WHAT a very smart costume Mrs.

Warthur Emlen Newbold, Jr., is wearing these days! I saw her on Chestnut street vesterday carefully picking her way along the street and dodging up near buildings, just as I was, to escape the myd which the fastmoing motors dash up on the pavement, and which absolutely ruins your clothes

She was wearing a long, gray coat, trimmed at the collar with gray fur, and a shoulder cape was attached from the back of the collar and reached to the waistline. Her hat was a small foque of gray, and she wore gray silk stockings, black patent leather slippers, gray gloves and a small gray silk handbag. She looked extremely well, and I do hope she reached her destination without having her lovely costume for the clubhouse, 1811 Ranstead street.

FIHERE will be much entertaining in Palm Beach for Louise Cromwell Brooks, Mrs. Stotesbury's daughter, who is to be married for the second time on Valentine's Day at the Stotesbury home down there. I hear the Howsard F. Hansells have gone to Palm Beach to attend the feativities before the wedding as well as the wedding itself, and they are occupying a cottage together with Sidney Thayer.

You know Mrs. Hansell was Mildred MacArthur, and she is a kister of Brigadler General MacArthur, who is the bridgeroom-elect. He is a son of the late General MacArthur, of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Kern, Jr., have gone up to Yale to attend the Prom this week. Although I have heard of the going, I have not heard the actual date of the Prom, but I suspect it was last night, and probably the festivities will go on into tonight. When you go will go on into tonight. last night, and probably the festivities will go on into tonight. When you go to Yale you just naturally prepare for a straight round of good times from the minute you land there till you leave. Banning Grange, Eleanor Sloane and Jean Riley all left yesterday and Lydia Clothier went up to stay with some friends over the week-end and to be there for the festivities. Won't they all have a wonderful time.

I you are a pedestrian and some one swoops off the end of your nose with the edge of his or her car by dashing suddenly before you without a note of warning? Still I could not but be amazed the other day when a girl you w and I know came airily along the street and rushed into a garage just in front of a man and girl, without a sign of a horn or toot of any

The man in question sharply re-marked, and I did not blame him: "Why didn't you blow your horn?" and, with amazing impudence, the lady, so called, answered sweetly: "Why
