FOR FAIR SITE

Port Development One of Arguments Advanced by Committee

THREE BODIES FAVOR PARK

Basing arguments on port development, construction of a Federal building, creation of a university of Philadelphia and converting 3000 acres of city-owned land into a modern wonder of the world, the South Philadelphia Sesqui-Centennial Committee contended last night at a meeting that that section was the best site for the world's fair.

The committee last and completed its organization at the City Club. The merits of the South Philadelphia site, adjacent to League Island, were presented in words and pictures.

Simultaneous meetings were held by proponents of the Hog Island site at Fifty-seventh street and Woodland avenue, and an exposition of the Cret plan was given at the West Philadelphia branch of the Y. W. A. The Northeast Business Men's Association approved the Cret plan at a meeting.

Park Site Boomed

With three organizations empowered to investigate the subject, recommending the adoption of the Fairmount Park-Parkway site for the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition, plans were started by the Mayor and the Executive Committee to select a site within the next two weeks. No decision will be reached until all have had an opportunity to be heard.

Public hearings will begin at 2:30 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon in the Mayor's office. It is felt that the public's interest is thoroughly aroused.

As soon as the Executive Committee has settled upon a site, Congress will be asked to aid the fair.

The Fairmount Park-Parkway site was recommended by the Engineers' Club, the Philadelphia Real Estate Board and the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Institute of Architects in reports made public at yesterday's meeting of the Executive Committee. The organizations had been authorized by the committee to collect data regarding the fourteen sites under discussion. They considered hotel accommodations, railroad facilities, accessibility and the general transportation question.

Two Other Sites Urged

Added to the three sites are Pennypack Park, urged by the Northeast Sesqui-Centennial Association, and the Houston Estate in Roxborough. Plans were completed for the site at a meeting in the Metropolitan Opera House on the night of February 13 to promote the Pennypack site.

As an opening wedge in the South Philadelphia movement, fifty-three acres of unimproved land between League Island and the South Philadelphia plaza were offered by the owners free and for an unlimited time. Charles Shtaline offered twenty-five acres, B. Dintenfuss twenty-five and Maurice Allans three.

Some of the advantages voiced for League Island were that it contains about 3000 acres, enough for parking space of thousands of automobiles; accessibility, being only two and one-half miles from the center of the city; adequate transportation facilities; low cost, as the city already has expended millions of dollars to improve the section, and the fact that the section is virtually vacant would make the cost of demolition negligible.

Andrew Wright Crawford, a member of the Art Jury, told of the advantages of the Parkway-Schuykill site at a meeting in the West Branch of the Y. M. C. A. Fifty-second and Sanson streets, under the auspices of the West Philadelphia Section Site Association. Homer C. Davis, president of the association, presided.

Resolutions were adopted requesting the Exposition Commission to adopt the Parkway-Schuykill site.

More than a thousand business men and citizens from all parts of southwest Philadelphia were told their community could be transformed into a "veritable Venice" if it should be chosen as the exposition site, by William R. Bricker, president of the Hog Island Section Site Association. He spoke at an organization meeting of the body in the Fortieth Ward Republican Club, Fifty-seventh street and Woodland avenue.

AID TO CONTINUATION PUPILS
Spiritual Interest in Them Urged by Teacher

The necessity for continuation teachers to aid their pupils through spiritual interest in them was the subject of an address by Miss Margaret T. Maguire, principal of the McCall Public School, Sixth and Du Lane streets, last night at a meeting of the Continuation Teachers of Philadelphia in the Longacre Hotel. Miss Jean B. Hagerty, president of the Continuation Teachers' Section, was chairman of the meeting, which followed a dinner.

"Continuation pupils," said Miss Maguire, "may be divided into two classes—those who were compelled to leave school because of poverty and those who left school because they did not care to go. The first will turn into first-class citizens when the continuation teacher can reach their hearts. The second should be admired for their initiative in getting out of something they do not like. Both belong to the class who later learn they have their opportunity to obtain education. And it is for the continuation teacher to help the child find himself by close and spiritual contact with him."

WOMAN DIES ON TRAIN

Mrs. Sarah Robinson, Camden, Colapses After Leaving Atlantic City

Mrs. Sarah Robinson, of 528 North Eighth street, Camden, died suddenly of heart disease yesterday afternoon on a Pennsylvania Railroad train leaving Atlantic City shortly after 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Robinson, who had been sitting in Atlantic City since December, missed the train on which she had intended to return and had hurried in order to catch the next. Soon after the train left Atlantic City she collapsed. A physician on the train pronounced her dead. The body was brought to Camden.

Mrs. Robinson, who was sixty-two years old, had made her home with a son, Joseph B. Robinson.

SENATE CONFIRMS KEMP

Colonel is Now Postmaster After Delay of Weeks

Nomination of Colonel George E. Kemp to be Postmaster was confirmed by the Senate yesterday after a delay of several weeks.

While there was no opposition to the nomination of the colonel, the death of Senator Penrose caused the Senate to postpone action on the nomination. Senator Pepper subsequently endorsed the nomination, and it was accepted in the Senate without dispute.
