A READY-MADE FAIR SETTING

THE vision of the handsome permanent buildings which could adorn the Philadelphia World's Fair should be the first to be chosen by the municipal authorities.

A REAL DRY ENFORCER

WITH the appointment of the Rev. John T. Davis, of Blairsville, to succeed William C. McConnell as Federal Prohibition Director in this State, the advocates of the present system will feel that they can ask for.

IS THE REMEDY PREMATURE?

ALTHOUGH the Administration has not yet announced its policy regarding the French ministerial upheaval, it is probably a fair and honest trial.

THE RECURRENCE OF COX

JAMES M. COX, at the Jackson Day dinner of Ohio Democrats in Dayton, broke the silence that he has maintained since the day the election of 1920 by being the first to mention the name of William McKinley.

OVERCROWDED COLLEGES

DR. HIBBEN's appointment of a committee to sift out the applicants for admission to Princeton University in order to keep the number of students within 2000 calls attention to the shortage of accommodations in the colleges for young men seeking higher education.

THE FARMER, WITH BELLS ON, ARRIVES TO RUN WASHINGTON

An Alert, Informed, Aggressive Individual, Most Unlike the Humble Person of Melodrama

IT HAS been diverting to watch the incessant spasms of anxiety that sweep through Congress whenever any one mentions the Farmers' Bloc in the United States Congress.

Of the Farmers' Bloc and the implied demands of the Farmers' Congress in Washington there may be two opinions. There may be three. There may be twenty.

Mr. Harding's appeal to Minister Sze is said to have emphasized the immense gains to be made by the farmer.

Mr. Harding's personal arbitration bears fruit, the results will most happily affect the farmers and other foreign agitators.

A NOVEL HOUSING PLAN

SAMUEL INTERMYER'S latest plan for relieving the housing shortage in New York is through co-operation between the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and the Thompson-Street Company.

SNOWBALLS BY MACHINERY

WHETHER the American Society of Mechanical Engineers can bring about the adoption of Thomas A. Edison's snow-blasting machine by the street-cleaning department of New York is an open question.

His Jackson Day speech did not once rise to the level of statesmanship. The United States, according to him, is responsible for the unsatisfactory conditions that prevail in the world.

Now that it is what I mean by having an honest man of values, you can be in it with persons and not go under mentally, but you cannot let yourself and not be your own victim.

AS ONE WOMAN SEES IT

Honesty is the Best Policy in Artistic Values, Even Though Water Lilies Sometimes Look Like Hard-Boiled Eggs

BY SARAH D. LOWRIE
LAST week I was calling on an old friend of mine in her New York studio.

THE artist herself was also good and comfortable, and gave one pleasant sensation after another.

It was at that time she had turned to her art to give her uttermost freedom from poverty.

SHE learned that such pictures are easiest hung on the line, and she learned the ropes for all the recurring details.

AND she accomplished the miracle of living by art as well as living for art.

I became very dirty with the accumulation of dirt from the brush and palette.

THE conference called by President Harding for last Monday, and which is still in session, was summoned by the President to ascertain what steps might be taken for the improvement of the condition of the farming population.

THE prosperity of the United States is a whole impinged directly upon the prosperity of the agricultural, and this includes even the great cities, such as Philadelphia, in the opinion of Charles F. Jenkins.

AS one woman sees it, honesty is the best policy in artistic values, even though water lilies sometimes look like hard-boiled eggs.

"WELL! WELL! COME TO LIFE!"

BRAN, perhaps, wishes to be considered a chip of the old block.

It doesn't seem to warm us to know that it is 44 below in Maine.

As bonus advocates see it, Uncle Sam's stand is "Millions for defense but not one cent for tribute."

Los Angeles would probably indignantly deny that it is suffering from fatigues.

The four bandits who got $5 out of a local butcher shop probably spent the money later on a steak.

Mary Garden continues to possess the most competent and good-tempered press agent in the country—herself.

Just being reading of a girl who hit the bull's eye 100 times out of a possible 200. Wonder what she was aiming at?

Spite of continued widespread unemployment, it is a cold day when somebody doesn't find a new job for Mr. Hoover.

Uncle Sam's stand on Japanese occupation of Siberia very happily has the endorsement of a large slice of Japanese public opinion.

NOW MY IDEA IS THIS!
