

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Attends the Charity Ball and Talks of the Battles' Dance at the Ritz-Carlton This Evening.

THE Charity Ball was certainly a most successful affair. Every one was there, for with the exception of opera and the theatre, there were no other entertainments for the evening.

I confess I found it hard to decide what to do, for I wanted much to hear the opera with its duct made famous by Caruso and Scotti in these recent years, and, too, I wanted much to see the pageant at the ball.

There was general dancing after the pageant and the floors were crowded until well after this morning. Support was served in the foyer. The Board of Managers of the ball did a wise thing when they decided to get society actively interested in the dance.
