JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Tells of First Meeting of Junior Cotillon This Evening—Dinner for Women's Overseas Legion—Penn Charter Boys in Annual Play

TONIGHT will see the first meeting of the Junior Cotillon in the Bellevue-Stratford for this season. These dances were started after the old Monday Evening Dancing Classes had ceased to exist with Mrs. Frederick Mason's retirement into mourning at the death of her husband. They are not a continuation of the old Monday Evenings in any sense of the word.

There were six meetings of the Monday Evening, the first usually in the third week in December and the last the Monday before Lent. Then no debutante but those eligible for the Assembly was ever asked to join the Monday Evening Dancing Classes, while there is no such restriction for the Junior Dances. The Junior Dances are three in number and the meetings will be held tonight, on January 11 and February 15. They will be dinner-dances, starting promptly at 8:15, and will be held in the Clover Room instead of the Rose Gardens.

The Junior Dances have been very delightful affairs since they were started some six or seven years ago, and they grow in popularity each year. The patronesses, some of whom receive at each meeting, are Mrs. Henry Brinton Coxe, Mrs. George Dallas Dixon, Mrs. Robert Kelso Cassatt, Mrs. Daniel L. Hutchinson, Jr., Mrs. Robert L. Montgomery, Mrs. Charlton Henry, Mrs. Robert H. Large, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle.

Mrs. Montgomery will not act in the capacity of chaperone this year, as she is spending the winter in Rome with her husband and family. Mrs. George Dallas Dixon will entertain for Marjorie Large and there will be several other affairs.

THE Women's Overseas Legion had a most interesting dinner last evening in the North Gardens of the Bellevue-Stratford. Mrs. Robert G. Mead, who only recently has returned from several months' stay in Poland, talked most interestingly, and Mr. Bok, who was a guest of honor, also made a short address.

Mrs. Oswald Chew presided at the meeting. She is the president of the Philadelphia Legion. In fact, Philadelphia was one of the first cities to start a Women's Overseas Legion and the national meeting of the various other organizations from other cities was held here last year. The Overseas Legion includes nurses, signal corps women, Red Cross, Y. W. C. A., Y. M. C. A., C. A. R. D., National Catholic War Council, Jewish Welfare Board, Friends' reconstruction units and various others who went abroad and worked among the soldiers and refugees during the war and since the armistice.

THE Penn Charter School play is the event of the week in the school set. It is to be held on Friday night in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford. It is given by the Penn Charter Literary Society. "A Tailor-Made Man," which was played here several years ago by Grant Mitchell, will be given this year. The boys have a great deal of talent and are very funny in their impersonation of the girls. I do like to see a boy's idea of how a girl should act and does act. It's a shame to tease them, but they do get so self-conscious and uncomfortable. Guy Mann is to have the title role, and the other members of the cast will be Fred Schanche, Alden Strong, Thomas Frame, Jr., Sherman Cooke, Erskine Bates, Dean Joly, William Armstrong, Atherton Willcocks, Terrance Rugh, Jr., Richard Reeves, James Gage, Henry Jones, Charles Elliott, William Budd, Daniel Merritt, Frederick Griffin, Jr.

Among the patronesses are Mrs. Alfred Allen, Mrs. Norris Barratt, Mrs. Clarence Bartlett, Mrs. Samuel Bispham, Mrs. David Chew, Mrs. Philip Collins, Mrs. Isaac Davis, Mrs. Myers Fitler, Mrs. Herbert Frazier, Mrs. Arthur Gerhard, Mrs. John Gibbon, Mrs. Norman Grey, Mrs. J. Bancker Gribbel, Mrs. Arthur Hacker, Mrs. Caspar Wistar Hacker, Mrs. Stevens Heckscher, Mrs. Walter Janney, Mrs. William Gray Knowles, Mrs. Horace Jenks, Mrs. John Kennedy, Mrs. Thomas Leaming, Mrs. Robert Le Conte, Mrs. Ralph Derr, Mrs. John T. Lewis, Jr., Mrs. Bertram Lippincott, Mrs. George H. Lorimer, Mrs. W. Paul O'Neill, Mrs. Benjamin B. Reath, Mrs. John Sinnott, Mrs. Clinton Strong, Mrs. Andrew Wheeler, Mrs. Edward B. Smith, Mrs. Alfred Stengel, Mrs. Charles Randolph Wood and about fifty others.

NANCY WYNNE.
