fourth inch thick, then spread with shortening then a layer of brown sugar, then liberally with seeded raisins. Now roll like felly roll and cut in slices one and one-half inch thick. To pre-pare the pan rub liberally with plenty of shortening. Then sprinkle with brown sugar spreading the sugar evenly over the bottom of the pan. Now place in the cut buns and press lightly. Bake in a hot oven for thirty minutes, then turn on a well-greased sheet of heavy paper and let cool. It is very important to remove the buns at once from the pan

Dear Mrs. Wilson-I am contemplating giving an afternoon tea and am sending about 125 invitations. I know there will be regrets, but would like to ask you kindly to ad-vise the amount of food to order. Bread and butter for the sandwiches.
