Five Will Likely Move to Atlantic City in Few Weeks

TO PLAY ON GARDEN PIER

ANOTHER Eastern League basketball franchise is scheduled to be transferred in the near future.

According to reliable reports the Coatesville team will move toward Atlantic City in a few weeks and there is every reason to believe the same, as few cage officials thought the team would finish the season on the home rink, owing to the depressed industrial conditions in that section.

Manager John Beliney is said to have arranged for the team to play at the Garden Pier, to place the big leaguers on the Garden Pier and everything is virtually arranged, except the consent of the Eastern officials to the deal.

This is expected to be forthcoming at a meeting to be held in several days. The Eastern officials have discussed the matter, and virtually every manager in the circuit has asked for a special meeting to be held.

Will Myers, of the Phils, wants the official sanction placed on the removal of his club to the Lee Palace, and the league managers would like to know when the New York giants are going to resume playing at home. They are playing only traveling games at present, having called off the home contests until a new hall is secured.

Potters Two Games Ahead
The Trenton club still holds a two-game lead over Camden and there will hardly be any change in the positions of the leaders this week. The Potters meet Coatesville at home on Friday and have a fine chance to run up another record score and then go to Atlantic City on Saturday. The Barons are in and out, but of course may provide an upset, especially with Bernie Dorn out of action.

The Skeeters draw the Phils at home on Wednesday and if Joe Fogarty takes charge by that time may only the Corson-Helm combination. The Jerseyans are booked to meet the New York Giants on Saturday, but the managers are without a home at present.

There are only three teams that have played any kind of ball so far, these being Trenton, Camden and Scranton. No other club has a chance for the first half home, and it is an assured fact that one of this trio will be crowned winner.

The season in the Manufacturers' League is meeting with wonderful success and there may be a big change in the personnel of the teams in the near future as a rule is now up for consideration which would permit the playing of two outside men, the same as in the baseball league. This is considered necessary this season, as many of the teams are unable to sign a representative exhibition team from their own ranks.

Danny McNiel to Play
Danny McNiel, last year's sensation of the Philadelphia States, and captain of the Penn five, will make his first appearance with Shamahan on Wednesday evening when the West Philadelphia club meets the States at the Amory. Thirty-second street and Lancaster avenue. The visiting outfit will be the South Philly Hebrews, who claim the city title.

James Bonner, manager and Joe Liney, pitcher, will pitch the game. The ability to use your brasses when you need distance, and yet when there is a difficult hit, but not come from passing how to do it, but from experience.

Each of them will be a little different from the other, but as you gain confidence in your brasses play you will thoroughly enjoy using.

My Wednesday's article will be on "Iron Club Play."

EASTERN GRID TITLE UNDECIDED, SAYS RICE

Penn State Apparently Strongest in This Section, but Points to Splendid Records of Cornell, W. and J., and Lafayette

By GRANTLAND RICE

THE football curtain is down for the season, with California supreme along the Pacific slope and with Iowa ruling the Middle West. For the East and South the championship goes to the loudest voices and the most impassioned debaters, where lung power carries the deciding vote.

So far as one can gather, such widely scattered evidence, both California and Iowa, with Notre Dame, are a bit stronger than anything the East can show, but this is also a matter of opinion. The positions all lean in that direction, and that at least is something to consider. Centre and Georgia Tech hold the whiphand over the South, with Vanderbilt and Georgia well ahead of them with two strong, hard fighting machines.

The East, however, is the great debating ground of the country with the heaviest snarl and tangle to unravel. Cornell, Lafayette, Penn State and W. and J., all unbeaten, each steps forward with a vocal claim upon the purple toga.

Of these four Penn State took on the hardest schedule and so became involved in two drawn matches with Harvard and Pitt that seemed to have left certain scratches upon her blazing countenance.

Yale is no doubt to be cast upon the fine power of the Cornell team, which ran roughshod over everything in sight. It is no doubt to be cast upon the fine power of the Cornell team, which ran roughshod over everything in sight.

CANTON BULLDOGS WIN

Defeat Washington Eleven 15 to 0 To Come Here Tuesday

Washington, Nov. 28.—On a charge of gridiron, the Washington and Canton football eleven fought a great battle yesterday at American League Park. Harry Robb, former Penn State and Columbia player, was the mascot of the Canton offense.

Robb, only a month ago one of Washington's best backs, turned on the noted Indian players, were in the Washington line-up against the Bulldogs.
