Letters to the Editor

Boost Philadelphia
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—I notice that the EVENING PUBLIC LEADER continually boosts Philadelphia, telling the world what wonderful city it is. This attitude on the part of your newspaper spreads optimism among our people, a thing of great benefit to us all.

MISS LILLIAN GETIS
Philadelphia, Feb. 7, 1922.

Why He Opposes Bonus
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—I am a patriotic American and have the greatest admiration for the young men who gave up their employment and entered the World War, either of their own free will or by being called up by the draft.

no doubt, suffered from lack of money and loss of income, but they should remember that they were not the only ones who suffered in this respect. Hundreds of thousands were left behind when they were, who remained home with dependent ones and were compelled to support them, only a small percentage doing work for the great majority at pre-war salaries. In other words, the bonus was more than doubled in every way.

These radical bonus-seekers forget this, or are not familiar with the conditions that existed at home, and the struggles those men not in the service had to contend with. The Government paid the men—a small sum, it is true, but look at what they received on all sides. The Government paid all their expenses, gave them a very cheap insurance, looked after their families and helped them in every way possible. Contrast their condition with many of those at home who were compelled to work and support families on from $20 to $30 a week, with the rents doubled, prices of food and clothing all at a price beyond their reach.

GEORGE T. LANIER
Philadelphia, February 7, 1922.

Makes Plan for the Bonus
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—Reading a Philadelphia evening paper of a recent date, I happened across a headline that read something like this:

"Forty-five million dollars yearly cost to the Government for disabled soldiers," which means ex-servicemen. Too bad, indeed, that it should be under such expense to the Government. The cost of the bonus is the loss of their own futures. Does the Government think that the service man is putting himself on the back for the few dollars he receives? A line drawn near where the ex-servicemen will have a chance to leave the Congressmen in where they are or get them out, and they can do it if they use their heads.

Let the Legion take up politics and keep it clean. See that the right men are put up and they will be elected by a vast majority, as I think for one that to be sure of the right men going to Congress comes under the head of 100 per cent Americanism. Don't allow tools of other nations to be elected to the American first all the time.

Let the boys fought for America and let it be America first all the time, not only in case of war, Mr. Congressman, get busy and don't let it be said by other countries that our service men are dying of starvation and lack of food, etc., because of neglect of Congress and our equal rights President.

AN OVI.
Philadelphia, February 1, 1922.

The Sesqui-Centennial Buildings
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—I never could see the policy in building a great world's fair to mark the buildings merely temporary structures when the greater sum they could be made permanent buildings to be used for all sorts of purposes for future generations. For that reason I am in favor of the site of the Parkway and Fairmount Park, and have the plans so drawn that the main structure will be built for permanency, to be used later as a big convention hall for this city, which we so badly need.

Make the machinery hall a substantial structure, and when it has served its fair purposes, it can be transformed into a building for our fine Commercial Museum. Build the art palace as a permanent structure, the horticultural hall, and most of the other buildings at such points along the Parkway and in the park that they can remain there permanently, not only as an adornment to the city, but as a place for the education and edification of the people who must spend the money for their construction.

S. L. JUDSON.
Philadelphia, February 6, 1922.

Religion and Money
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—The peace dollar is the name of the new silver dollar now being coined in the Philadelphia Mint. On the back of the new coin is the figure of an angel standing on a mountain top. An angel

Who Is to Blame: Mistress or Maid?

Asks Only Human Consideration
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—I have read with very much interest most of the letters that you have printed on the servant girl problem, and see no reason why this question should not be settled through a little consideration on both sides. A servant girl has always been looked upon as a mental in the home, and as a sort of a lackey to do the bidding of the entire family. This is in strong contrast to the shop girl, the factory or office girl. It is the humiliation that she receives that brings about the general unsatisfactory conditions that exist.

The War and Domestic Service
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—The servant girl has been spoiled by the war, just as have those who have been employed in various lines, but left such employ to enter war work for the better pay it offered. If these girls were allowed to do domestic help, for girls were used in munition factories at very high wages, and in other lines as well, and they have not been able to the normal condition.

Thanks for Old Song
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—Please accept my thanks for the poem which you have taken to get me a copy of the old song called "The Mountain Sheep," which was published in last Saturday's Evening Public Ledger. I am sure that your country is very much appreciated. A. J. C.
Philadelphia, February 6, 1922.

"The Mountain Sheep"
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—I hope one of your readers will be able to furnish you with a poem for printing which contains the line, "The heart like a tender, the mountain sheep are sicker. But the valley sheep were fatter. And thus we thought it 'mocker'." To carry off the latter: We have away from battle, And thus we thought it 'mocker'.

Thomas Moore Poem
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—Seeing request of "J. K. L." for the poem containing the line, "The heart like a tender," I am enclosing the complete poem. G. R. H. CHELL,
Conshohocken, Pa., January 21, 1922.

Almost a Mental Wreck
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—Believe me, Sidney Smith, you have made almost a mental wreck of this and stated also that it is going to me. I never will stand for Bin and me. I am sure that Bin and the Widow at the altar it will be "Say It With Flowers" for yours truly. I open the paper with fear and trembling every day as I see how the Widow is tightening the noose around Bin's neck, and this Australian kangaroo is being led to the slaughter.

MRS. H. C. GEORGE.
Philadelphia, February 7, 1922.

Questions Answered
A Is Right
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—A says it is not unlawful for him to keep a loaded revolver in his home for protection. B says that he could have A arrested if he wanted to, and fined for keeping firearms in the home. Which is right?
W. W. W.
Philadelphia, February 3, 1922.

Late Chief Justice's Will
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—Some time ago there was published a notice in your paper of the very short will written by the late Chief Justice White. Can you publish this will, as it is about?
W. L. G.
Philadelphia, February 5, 1922.

Author of Tarzan Books
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—I would like to know a little something about the author of the wonderful "Tarzan" books. He is called Edgar Rice Burroughs, known for his "Tarzan" books, was born in Chicago, September 1, 1875. He attended the Phillips Andover Academy at Orchard Lake, Michigan. After a short service in the seventh United States Cavalry at Fort Grant, Ariz., he became treasurer of the American Battery Company in Chicago, and later became connected with several business houses. Since 1911 he has been a gold miner in Oregon, a stockbroker and cowboy in Idaho, and a politician in Salt Lake.

Patent Regulations
To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—I saw a notice of a patent device with a view to manufacturing it. They did not want it, they said. I think, for one, that it is not a patent. How can I prevent their infringing on my patent rights? Second, is there a patent law? Third, how can I prove my patent is a good one? Fourth, who does the United States Patent Office allow patents which are not "good"?
W. L. T.
Philadelphia, February 3, 1922.

First
First, collect your royalties by suing for infringement.

Second
Second, no, but if your chances look good you might be able to get an attorney to undertake the matter on a contingent fee.

Third
Third, that is for the attorney to work out.

Fourth
Fourth, patents which have been completely anticipated are not intentionally registered. If an earlier patent covering some essential element of your combination, but you have improved on the earlier idea, it might be proper to issue a patent to you, but you would not be entitled to manufacture without getting the first patent holder's consent.

When the Price is the Same

—don't you buy brands you know are best?

EVAPORATED Milk has become a necessity in most households. Borden's Evaporated Milk is a brand which meets the demands of critical American housekeepers. It is pure country milk with the cream left in—absolutely necessary in so much of your cooking.

Borden's Evaporated Milk is handled under rigid inspection from the dairy to your grocer's shelf. Herds carefully inspected and tested by skilled veterinarians, containers and their contents protected from dust, utensils properly sterilized—these and other safeguards mean a great deal in the safety of the milk you use every day.

Your grocer sells Borden's for the price of other standard brands, even though it sometimes costs him a little more. He knows that Borden's suits and satisfies his best customers.

ANNOUNCES THE SALE OF THEIR ENTIRE STOCK OF JEWELRY
AT A FLAT REDUCTION OF 50%

THIS is the opportunity of a decade. Reductions are common in such a commodity as apparel, for instance, but seldom in fine jewelry. And what jewelry sale do you ever remember, which presented such a golden opportunity as this? Certainly not in the recollection of this institution has there ever been another sale in which jewelry of the Charles J. Maxwell & Co. calibre could be bought at fifty cents on the dollar. We will not attempt to explain it. You may draw your own conclusions. We are offering reductions, not reasons. We have cut every former price in two, and invite you to participate in the spoils. But do it now, as the sale will be brief. So many people are looking for just this sort of an opportunity that delay will surely mean disappointment.
