

ROB SLEEPY TRAVELER OF COAT, CASH AND TICKET

New York Jockey Takes Costly Nap in Broad Street Station
Spencer Bulman, New York jockey, slept too soundly while waiting for a Chicago train in Broad Street Station early this morning. His slumbers cost him his overcoat, beside him on the bench, $40 in cash and his ticket.
Bulman was on his way to Mexico from New York at the direction of his employer, Archie Wilson. He got in the city rather late and decided to sleep on a bench in the waiting room while waiting for a train to take him on the next leg of his journey.
Railroad police, unable to help him, directed the theft to City Hall. He followed instructions and then fell asleep in the Detective Bureau while waiting until he could telegraph his employer for money.
