It is possible that they swore that they would get some of this world's goods out of the selfish idle rich men who prey upon women. That Is What a Clergyman Calls It—His Attitude of Half-Amused Contempt Is a Good Cure for Foolishness.

THE clergyman who always looks at things in the broadest, sanest, most tolerant way was talking about modern girls and boys.

"When you see these young girls flapping along with their galoahes unfastened," he said, "that's not a lack of just as woolly as the open galoahes one.

tened," he said, "that's not a lack of morality—that's unused brains!"

If more of us would adopt his attitude there wouldn't be so much of what we call "wildness" among the boys and girls.

When you stop to think it over sanely and quietly, that's all there is to any fad—just a lot of unused brains getting exercise.

That's the trouble with so many of the Big Movements of Modern Life, those activities that go in for capital letters and enthusiastic gestures.

They are invariably begun and kept up by people whose brains are not occupied at the time.

And that's the reason they so seldom get anywhere with their effort to reform or revolutionize or otherwise upset the whole world.

They are comparatively harmless if let alone and laughed at.

There is no foundation for them to stand on, they are just a lot of fluff, the result of a few "unused brains" trying to start something.

Adventures With a Purse A LONG, long time ago I told you A about a soap that I felt sure you would want to know about. You renember its purpose is to whiten and bleach the hands, for which purpose it contains a generous portion of lemon contains a generous portion of lemon juice. In fact, the soap itself is made in the exact shape and color of a lemon, and as I look now at the cake that I bought, only the fact that I have used bought, only the fact that I have used it assures me that it really is a cake of soap, and not a lemon. Well, when I wrote about it before, the price of a cake was fifty cents, which is, of course, quite high. But yesterday I found it for twenty cents a cake, so of course I immediately bought a cake. And, having used it, I can honestly recommend it. Particularly will the woman who has to do housework or other work that is hard on her hands appreciate its soothing, bleaching qualities.
