

Mrs. Wilson Goes as Far as Oregon for New Recipes or Old Ones Made Novel

Brown Bread and Sweet Cookies, Fruit Tarts, and Muffins Fixed Into a Delectable essert Are All Well Worth Trying

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

PLANNING this corner. I am trying to bring to you the ideas and recipes of the housewives in other States. I have traveled this past year nearly 20,000 miles away from the beaten track, going into the byways, to where I report some of an exceptional dish or novel way of serving the same old dish.

Miss Bertha E. Kellschauer and her brother left the East seven years ago to west and start a ranch; naturally it fell upon Bertha to keep the little home, and I have just returned from a visit to them, bringing with me some very attractive dishes.

This ranch is located fifty miles from the railroad and is in the State of Oregon. When I arrived at the station Bertha met me and drove out to the ranch, and as this was my second visit I noted many improvements. This place has indeed made farming worth while, for besides keeping the little bungalow in apple-pie order she is making and selling to her near neighbors many pounds of bread, cake and pies every year.

Her Boston brown bread is new and tastes very good; try it—you will enjoy it as much as I have.

Bertha's Boston Brown Bread
Place in a mixing bowl
One-half cup of molasses.
One and one-half cups of black bread.
Four tablespoons of melted shortening.
One and one-quarter cups of whole-wheat flour.
One cup of cornmeal.
Three-quarters cup of rye flour.
One and one-quarter cups of bran.
One cup of chopped nuts.
One cup of seeded raisins.
One teaspoon of salt.
Three level tablespoons of baking powder.

Beat to mix, and pour in well-greased cans or molds, place in a deep pan and fill the pan with cold water; place in the oven and bake slowly for one and one-half hours, then lift from the pan and allow to stand in a warm oven. The water with the water is removed from the oven as soon as the molds are placed to dry off.

The one-pound coffee can makes a splendid mold for the Boston brown bread. Fill molds two-thirds full and they may be closed or left open.

Hunkle Dees
Place in a mixing bowl
Two and one-half cups of flour.
One teaspoon of salt.
Two level tablespoons of baking powder.
One-half teaspoon of nutmeg.
Sift between the fingers to blend and then rub in
Seven tablespoons of shortening.
Then place in a small bowl
One egg.
Two-thirds cup of milk.
Beat to mix and add
Two-thirds cup of sugar.
Stir until the sugar is dissolved; use to form a dough, adding
Two-thirds cup of finely chopped nuts.

One-half cup of finely chopped candied citron.
One-third cup of seeded raisins.
Beat to mix and drop on a well-greased and floured baking sheet, keeping the hunkles about three inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes. Lift from the pan while warm

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE

Universal etiquette prescribes that no one shall interrupt a speaker in the middle of a sentence. Yet interruptions of this sort are the commonest breaches of good manners. Self-control is a valuable social acquisition. It prevents anger or curiosity or impatience from breaking into another's speech and blocking the course of his thoughts. Indeed, one of the surest signs of that perfect courtesy which is the flower of consideration, is the admirable patience with which a wellbred man or woman will listen to even a tiresome speech, until such a moment as it can be definitely answered or sidetracked without the effect of interruption.

People who have not had the advantage of early training in good manners can easily acquire the most important principles of social etiquette by following either the well-known "Golden Rule" or its negative Chinese equivalent, which is, "Do not act toward any one as you would not wish him to act toward you."

place on the top and cover with a thick custard and garnish with a meringue made by beating the white of egg until it will hold its shape and then folding in four tablespoons of powdered sugar. Serve either hot or cold.

Bating Babies
Cut left-over roast or boiled pork into finger strips; now place in a bowl
Three cups of flour.
One teaspoon of salt.
Two level tablespoons of baking powder.

One-half teaspoon of thyme.
Two grated onions.
Rub between the hands to mix and then rub in six tablespoons of shortening and mix to a dough with
Two-thirds cup of water.

Roll out one-half inch thick and cut in four-inch squares; on each square place a finger strip of the prepared meat; season well with salt, pepper and a little grated onion. Fold the dough about the meat and tie in individual pudding cloths and drop in a pot of boiling water and cook for twenty-five minutes; lift to the colander to drain and then serve on a thin slice of toast with parsley sauce.

MRS. WILSON'S ANSWERS
My dear Mrs. Wilson—Will you print a recipe for jelly roll? Mine always cracks while rolling?
MRS. J. J. M.

Stomping Pudding
Place in a mixing bowl
Two-thirds cup of sugar.
Four tablespoons of butter.
Yolk of one egg.
Cream well and then add
One and three-quarter cups of flour.
One-half teaspoon of salt.
Four level teaspoons of baking powder.

Three-quarters cup of milk.
One-half teaspoon of nutmeg.
Beat to a smooth batter; fill into well-greased muffin pans; fill the pans about two-thirds full; bake in a hot oven for twenty minutes.

To serve, split the muffins and lay the bottom half on plate and place a large spoonful of crushed pineapple

Adventures With a Purse

THERE will be just one woman among all who read this Adventure who may be able to afford it. I know it costs a lot, although the price has been reduced, and one who knows the value of jade will appreciate that the reduction places this necklace at an amazingly low figure. It is real jade, the deep green, with shadows of palest grey. The jade is cut in bead shapes, and the necklace, I should say, is twelve or fourteen inches in length, the pieces of jade being graduated in size, but none of them being overly large. How you will love this beautiful green necklace, so simple yet so rich looking. Against a black velvet dress, for instance, or nestling against the soft folds of a gown of pure white. Well! if you please me, I will tell you its price and where it is to be had.

One shop has a scant half dozen of bracelets that will, I think, appeal to the woman who loves heavy barbaric jewelry. I do not know of what these bracelets are made, but they look like rare old ivory, yellowed by time. They are quite thick bands, with carved designs on one side, and are unusual both in appearance and price, for they bear the price tag of $1 each.

For names of shops address Woman's Page Editor or phone Wainut 2000 or Main 1001 between the hours of 9 and 5.

Read Your Character
By Dippy Phillips

The Dipping "D"
You have often noticed, perhaps, that many writers customarily bring the downstroke or stem of the letters "d" and "t" below the line.

You have noticed it—but has it meant anything to you?
You have often been drawn into discussions with argumentative persons who are very obstinate in their opinions, and with whom in large measure it is hopeless to argue. It's an experience that nearly always makes you wish you hadn't.

You can know enough in the future to avoid such experiences if only you know the reason well enough to have exchanged notes with him or her, or to have had a chance to look at some of his or her handwriting. For the dipping "d" and "t" are the marks of the argumentative and opinionated ones.

They may not always be seeking an argument. Perhaps they realize that they have a tendency this way, and consciously curb it. But when you see the downstrokes of the "d" and "t" dipping below the line, you know that the tendency is there, and, like the tendency to fight, you only have to go far enough to bring it to the surface.

At its worst, this tendency is described as "prejudice," "narrow-mindedness" and "bigotry." At its best people are likely to call it "unswerving loyalty," "firm faith," "knowing his own mind."

The Value of your food—
There is only one test by which economy in food may be measured

To be economical, an article of food must have high food value, nourishment, be readily assimilated and still remain reasonable in price. For a cheap food which fails to nourish or causes indigestion, you exchange your health and personal comfort—too high a price to pay for any food.

Bread-and-Milk is the perfect, balanced food, providing every particle of nourishment and food-value that the body needs for satisfaction and health.

A pound loaf of Bread contains the same food value as one and a half pounds of round steak, one and three-quarter pounds of chicken, one and a half pounds of mutton, three quarts of oysters or a dozen and a half of eggs.

Milk supplies all the nutrients to the diet—fats, carbohydrates and protein—and is capable alone of sustaining life for a comparatively long period.

This is Bread-and-Milk week! Don't let it pass without proving the value of more Bread-and-Milk on your table.
