

MANY AUTO THEFTS HAVE OWNER'S O. K.

But Police Can't Prove It. Says Officer in Charge of Division

3258 STOLEN HERE IN YEAR

In more than half the reported automobile thefts the machines are stolen with the consent of the owner...

Lieutenant Le Strange was analyzing figures given out by Superintendent Mills showing that from January 1 to December 22 of this year the number of automobiles reported stolen is 3258...

went on, "that if the city or Government started to design the Delaware River, the Schuylkill and the old stone quarry holes, they would uncover pretty nearly a third of the so-called stolen cars."

"The first thing the modern robbers think of is to steal machines. They admit, when the police happen to capture them, that they depended on the speed of their stolen machines to make their escape."

All the big factory robberies and freight train thefts have been made possible through the use of stolen touring cars and automobiles which are used to haul away the stuff.

600 Alumni to Meet The Alumni Association of the Germantown High School will hold its mid-year meeting at the school this evening...

Here Lieutenant Le Strange cited three recent cases in which his squad was able to prove that automobile owners seeking insurance had been in collusion with thieves.
