

BABY'S SMILES IN COURT SYMPATHY IN COURT

Infant, Unwilling Victim of Love Tragedy, Cuddles in Grandmother's Arms

ONLY CRIER IS UNMOVED

"On your way!" If there was any sentiment at the hearing of the infant in the Court this morning, this must have been it.

"On your way," said the judge to the infant's grandmother, who was weeping at the doors and could show no reason why she should be let inside.

"On your way!" said the judge to the infant's grandmother, who was weeping at the doors and could show no reason why she should be let inside.

"On your way!" said the judge to the infant's grandmother, who was weeping at the doors and could show no reason why she should be let inside.

"On your way!" said the judge to the infant's grandmother, who was weeping at the doors and could show no reason why she should be let inside.

"On your way!" said the judge to the infant's grandmother, who was weeping at the doors and could show no reason why she should be let inside.

"On your way!" said the judge to the infant's grandmother, who was weeping at the doors and could show no reason why she should be let inside.

"On your way!" said the judge to the infant's grandmother, who was weeping at the doors and could show no reason why she should be let inside.

"On your way!" said the judge to the infant's grandmother, who was weeping at the doors and could show no reason why she should be let inside.

The above diagram gives a graphic illustration of the impact of Oscar Rosier, an advertising man, and his stenographer, Mildred Reckitt, the rooms of Mr. Rosier's office at Thirteenth and Walnut streets, in which Mrs. Rosier found her husband and stenographer, and fatally wounded both, are shown with the silhouettes indicating the principal figures of the double tragedy which is laid to jail.

Mrs. Rosier Held in Double Slaying

Continued from Page One The infant, Mrs. Rosier eagerly took the child in her arms.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier's Right to Victim's Estate in Doubt

Section 23, Intestate Act of 1917, says: "No person who shall be finally adjudged guilty, either as principal or accessory, of murder of first or second degree shall be entitled to inherit or take any part of a real or personal estate of a person killed, as surviving spouse, heir or next of kin—such person under the provisions of this act."

Lawyers say ordinarily under the law Mrs. Rosier is entitled to one-third of the estate even though Rosier did name his brother and child as his heirs.

Mrs. Rosier, they say, can take one-third or contest the will for the whole estate.

Mrs. Rosier, they say, can take one-third or contest the will for the whole estate.

Mrs. Rosier, they say, can take one-third or contest the will for the whole estate.

Mrs. Rosier, they say, can take one-third or contest the will for the whole estate.

Mrs. Rosier, they say, can take one-third or contest the will for the whole estate.

Mrs. Rosier, they say, can take one-third or contest the will for the whole estate.

Mrs. Rosier Asks to See Body of Slain Husband

Back in the courtroom after her hearing today, Mrs. Oscar Rosier asked to see the body of her slain husband.

Mrs. Rosier asked to see the body of her slain husband.

Mrs. Rosier asked to see the body of her slain husband.

Mrs. Rosier asked to see the body of her slain husband.

Mrs. Rosier asked to see the body of her slain husband.

Mrs. Rosier asked to see the body of her slain husband.

Mrs. Rosier asked to see the body of her slain husband.

Mrs. Rosier asked to see the body of her slain husband.

Mrs. Rosier Held in Double Slaying

Continued from Page One The infant, Mrs. Rosier eagerly took the child in her arms.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier Held in Double Slaying

Continued from Page One The infant, Mrs. Rosier eagerly took the child in her arms.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier Held in Double Slaying

Continued from Page One The infant, Mrs. Rosier eagerly took the child in her arms.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier Held in Double Slaying

Continued from Page One The infant, Mrs. Rosier eagerly took the child in her arms.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier Held in Double Slaying

Continued from Page One The infant, Mrs. Rosier eagerly took the child in her arms.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

Mrs. Rosier was sobbing, but she was crying for her husband, who she had loved so dearly.

TIPPED OUT OF BED, YOUNG UTICA FRESHMAN DIES

Frank Causes Death of Fifteen-Year-Old Hamilton Student

Diaphanous Talk on U. S. Problems

Mrs. Rosier in Tears

FEAR OF LLOYD GEORGE BRINGS SECRET DIPLOMACY

Body of Pontiff Lies in St. Peter's

ROSLIN

ROSLIN

ROSLIN