We Have Emphasized the Helpfulness of Gimbels

"The Very Gem in the Sale of the Allman Collection Is That Appealing 'Troyon'"

The man who said that, is a famous Philadelphia art-critic.
 Mr. Allman valued the canvas (which is undoubtedly the most important little picture in the entire collection) at $900. The Gimbel Sale-price is $450.
 (See it, for Art's sake, even without thought of buying.)
 A Rosa Bonheur Pencil Sketch—imitably "alive"—is priced as low as $50.
 A Pissarro that Mr. Allman valued at $3000, is Gimbel-priced $2000.
 That Richards Landscape—one of the rarest Richards in that particular treatment; and very, very beautiful—Mr. Allman valued at $750; Gimbel sale-price is $450.
 A Sully (Thomas Sully, by the way, was the star pupil who became as great as his master, of Benjamin West, whose work is on exhibition now at the Art Alliance)—Mr. Allman valued his Sully at $300—its price in the Sale is $150.
 Realize, please, that Mr. Allman's valuations were those placed, not by sentiment, but by the practical experience gained through twenty-two years' concentration.
