"LEGS SORE FROM KICKS"

New York, Feb. 3.—W. E. D. Stokes, the millionaire hotel owner, yesterday declared that at one time his wife. Helen Elwood Stokes, assaulted him and that he had to flee for his life while she pursued him with a butcher knife. This was the first time in any on the ground that it would constitute the stokes. knife. This was the first time in any of the trials between Stokes and his pretty young wife that any charge of an assault on Mr. Stokes has been made.

action brought by his wife in the Supreme Court to recover her dower rights in forty-nine pieces of property, which she is alleged to have signed away.

Mr. Stokes said the attack on him occurred in Mrs. Stokes's apartment in the Ansonia Hotel on November 20, 1916, after a heated argument in which Mrs. Stokes demanded an apartment for herself and children at some other place.

Mr. Stokes said he told his wife that he could not and would not supply her with another apartment, and that if she insisted on securing one she would put

"Mrs. Stokes flew at me and tore my face to pieces. I have a sear here—" indicating a mark on his left temple.

"She spat in my face and kicked my legs. Then she seized a butcher knife, and as I fled through the kitchen the cook came out and saved me."

That same day, he said, he wrote Mrs. Stokes declaring his "face was so badly scratched I am ashamed to be seen. My legs are sore from your kicks and I am greatly humiliated by being spat in the face by one whom I love so much."

We stokes decided that the had a man from the State.

Now, some of my best friends are veterinarians. I contend that a man who can treat epizootic is just as noble a creature as one who can fix a creature as lower in any scale than carbon, or that blind staggers is less significant than a short circuit. In fact, the symptoms are quite similar.

But since veterinarians seem to have no champion. I shall champion them. I have nothing much to do this morning anyway, and it might just as well be veterinarians as something clae.

There are many important reasons why a horse is more desirable than an automobile. In the first place, there is no comparison in the original cost or the up-keep. A horse doesn't need to be repainted or remphoistered. One set of hoofs is good for a lifetime. He will go farther on one ear of corn than any car can go on a pint of gasoline. He doesn't freeze up in the winter. He
