

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

By DADDY Wishing Night

Jack and Janet are sent by the Wishing Fairy to tell the folks of the forest that each can have a wish, as it is Wishing Night. The forest folks prepare fine wishes, and wait the coming of the Wishing Fairy.

CHAPTER VI The One Good Wish JACK and Janet were anxious to see if the forest folks get their wishes. It would be fine to have everything summer, as the deer desired. It would be interesting, too, to see half the trees changed into nut trees, as wished by Percy Squirrel, and to have corn grow on bushes as Hackey Chipmunk wanted. It would be wonderful if the Wishing Fairy could make the trees into legs so the trees could dance and run. And it would be funny to see the establishment of a hunting hounds when the rabbits get teeth like voices and hair like porcupine quills.

The animals were gathered near the oak and elm trees when Jack and Janet got there with the Wishing Fairy. Dear Deer and Brave Buck were browsing on the bushes.

"These bushes aren't so tasty as they might be," said Dear Deer. "So do I," snorted Brave Buck. The Wishing Fairy waved her wand, and instantly Dear Deer and Brave Buck began to tick at the snow. "Why, here he is!" she said.

"I wish I had a dozen nuts to eat while waiting for that fairy to come," quipped Percy Squirrel. "And I wish I had a quart of corn," chirped Hackey Chipmunk. The Wishing Fairy waved her wand, and at once Percy Squirrel found the dozen nuts in the bush and Hackey Chipmunk found the quart of corn.

The handsome tree spirit youth and the beautiful tree spirit maiden were looking at the bare branches of the oak and elm.

"I wish my branches had a nice soft, pretty coat," sighed the youth. "I wish the same," sighed the maiden. The Wishing Fairy waved her wand and snow began to fall, clothing the oak and the elm in a nice, soft, pretty coat.

Jack and Janet saw this with delight. They knew what the animals and the tree spirits didn't know—that the wishers by making little wishes had lost the big wishes they had intended to make.

Hoppy-Hop and Hippy-Hop Rabbit were sitting on a snow bank, twitching their ears and wrinking their noses. Would they be wise enough to see their big wishes? But the rabbits were made hungry by watching Percy Squirrel and Hackey Chipmunk eat.

"I wish a big hole would open in this snow bank and at the bottom we would find nice, fresh cabbage," sighed Hoppy-Hop Rabbit. "I wish the same," murmured Hippy-Hop Rabbit. The Wishing Fairy waved her wand and instantly a hole like a well opened in the snow. Into this the rabbits vanished, Jack and Janet looked over the edge and saw them busy nibbling at nice fresh cabbages.

But the rabbits quickly found they had made a mistake in not making their intended wish for soft teeth and long quills. The hunting hounds came dashing through the woods, and plunged into the hole. They thought they had the rabbits.

But Hoppy-Hop and Hippy-Hop, though caught by surprise, began to kick like fury. They kicked snow into the faces of the dogs and whisked into deep burrows.

The hunting dogs, with eyes, noses, and mouths filled with snow looked very comical.

"Ha! Ha! Ha! I wish, I could see something as funny as that," laughed Jack. "I wish the same," laughed Janet. The Wishing Fairy waved her wand over Jack, and he knew in that instant he had lost his chance to get the rabbit that would always have money in it.

Janet was a wise little girl. She saw the wishes of the others go wrong. The wisher said, "For a girl heart that always will be as merry and joyful as on Christmas Day."

The Wishing Fairy waved her wand, and Janet found a warm glove come into her hand. She felt it would always be happy for all time.

shot back as the car sped away. The police claim to know one of the men in the car and promise an arrest shortly.
