INSULT THE PRINCE? BARTENDER SHOTS NEVER! SAYS BLINK

So the Silvermans, the Brachycephalic and Sententious Secretary's Family Were Shunned

THAT FAUX PAS OF MAX'S

Blink McCloskey (nee Louis Silverman) and Prince Mohamed Ali Ibrahim, favorite of fortune, came to Philadelphia yesterday and stayed an hour and a half.

This was to provide an opportunity for Blink to behold again his aged parents, his brothers and sisters, his multitudinous cousins, nephews, brothers-in-law and other odd relations.

Telephones His Regrets The reasons why Blink simply couldn't find time yesterday and had to telephone his regrets, are a bit vague to those who know some but not all of the business of the royal house of Egypt.

Much depends on what happened to Blink McCloskey between 4:30 and 5:30 when he returned to the Bellevue-Stratford to take the Prince and the Prince's companion to the 6 o'clock train for New York.

It had been understood that Blink would be present in person to bid his family. This supposition, however, proved wrong.

Last night at the royal suite in the Hotel Biltmore Blink explained: "I wouldn't insult the Prince by asking him to come to the city."

Blink is brachycephalic and sententious. The words, "the greatest of pleasure" and "I assure you," recur with every five sentences or so of his conversation.

They left the Biltmore at 11:30—not in a twelve-cylinder racer, but in a hired motor of plebeian design.

Mahomed Ali Ibrahim explained nothing—he didn't have to.

Dainty Where Blink is Ponderous Some have described the Prince as the contradiction of his braised-ear social secretary—dainty, where Blink is ponderous; sure, where Blink is tentative; but his figure is what Blink's probably was at the age of sixteen.

Five hours later a middle-aged individual, more resplendent in dress than even Mohamed Ali Ibrahim himself, entered the lobby.

A young woman in an inescapable afternoon gown of carmine and black, who had been waiting upward of an hour in the lobby, rose and greeted Mohamed Ali Ibrahim.

Blink left the hotel, for a moment as he said, to have the car taken to a garage.

A few minutes later a middle-aged individual, more resplendent in dress than even Mohamed Ali Ibrahim himself, entered the lobby.

"Tell me," the woman was saying, softly, "what do you like most about—about this country?"

The Prince looked into her eyes until she lowered them.

"I like most," he replied in a gentle voice, "blonds."

The young woman was a reporter. "Pardon me, sir, Prince," said Mr. Silver, tapping Mohamed Ali on the shoulder.

"Ah, yes," said the Prince, in a sort of growl, "sit down."

Mr. Silverman sat down and put his arm around the young lady's chair.

At the end of an hour Blink came back. Mr. Silverman rushed upon him and kissed him. Locked in embrace they repeated "Oh! Oh!" several times.

"I come back Wednesday," said Blink, "with the greatest of pleasure, I assure you."

Finality to the 9th Power There was finality for you, so Blink took the Prince outside to be photographed, while Mr. Silverman looked on with a proprietary air and passed out a few more cards.

Some reports in New York last night were that the Prince's purpose in this country is to open an American branch of an Egyptian cigarette factory.

HOLD DRIVER WHO HIT BOY Is Alleged to Have Driven Away Without Calling Aid

Joseph Goodman, Former Pugilist, Denied Whisky and Starts to Wreck Saloon

DOZEN HELD AS WITNESSES

A former pugilist, crazed by drugs and a craving for liquor, was shot twice by a bartender early today after he began wrecking a saloon at Eighth and South streets.

Joseph Goodman, twenty-four years old, the wounded man, lives in Mildred street near Christian. In the Pennsylvania Hospital with a bullet in his chest and another in the right forearm.

"We haven't any whisky," Ruggera said he told Goodman.

When Ruggera persisted in his refusal, Goodman, armed with a pair of boxing gloves and bottles began hurling them in every direction.

Police say Goodman boxed in preliminary bouts under the name of Willie Hines.

THE JUST TOOK A RIDE Four-Year-Old Boy Couldn't Resist "Such a Nice Day"

Because yesterday was "such a nice day," four-year-old Clarence Bartlett, Lansdale, climbed aboard a Philadelphia and Reading train and told the conductor, John Fawthrop, that he was "going to take a ride."

"All right," said Fawthrop, "we're going to Doylestown. Where do you go?"

The conductor took the boy in charge, but on the return trip from Doylestown forgot to unload his passenger at Lansdale. At North Wales Clarence was turned over to Ticket Agent Frank.

BOY'S BAIL INCREASED Two Additional Charges of Theft Made Against Patrolman's Son

Two additional charges were brought against Edward Lafferty, seventeen, of Bonhall and Clearfield streets, held in $1000 bail for the theft of an automobile last Friday.

Lafferty is said by police to be a member of a gang which operates in the vicinity of Twenty-third and Clearfield streets.

RISK MEN TO BE HOSTS Will Dine Commissioner Donaldson This Evening

Nearly 1200 insurance men are expected to attend the dinner this evening at which the guest of honor will be Thomas B. Donaldson, State Insurance Commissioner and president of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

WILLS PROBATED The following wills were probated today: Philip H. Bauer, 1929 Unity street, $10,800; Patrick Cunningham, 6031 Walnut street, $4384; Anne Haran, 2742 North Taylor street, $6000; John Keary, 221 East Princeton street, $10,000; Patrick Murtha, 2700 Sears street, $5200; Celestia G. Derriekson, 2421 North College avenue, $2500; Frederick Schieber, 501 West Erie street, $5000.

After-Dinner Tricks No. 108—The Walking Matches. The ends of two matches are notched, and they are pushed together so the matches form a letter V.

There is really no trick to this puzzle problem. Merely hold the knife handle tightly, and see that the tips of the matches just rest on the table.
