

HAZERS BAD SPORTS
AYDELOTTE SAYS

Head of Swarthmore Asserts
Fair Play Is on Trial in Student Crisis

SCHOOL SHARPLY DIVIDED

Hazing is an "unsportsmanlike" practice and counts with the principle of fair play, Dr. Frank Aydelotte, president of Swarthmore College, says in a statement today in The Phoenix, the school's publication.

Dr. Aydelotte says the matter of abolishing hazing is entirely up to the student government system, which he declares that the present government system is now being placed on trial.

In an editorial this morning, the school paper says the college faces a "serious crisis" and that it is up to the men to make a decision whether or not "physical punishment will be abolished."

"Frankly speaking," says the editorial, "the situation has now gone so far that the men can no longer have much choice as to a decision. The college authorities have definitely agreed that the 'modified hazing' system, such as we have been witnessing, must go."

"They prefer that the students themselves will voluntarily abolish it. They are not reluctant to state that if they do not, Dr. Aydelotte was speaking seriously when he declared that the student government at Swarthmore is on trial."

At present a student committee of the student government executive committee is investigating the "special party" last Sunday night as the result of which two students left the institution.

The students' association called a meeting following their departure and passed a motion condemning corporal punishment as a method of "freshmen correction."

The departure of the two freshmen, Owen Rhoads and Hugh Elshoff, was the only possible course for them, according to their fellow classmates.

CITY IS RAPPED
IN AUTO FATALITY

Thomas Connelly, 1635 North
15th Street, Killed at 19th
and Diamond

The city was criticized today for failure to repair a supposed hole in the street at Nineteenth and Diamond streets which, through an automobile accident, led to the death of a man last night.

Thomas Connelly, thirty-five, 1635 North Fifteenth street, and James Kane, 1615 North Hutchinson street, were crossing Diamond street at Nineteenth at 2:40 P. M. yesterday when they were struck by a motorcar driven by Harry Rosenzweig, 506 South street.

Connelly's skull was fractured and he died at 11:45 o'clock last night in the Women's Homeopathic Hospital. Kane was injured about the back, but will recover.

When arraigned today before Magistrate Roberts in the Twentieth and Berks streets station today, Rosenzweig said his machine ran into a hole in the street, which caused the car to swerve sharply and strike the two men.

"I know the hole is there," said Magistrate Roberts. "It could have caused the accident just as you described it. The police have reported its existence a hundred times. The city ought to fill it in the hole."

The magistrate said while he accepted Rosenzweig's explanation he had no alternative but was compelled to hold him without bail for the coroner. Rosenzweig's wife was in the machine when the accident occurred.

Connelly and Kane were salesmen for a cloth company and came here from New York City.

Examination of the street today showed no actual hole, though near the curb there is a depression in which water has collected.

MYSTERY OF LEIPERVILLE SOLVED BY MOVING STORY

Bewildered Citizen Thought Some One Had Twisted Landscape

Residents of the borough of Leiper-ville, Delaware County, would not be surprised now to awake some morning and find that some of the houses had changed their position on the map by a few squares.

One Leiper-ville citizen was walking along Woodland avenue the other day and noted that the landscape had about its usual contour. Returning by the same route an hour later, he discovered that one of the houses had disappeared.

Puzzling over the mystery, he walked on, and about a half mile further discovered the missing house in an entirely new environment.

Determined to get at the bottom of the uncanny state of affairs, he questioned George Worrall, a contractor, whom he saw working about the house.

"That's easy," Mr. Worrall explained. "You see, yesterday we put skids under the house. Today we attached an automobile to it and slid it over the snow. The man next door bought it for a garage, and we figured that that was the easiest way to remove it."

BANDITS GET $46
FROM TWO MEN

Didn't Make Enough to Pay for Gasoline From First Victim

Four youthful highwaymen, who traveled in a somewhat elaborate automobile, held up two men in the northern part of the city early this morning and obtained $46.

Harry Cockroft, 4332 North Franklin street, was robbed of $4 at Hunting Park avenue and Marshall street. "This won't pay for the gasoline," said one of the bandits in disgust. "We'll have to pull another job on this trip to make it worth while."

They sped out Hunting Park avenue. A few minutes later the robbers took $42 from Samuel Becker, of 4332 North Seventeenth street, at Thirtieth and Oakdale streets.

"Well, this was better than the other haul we had," they told Becker, and without giving any further explanation, left him standing in the street.

"We'll have time to get another man before daylight," shouted one of the robbers as they rode away. From descriptions of the men given by Becker, police believe they are the same ones who held up Cockroft.

Crofut Wants Job Back

Henry Crofut, former drill master in the Police Department, has brought suit against the city, Mayor Moore, Director Cortelyou and the Civil Service Board in Court of Common Pleas No. 2. It is understood the suit is for reinstatement.

FOR MECHANICAL DRAWINGS
CRANE'S Bond Paper is used in many ways little suspected by the business man who has admired it as letter-paper.
For instance, it is used by draughtsmen for mechanical drawings. Such a paper must be thin and tough, for tracings and blueprints. The all-new-rag stock in Crane's Bond give it toughness, evenness of surface and purity of color, very acceptable to the architect or engineer.
Here again the qualities that cause Crane's paper to be a necessity to the draughtsman as it is to the engraver of stock certificates, make it highly desirable for particularly fine business stationery.
