British Spokesman Likens Conference to Juggler

Washington, Dec. 1.—(By A. P.)—The Arms Conference in Paris to keep all of its big work going at one time was compared by a British spokesman today to a juggler. "Now consider the juggler," said the Britisher, speaking in Spanish. "He may have his arms full of balls and the success of the trick depends on keeping all of them in the air at once. If one ball slips to the floor the trick rather fails, don't you see?"
