IUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Talks of the First Assembly, Which Will Be Held Tonight in the Bellevue-Stratford Ballroom

the wake of the First Assembly. And it is true, but they usually followed in the wake of the First Assembly. And the Monday Evening and the Assembly established your position in society. Now the Monday Evening is no more. And we have to confess that the Assembly does not settle one's social position as it used to, because you can't always just tell who is a subscriber and who is a guest. And, too, now the Assemblies are two among very many balls that are given every year. About three years ago—that is, since the war—when the balls were given again, the committee decided to invite quite a number of the debutantes to one of the two balls as guests. And there you are. Not a single one of the snobs can tell who is or isn't, and we can't say any more (as in days gone by, to quote Molly Thayer's "instructions on how to behave at a ball"), "Why, I didn't know SHE came," or "Well, for goodness' sake, how did they get here?"

Of course, the old subscribers know Caroline Ashton.

to come.

The rule was held to very strictly for geme years, but time and circumstances change things; and while I doubt if ever there will be on the committee or among the patronesses one who has not "always belonged," there are many who did not subscribe ten years ago who do low and very many who did. among the patronesses one who has not "always belonged," there are many who did not subscribe ten years ago who do now and very many who did not subscribe twenty years ago who are on the list. So it's hard to tell. Anyway, it's and touishing the patronesses one who has not subscribe twenty years ago who are on the list. So it's hard to tell. The men of the committee this year are Dr. Charles Hart, Beauveau Borle, F. Beale, Charlie Biddle and Fritz Drayton, who is secretary. The pa-tronesses will be Mrs. George Harrison Fisher, Mrs. Henry B. Coxe. Mrs. Sydney Hutchinson. Mrs. Livingston Biddle and Mrs. Edward Cheston, who Biddle and Mrs. Edward Cheston, who, you remember, was Emily Fox and who is the bride of the year. Mrs. William Struthers Ellis was to have been another patroness, but the death of her motherfin-law, Mrs. Rudolph Ellis, last week will prevent her being there. Mrs. Alexander Van Rensselaer will receive

Mrs. Ellis' place. The dancing will take place as usual The dancing will take place as usual in the ballroom, and the patronesses will receive the guests in the foyer. I always love to watch the people coming down the stairs once I have got through the pain of those curtains myself. The winding stairway, men and women in wonderful evening clothes, the women wearing execution. and women in wonderful evening clothes, the women wearing exquisite colors and gorgeous jewels, and the men beautifully groomed coming down to pass the line of patronesses, the women curtsying and the men bowing low as they stand just back of the women. It is really awfully pretty and it serves of the devis when good manit savors of the days when good manners held sway and no one was ashamed to behave like a lady or gentleman.

There will be a great many dinners before the ball and theatre parties, too, for that matter.

Mrs. Edith Larzelere Gienn, of Jenkintown, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Larzelera, has joined Mrs. Floyd Keser, of Fox Chase, in Florida, where the latter has taken a house for the winter.

As he came to the end of the commandments, he laboriously spelt out 'covet.' Auntie, what's this word cove-ett, in these last?' asked he. "Not cove-ett, dear." aid Auntie, "pronounce it "cov-et.' this is the way: "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife'—covet means to want or to desire." "Hum," said Bill to himself, in a puzzled way. "then it's 'thou shalt not want thy neighbor's wife.' Why should I want my neighbor's wife? I guess," and with a toss of the head and a proud air he added: "I guess I can get a wife of my wen." Time was when tonight really was the night of nights for the bud who had never been to a ball before, whose whole idea of coming out was bounded by a white muslin frock trimmed with exquisite lace, which she had worn to the first Monday Evening Dancing Class and whose first real silk or satin frock was worn at the First Assembly. There were other balls through the year, it is true, but they usually followed in the wake of the First Assembly. And

Well, for goodness' sake, how did they set here?"

Of course, the old subscribers know pretty well, but, after all, what difference does it make? I don't believe when the Assemblies were started, about the Assemblies were started, about the Assemblies were started, about the Assemblies were started.
