

P. R. T. PARK CASE DELAY IS DENIED

Company Also Loses Motion Asking Change of Venue at Hearing in Media.

RESIDENTS ASK INJUNCTION

At the hearing of the injunction suit brought to restrain the P. R. T. from building an amusement park west of Sixth and Market streets, which started today at Media Court House, P. R. T. was denied two motions, one for a change of venue, and one for a postponement.

Boyd C. Stahr and former Judge Gordon, counsel for the P. R. T., in making the motion for a change in venue contended that the minds of the residents of Millbourne, Stonehurst, Upper Darby Township and other settlements which brought the suit, were so prejudiced as a result of feeling against the company. They said this feeling might affect the result of the suit.

Judge Isaac Johnson refused to grant a change of venue, ordered the hearing to proceed.

The residents won a preliminary injunction something more than a week ago when Judge Johnson refused to grant a postponement by the company for delay.

The company asked a postponement of the hearing on the ground that their chief counsel, J. Coleman Joy, would not be able to attend today. The court refused to grant a postponement.

The P. R. T. Company contends that the park will not hurt realty values nor bring an undesirable element into the section. The people living there, however, are of a different opinion.

W. F. Metcalf, president of the Stonehurst Improvement Association, said in a letter to other members, urging them to attend the hearing. "Establishment of the proposed amusement park, with noise resultant from operation of merry-go-rounds, scenic railways, toboggan slides and numerous other mechanical devices until midnight and on Sundays, together with noise created at all hours by those patronizing the park, would make life in the immediate vicinity of the park intolerable."

RHODES WINNER GRATIFIED

Valentine Prepares to Show Committee He Appreciates Honor. Alan C. Valentine, of Swarthmore College, winner of the Rhodes Scholarship to Oxford University from Pennsylvania from a field of thirty-seven competitors is making plans for the three-year course.

Mr. Valentine realizes the great honor that has been conferred upon him and is determined to justify the unanimous award of the State committee at the University of Pennsylvania Saturday, by the most diligent study.

"When I received the good news that I had been awarded the scholarship, said Mr. Valentine, 'I felt the full realization of my obligation to the committee, to the State and to Swarthmore. My competitors for the honor were numerous and thoroughly qualified, many of them more so than myself. I thought the award was naturally a big surprise, although I hoped that I might be the fortunate one. I feel that I owe my good fortune largely to two men who were my inspiration and guide through the hours when I was preparing for the judgment of the committee. Those men are William A. Alexander, former dean of Swarthmore and Philip M. Hicks, professor of English at Swarthmore."

DENIES JUROR WAS "FIRED"

Man's Loss of Job Not Due to Court Work, Says Engineer.

Alfred C. Connelle, cost engineer of the duPont Engineering Company, Richmond street and Wheatland lane, denied before Judge Stanke today that Louis I. Epstein, 5338 Kensington avenue, was discharged from the company's employment because he had served three weeks at the University in Court of Common Pleas No. 5.

Mr. Connelle, who was subpoenaed, testified Epstein was rated as a laborer at the works. On account of an injury to his knee, Epstein was taken into the office to assist in disposing of an accumulation of sketching work.

When the work was disposed of Epstein could not find employment he was physically able to do. Mr. Connelle denied that any other man was employed to take Epstein's place.

Judge Stanke withheld decision and suggested to Mr. Connelle that he do all he could to get Epstein a position he could fill.

Heaviest Storm of the Kind at So Early a Date Known Here in Years.

STREET CLEANERS ON JOB

Philadelphia's first snowfall of the year brought hard, slippery pavements this morning when the even temperature of 36 degrees dropped to the freezing point during the night.

Although there was a large fall of snow, it was not heavy enough to require putting the snow-removal equipment into operation. The street cleaners are busy today with shovels clearing the snow away from the crossings.

Chief Dunlap, of the Bureau of Highways, said it will not be necessary to put any extra men to work.

Except in the central section of the city, where the fall had been swept to the street, walking was a condition where one was forcibly impressed with tendencies of feet to 'get from under.'

The weatherman said no more snow will fall in the near future and he expects a rising temperature for several days.

The snowstorm of yesterday, starting at 9:45 o'clock, was the heaviest for so early in the year the city has ever seen.

The average low temperature maintained by the thermometer during the day made the fall particularly wet, one, flakes sticking adhesively to walls, tree limbs and telephone wires. In open spaces in the park and squares this clinging tendency made trees and bushes a not easily forgotten picture for metropolitan districts.

At 2 P. M. the Weather Bureau in Washington issued a storm warning from Cape Hatteras to Boston. It said that the storm was central over North Carolina at noon and moving rapidly northward. Prediction was then made that it would be attended by strong and shifting winds reaching gale force last night.

Accident Due to Storm. The most serious accident resulting from the storm occurred on the Lancaster pike near the St. David's Golf Club, when Joseph Roberts, of 19 Greenfield avenue, Ardmore, drove his car off the road. The car overturned. Mrs. Roberts was badly cut by broken glass. She was taken to the Bryn Mawr Hospital, where it was found necessary to take forty-two stitches in her wounds. When Mrs. Roberts saw that the car was going to upset she threw a heavy

WRAP AROUND HER TWO-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER GRACE. THE CHILD WAS ONLY SLIGHTLY HURT.

The accident occurred when Mr. Roberts turned from the middle of the road to avoid a collision. The snow prevented him seeing the ditch into which his car plunged.

The first "slippery-pavement" victim of the season is John Pearson, sixty-one years old, of 328 North Tenth street. He fell at Fifteenth and Market streets and his shoulder was dislocated. He was treated at Jefferson Hospital.

Delisting through the storm caused Robert G. Pfugfelder, who lives near Eighth and Norris streets, to brush with his automobile a traffic posse accident occurred at Broad and Berks streets shortly after noon. Patrolman Lowery, of the foot traffic squad, took the motorist to City Hall on a charge of reckless operation of an automobile and destroying city property.

Little Girl Hurt. Ida Rainey, five years-old, whose parents live at 1053 South Upland street, was badly cut by flying glass riding with her father, Patrick Rainey, skidded in the soft snow and collided with a machine at Sixty-third street and Woodbine avenue. Homeopathic Hospital.

Rainey and Clarence Patterson, of 4501 Frankford avenue, driver of a car, were arrested by police of the Sixty-first and Thompson streets station.

Mrs. Leah Scherbahn, seventy-two years old, of Twelfth street and Montgomery avenue and her hip was fractured. She was taken to the University Hospital.

PROBE SHOOTING BY PATROLMAN

Cortelyou Begins Investigation Into Wounding of Robert Madden on Street.

WAS WALKING WITH GIRL

Director Cortelyou began an investigation today into the shooting of Robert Madden, twenty-seven years old, of 1530 Summer street, by Patrolman Geiger.

Geiger, it is alleged, made an insulting remark to a young woman with whom Madden was walking at Thirtieth street and Montgomery avenue. Madden hit him, it is said, and Geiger fired.

Madden is married. His wife spent yesterday with him at the Lankenau Hospital, where he is suffering from a bullet wound in his shoulder. His injury is not believed to be serious. The young woman with whom he was walking was said to have been a Miss Edith Roberts of Park avenue and Berks street. No person by that name is known at the address given.

Geiger is attached to the East Girard and Montgomery avenues station. He has been on the force four years, and lives at 1216 Palmer street. He was held under $500 bail by Magistrate Oswald for a further hearing, December 18, to await the result of Madden's injuries.

According to Madden's story, he was walking early yesterday morning with the girl, when a two men in civilian clothes noticed them. One of the men yelled, "Why don't you marry the girl?" according to Madden, who says he stopped, went back, and knocked the man down. The man jumped up, drew a revolver and fired, hitting Madden in the shoulder. The girl and the other man fled.

Patrolman Cooper, of the Eighth and Jefferson streets station, ran up upon hearing the shot, and arrested Geiger, disarmed him, and took him to the Twentieth and Berks streets station, where he was placed under arrest.

Assistant Director of Public Safety Tompkins is a preliminary investigation of the shooting, said Geiger had no right to shoot, and Madden had a perfect right to strike him after the alleged insult.

HOPES TO SEE BAN ON CO-EDS AT PENN

Letter by "T. B. P.," an Alumnus, Says "Women Came in by Back Door"

Women at the University of Pennsylvania "came in by the back door," according to a letter printed in today's issue of the Pennsylvanian, the undergraduate daily.

The letter is one of three called forth by the appearance several days ago in the same newspaper of an editorial entitled "The Pink Tea." In which the statement was made that women were not wanted at Penn and that their presence there had given rise to a generally uncomfortable condition, felt as much by the women as the men.

The University is in danger of taking on "the appearance of a young ladies' seminary," according to the same letter writer, who concludes: "Women are not wanted at Pennsylvania; there is no reason and no right for them to be here, and I heartily join with you (the editor) in the hope that General Wood's administration may remedy this lamentable state of affairs."
