they have the sext hoor space, although the play is on an open court and the ball is often out of bounds. The team has enjoyed a most successful season, defeating all the leading clubs, such as Kayoula and West Chester, on the home court. It is also planned to play remea with other Factors Lawsuc out games with other Eastern League quin-tets here.

Two teams of different make-up meet in the Manufacturers' clash. One is a defensive combination and the other sticks to Glen Warner's theory that a good offense is the best defense, as is borne out by the records. Ratings on the offense, giving Art Loom 1.000, show Railway to toss baskets only at a percentage of .639, while, on the other hand, giving Railway 1.000 as a defensive combination. Art Loom is only .616 as good. The comparative fig-ures are appended :

This is the interest-gripping theme around which Frank L. Packard has written another thrilling story of adventure, love and rapid-fire

By Frank L. Packard, author of "The Miracle Man," "The Adventures of Jimmie Dale," and "From Now On," which appeared recently in the Evening Public Ledger.

Not pawned things but pawned people!

By a curious turn of fate each character in this novel, considered by many to be Frank L. Packard's best, finds himself pawned to another. None can act as he himself desires, but only as another dictates.
