Interleague Soccer Match Between Hibs and Phila. F. C. Features Today's Bill

PHILA. F. C. PLAYS HIBS AT SOCCER

American League Team Opposes National Leaders at Phils' Ball Park

ALLIED ELEVENS ARE BUSY

The feature game on today's soccer program for the final day of 1921 brings together the Philadelphia Field Club, undefeated leaders in the American League, and the Hibernians, who hold first place in the National League.

The Phillies will take the field with a revised line-up and will introduce a new fullback in Fred Cooper, of Detroit. Cooper recently played in Canada and was a member of the All-Canadian team which played the Third Lanarks.

Manager Walder has also made other changes in the personnel of the local American Leaguers. Campbell, Collier, Kerr and Bethune have been benched and Highfield will be found in goal, with Neilson being given the berth at center forward.

The Hibernians have a fast combination of players, who have found little difficulty in winning all their games in the National League, but as no contests have been played in that organization for some time it is believed that the circuit has passed out of existence.

The Industrial League will stage two games, as only four active teams are now engaged in the competition. Snelenburg has dropped soccer, and so has Westinghouse, but the Essington team still retains its league franchise.

The various divisions in the Allied League have a full schedule of games listed. Kingsessing has withdrawn from the first division, section A, and this leaves Wolfenden-Shore without a game. The other contests are important and bring together Kensington and Marshall E. Smith and Fairhill and Puritan.

In the second division, Keywood and Edge Moor play at Thirty-first and Dickinson streets, and these clubs are staging a keen battle for second place, being runners-up to Glen Social. Another hard-fought game is expected when Wissinoming and De Paul, two of the best teams in the third division, northeast section, play at the P. R. R. and Benner street.

MAY REVIVE TRI-STATE

Twelve-Club Baseball Circuit Is Discussed by Promoters

Reading, Pa., Dec. 31.—Plans for revival of the old Tri-State Baseball League were discussed here by J. A. Blough, of Johnstown, and W. G. Love, of Straddonville.

It is planned to have the twelve-club circuit as nearly as possible like the original Tri-State, with teams in Wilmington, Allentown, Williamsport, Johnstown, Altoona, Wilkes-Barre, Scranton, Lancaster and York.

The promoters say they have already lined up Wilmington, Wilkes-Barre, Scranton, Johnstown and Altoona, and stopped over here to see if there was any foundation to the rumors afloat that the Reading International League franchise was to be sold to Providence.

CALIFORNIA IS FAVORITE

Capacity Crowd Expected to Witness Big Intersectional Grid Clash

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 31.—With the arrival of the Washington and Jefferson football squad here the stage is set for the big game between the Presidents and the University of California at Tournament Park, Monday afternoon.

The Tournament of Roses officials announced there would be a capacity crowd. Tournament Park seats 42,000 persons, and virtually every seat has been sold.

The arrival of the Presidents caused their stock to soar. While California is a strong favorite, bets on the probable score are scarce and it seems to be the prevailing opinion that W. and J. will prove a tougher opponent than did Ohio State a year ago.

Leonard in Superb Shape

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 31.—The superb condition of Lightweight Champion Benny Leonard for his ten-round bout next Monday afternoon with Pinkey Mitchell was the talk of boxing fans here today. The champion went six rounds yesterday afternoon, two each with Johnny Bluff, the bantam king; Bob Miller and Eddie Mattis.

East End Trips Morris Guards

The East End five of Camden traveled to Atlantic City last evening and defeated the Morris Guards 33 to 26. The first half ended 15 to 14 in favor of the Camdenites. It marked the second scheduled win for the Jerseymen this week. They traveled to Aquinas' hall last Tuesday and defeated the downtowners 27-22.

Cuban Footballers Play Today

Havana, Cuba, Dec. 31.—The football elevens of the University of Mississippi and the Cuba Athletic Club were to meet today at Almendares Park. The Cuban team has been carefully coached and trained, but has had little experience against first-class elevens.

Scraps About Scrappers

Jules Richie, a Lancaster middleweight, is after a match here with Tommy Loughran. Richie has met Harry Greb and several other top-notchers.

Danny Grieves has a big following up through the State, especially at Reading, Pa. He made a great showing against Pedro Campo, taking the match on as a substitute.

Peck Miller, of Marcyunk, has put himself in fit fettle for fracases with any of the heavyweights. He has been working out with Jack Johnson for ten weeks.

Tim Droney, who is hot on the trail of Lew Tendler, has been offered a match with Nate Segal in Boston. Segal boxes along the same lines as Droney—being a slugger.

Victor Bronge, a Pittsburgh lightweight, is about to invade Philadelphia. Matty Gorback is trying to hook up Vic for a bout in this city. Matty also has Billy Lincoln, 129, and Sammy Gold, 132, under his wing.

Gus Franchetti is going to join New York's fistic fraternity after two more matches here. Johnny Lisenbi wants to show Gussie against Harry Kid Brown and Joe Tiplitz at local clubs.

Hughey Hutchinson, who is to box at the Olympia here the second week in January, is to meet Billy Fitzsimmons in New York next Thursday night. Scotty Monteith has Hutch boxing in great shape and expects to send the local lad after the Junior lightweight crown.

Joe Lynch is matched for two bouts. He meets Al Walker and Patsy Johnson in New York on Tuesday and Thursday, respectively. It was Wilson, who has been training with Lynch, is to take on Solly Green at Montreal, Can., Wednesday night.

Terry Richards, the "Terrible One," who was forced to call off a bout here with Bobby Barrett because of an injured hand, is still unable to resume training. His mitt is mending slowly and it may be a month before Charles McGruller will be able to send him to the post.

Charley Walters, of Gray's Ferry, is a manager now. He has ten lakers under his wing, including Jim Hackett, Joe Hurley, Benny Kelley, Dan Keating, Tommy Costigan, Chester McBride, Eddie Hazelton, Dutch Staurlen, "Ike" and Joe Dominick.

There are letters in the sports department of the EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER for Fred Pacitti, Pete Tyrell, Jack Hanlon, Johnny Loftus and Billy Silverman.

PACITTI TO RUN SHOW; FOUR BOXING CARDS ON

Six Bouts Scheduled for National. Tendler Training Hard

Just when it looked as if there would be no show at the National A. A. for the first New Year's Day since the Eleventh street arena was turned into a boxing club, Fred Pacitti, of the new Broadway, came out with an announcement that he would put on half a dozen matches there Monday afternoon. He has arranged three eight-round numbers and three sixes, with Dixie Allen, of Alabama, vs. Mickey Sullivan, in the last contest.

Lew Tendler is finishing up a hard course of training for his meeting Monday afternoon at the Olympia. His opponent is to be Barney Adair, a welterweight, who has proved himself a tough customer in several bouts here.

NOVEL BASEBALL SERIES

Lehigh and Lafayette to Play Home and Away Games Same Day

Bethlehem, Pa., Dec. 31.—A novel baseball situation has arisen between Lehigh and Lafayette. The alumni dates of both institutions fall on the same day next June. Both institutions want one of the three Lehigh-Lafayette baseball games to be played before the alumni of each institution, and how to please the alumni of both institutions is the problem.

Lehigh has a plan and has sent it on to Lafayette. Under the scheme the baseball squad of each institution would be divided and one nine sent abroad, the other staying at home. As each college always has a good array of material and two or three good substitutes, it is felt that the plan easily could be worked out.

The baseball schedule for next year follows:

[illegible] away, 15; Yale, away, 16; Villanova, away, 22; Tufts, away, 24; Amherst, away, 27; Wesleyan, away, 28; Trinity, away, 29; Boston College, away, 30; Holy Cross, away, 31.

May 1, Pennsylvania, away, 6; open, 10; Rutgers, away, 13; Lafayette, away, 17; Stevens, away, 20; Lafayette, at home; 20, open.

June 3, Catholic University, at home; 10, Holy Cross, at home; 14, Lafayette, away; 18, Georgetown, at home.

ZAHN BROTHERS CASE IS UNIQUE

Members of Philadelphia Family Clash as Rival College Coaches January 13

TIGER AND GREEN TUTORS

By EDWIN J. POLLOCK

CASES of brothers in collegiate athletics are common, but occasionally a unique feature is attached when they play against each other. One of the most famous instances was when the Callahan brothers were in opposing line-ups of recent Yale-Princeton games. Last season we had Russel Stein, of Washington and Jefferson and Herb Stein, of Pitt.

Only rarely, however, do members of the same family appear in collegiate sports as rival coaches. Years ago, a brother of Glenn Warner coached a football team on the Pacific Coast, but the Warners' pupils never met. Next fall, members of the well-known Jones family will quarrel when Yale meets Iowa. Howard Jones, brother of the renowned Tad, Yale coach, is the mentor at Iowa.

Meet January 13

But the New Year will be less than two weeks old when brothers of a Philadelphia family will oppose each other as coaches of Intercollegiate League basketball teams. This will occur on the night of January 13 at Hanover when Dartmouth, tutored by George Zahn, will play Hill Zahn's Princeton passers.

George has been coach of the Dartmouth five for the last two seasons, but Hill is a newcomer in college sports. He was appointed Princeton tutor to succeed Lou Sugarman. George is Hill's "big brother."

George Zahn's record as a college coach already has been established. He couldn't do much with the Green players in his first year in New England, but last season he turned out a team that gave Penn a terrific battle for the championship. Dartmouth for years was in a basketball rut and the Hanover students have Zahn to thank for leading them out of the wilderness.

Poor Green Start

Dartmouth got away to a poor start this season, losing to Pittsburgh, on Wednesday night, 43-29. Geneva was beaten on Thursday, 20-16. It was a big surprise when the Panthers trimmed the Green for it was figured that Zahn, the elder, would have a great quintet this year. However, the athletes are not properly warmed up as yet and things are very apt to change before the Intercollegiate campaign opens.

Zahn, the elder, has a wise old head on his shoulders. He knows a lot of basketball, and best of all, he knows how to teach it. George has what is known as a coaching personality. Bob Folwell has it, so has Lon Jourdet. Andy Smith and Huge Bezdek. It's that ability to get under the skins of their pupils and so inspire them with fight that they're willing to tackle a locomotive. There are few who possess this precious personality and real knowledge of the game, but Zahn, the elder, is one of them.

Abroad with "Y"

George was one of the "Y" athletic directors at League Island in the early part of the war and then went abroad, where he gained fame with the A. E. F. in promoting all sports. His basketball team won the championship of the A. E. F. and toured in France and England. On this team were Dave Kerr, Barney Sedran, Marty Friedman and Harry Ricondi, all Eastern League players.

Three of last year's regulars are back at Dartmouth, and the team is further strengthened by Goldstein and Malcolm. Goldstein is the Central High boy, who played such a whale of a game with the Crimson and Gold. Dartmouth will have to be watched this season.

Malta Oarsmen

The Zahn brothers were famous players in their day and also were well known as Malta catamen. Hill Zahn played with several of the Eastern League clubs. His coaching experience has not been as thorough as his brother's, but last year he turned out a championship quintet for Butterworth in the Manufacturers' League.

The Tigers have played four games so far this season and have lost two of them. Decisions were dropped to the City College of New York and to the New York Crescents, but both Lehigh and Brooklyn Poly were beaten. Jeffries and Witmer are the only regulars left from last season and Zahn, the younger, does not have any rosy path to follow.

Princeton plays its first league game with Dartmouth on January 13, and the final tilt on March 1. It will be interesting to watch the battle between the brothers.

CENTRE IN TEXAS

Praying Colonels Practice for Aggies Game Monday

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 31.—The "Praying Colonels," of Centre College, arrived here late today and went immediately to the Stadium, where they kicked and passed the ball in a light workout preparatory to Monday's football game with Texas A. and M. College, winners of the Southwestern Conference football championship.

"Bo" McMillan stopped off at Fort Worth, his home town, when the train passed through there yesterday. He will join the squad tomorrow. George Chian, nineteen-year-old guard, was not on the field, but expects to be in the game Monday. He is nursing a minor injury. Charles Moran, coach, declared.

The Aggies report "all are ready" in their camp. The farmers have been working out daily on the Dallas University athletic field and expect to face Centre with virtually the same team which proved so successful in defense this season.

PASADENA DRILLS SECRET

W. & J. and California Practice Behind Closed Gates

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 31.—Final workouts were scheduled for today for the football machines of Washington and Jefferson College and the University of California, which will clash here Monday in the annual East versus West gridiron classic.

The utmost secrecy surrounded plans for the last-minute practice. Neither Coach Earle Neale, of the Presidents, nor Andy Smith, of the Bears, would divulge where today's workout would take place. Both coaches asserted all their men were in good condition.

Tomorrow, it is reported, neither team will indulge in any physical exercise other than a long walk.

WILLIAMS, AT 30, STILL SEEKS TITLE

The Kid Is Beginning Training for 1922 Bantamweight Competition

WILL BOX AT THE GARDEN

By LOUIS H. JAFFE

TURNING his thirtieth milestone on December 1, Kid Williams has no intentions of retiring from the ring. He even is quite enthusiastic over the prospects of becoming a champion once more. From his home in Baltimore comes a statement from the Kiddo: "A match in New York with Johnny Buff would give me back the bantam crown I lost to Pete Herman."

Williams is doing some preliminary training before getting down to hard work in preparation for 1922 matches, which he expects to start the latter part of January. The Kid has been getting out on the road every morning in Baltimore, and in a few days he will hie himself to the backwoods for his annual week's tree-chopping stunt.

As soon as Williams buries his ax he will come back to Philadelphia and make his home here. Then the Kid will put the finishing touches on his conditioning at a local gym, and he will be ready for bantam competition. The Baltimorean writes that he will appear at the Madison Square Garden, N. Y. C., some time in February, and that he is being booked for several important matches in Philadelphia.

July 18, 1922, will start Williams' fourteenth year in the ring. His first two years as a leather pusher were spent in amateur ranks, at a time when he worked in the pressroom, mailing rooms and stereotype departments of different newspapers in Baltimore.

Joe Barrett was the man who started the Kid on his professional career, after Williams was unsuccessful in getting a match from another promoter. He asked Al Herford, then managing the late Joe Gans, to put him on at one of his shows, but there was nothing doing. "Go home and eat a barrel of flour," was the only satisfaction Williams could get from Herford. The Kiddo weighed only ninety-five pounds at that time.

Then it was that Barrett matched Williams with Shep Farren on July 18, 1910, at the Oriole Park, Baltimore, and the latter was knocked out in the fourth round. The result greatly upset the dope, as Farren had been knocking out his opponents consistently, and this victory started Williams on his successful career.

Later Williams was taken over by Sammy Harris, and it was Harris who brought the Kid from the preliminaries to his championship match with Johnny Coulon, the Baltimore Tiger, as the Kid has been called, winning the title on a knockout in the third round at Los Angeles in 1914.

For the next three years Williams went along as the real "fighting champion," meeting any one and every one picked for him, until in January, 1917, when he was dethroned by Pete Herman on Referee Billy Regan's twenty-round decision in New Orleans.

Since that time Williams has been anxious to meet Herman in a decision match, but he never could get the opportunity. He also was ready to take on Joe Lynch during the time the New Yorker bore the diadem, and now the thirty-year-old Kid is about to start waging a campaign for a crack at the thirty-three-year-old Buff.

BIG SHAKEUP PLANNED AMONG NATIONAL UMPIRES

Heydler to Revise Staff—Brennan, O'Day and Emslie to Go

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Baseball deals involving players are no more extensive this winter than the shake-up of umpires in the National League, which involves Bill Brennan, Hank O'Day and Bob Emslie and perhaps others, according to reports current here. It is understood President Heydler plans an extensive revision of his staff.

Brennan already has been transferred to the Southern Association, O'Day is pressing for his release so he can sign up with the Pacific Coast League, and Emslie, it is understood, is about to be retired on a pension after nearly twenty-five years' faithful service.

"Ducky" Holmes, of the Western League; Paul Sentelle, of the Texas League, and Pitman, of the Southern Association, have been added to the National League roster.

Considerable opposition to Brennan had developed around the National circuit. O'Day's retirement from the umpires is due to his desire to live in the West. Emslie is to be replaced by a younger man and rewarded for his long service, according to the stories here.

O'Day has had a remarkable career in the majors. Starting as a pitcher in the days when Connie Mack was backstopping, he switched to umpiring more than twenty-five years ago, but in 1912 was persuaded to take the helm of the Cincinnati Reds. O'Day brought them out of the last division into fourth place, but gave up the post after one year. He is said to have brought out the foul-strike rule now in force in the majors and is regarded as one of the most diplomatic arbiters in the game.

Ex-Grid Stars to Clash

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 31.—"Bo" McMillin's Kentucky All Stars will meet a team of Fort Worth All Stars, headed by Aesthax Douglass, Cincinnati catcher and former T. C. U. football star, here next Friday afternoon, January 6. It was announced today following a conference between McMillin and Douglass. McMillin's team will be made up principally of Centre College players and stars, while Douglass' team is virtually all Texas Christian University stars.

"The Hardest Ring Battle of My Career"

Second of Eight Matches With Leonard Resulted in Dundee's Toughest Tilt

EACH WAS DROPPED

By JOHNNY DUNDEE

GEE, but it's tough to pick the hardest of the lot of hard bouts I have engaged in since taking up the manly hit-and-get-away art eleven years ago. Starting as a bantam in 1911, I have gone into ring battles against featherweights and now lightweights. All told I have participated in more than 300 bouts.

JOHNNY DUNDEE

Benny Leonard and I have been formally introduced from opposite corners on eight different occasions, for a total of sixty-six rounds. It was against Benny that I always found myself in a grueling contest—and on one occasion the toughest of any of my tussles. The main reason for my hard battles with Leonard has been because it always has been my ambition to whip Benny—and beat him decisively, if possible.

Our feud started back in 1915. We both were just about breaking in as leading lightweights in New York, and it was a case of the better man being the best of the boxers our weight there. Is there any wonder that I have longed to show superior form over Leonard, especially since he won the championship?

Along about 1916 critics throughout the country were predicting that Fred Welsh, then champion, was about through and they figured the Welshman would lose his title in a short time.

In June that year Leonard and I met for the second time—and, with a bout against Welsh in mind I found myself in the hardest bout of my career.

We clashed in the ring at Madison Square Garden. The place was jammed to the doors. At that time Leonard was boxing and punching better than any time during his very successful career—and how I longed for a decisive victory! So anxious was I to get over a knockout punch that I took all sorts of chances to connect, and because of my eagerness—much to my sorrow—Leonard was able to get over a knockdown punch.

Benny dropped me in one of the early rounds, but I was up after a brief count. From then on I tore into Leonard with all my might—I have never fought so hard in all my life. We battled all over the ring. I was the aggressor almost throughout. I have had a lot of fans—friends and just ordinary boxing buffs, tell me that was the greatest battle they ever saw me in.

I kept plugging along every second of the way, but the clever Leonard was not to be trapped. He was shooting over an occasional wallop that shook me up every once in a while—but I was in there bent on a knockout. I did not succeed.

In the tenth round I did get over a right cross flush on Benny's jaw. He went down. But, after a short count, Leonard was up again, stabbing away with a left jab while I continually, with all the strength that I had, kept going to him. Then the bell sounded—the final tingle of the gong, ending the match.

If nothing else, I proved in that bout that Leonard never had anything on me. A majority of the New York papers gave me the decision, it being in the days of no-decision bouts. And this, to my mind, proves that I beat Leonard when he was at his best. He used everything he ever knew in that battle, punching better and being faster than ever.

But I was always there to swap punches with him, which is the reason I won the popular verdict.

Pete Herman will tell of his hardest ring battle in next Tuesday's issue of the Evening Public Ledger.

300 Midshipmen Answer Call for Boxing Candidates

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 31.—Three hundred midshipmen have responded to the call of Coach Spike Webb for candidates for the Naval Academy boxing team. Among those who are trying out for the squad are Barchet and Conroy, of the football team. Massachusetts Institute of Technology will be the Middies' first opponents on January 28.

DUNDEE BATTLES JACKSON TO DRAW

Neither Has Advantage as Both Try for Knockout in Their Eleventh Meeting

NORFOLK BEATS JAMAICA KID

New York, Dec. 31.—Johnny Dundee, junior lightweight champion of the world, and Willie Jackson, one of the most prominent challengers for lightweight champion Benny Leonard's crown, fought a sensational fifteen-round draw in the feature event of last night's show at Madison Square Garden. The fight card attracted one of the very largest attendances of the season.

Jackson, though he had more than six pounds advantage in weight, was lucky to get a draw. Dundee for some reason used his right hand very little during the encounter.

Kid Norfolk, the Baltimore Negro boxer, who holds the colored light-heavyweight championship belt, and Jamaica Kid, another dusky warrior, clashed in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. Norfolk weighed 177½ pounds and Jamaica fought at 174.

Norfolk won the decision after a tiresome exhibition. The Baltimore Negro led his rival in every round.
