Purchasing Agents' Orders Accepted

Wanamaker & Brown Philadelphia.

Dear Mr. Rudduck:

The suit arrived Monday evening. It is eminently satisfactory, as usual. The fit is very good. For over forty years Wanamaker & Brown have been making my suits, overcoats, etc., and all have been very satisfactory. Much of the time I have been living hundreds of miles away from Oak Hall, and sometimes it has been several years between visits for remeasurements, etc.

I wish to thank you for your personal interest in the matter, for I am sure that much of the success I have had with my suits, etc., is due to the personal interest taken by you and others before you in my orders.

That's the kind of satisfaction we are giving hundreds of customers in our annual Spring tailoring offer of $60 to $75 Suits and Top Coatings.

Built To Measure $39

Extra trousers, if you want them, for $11 additional.

Remember, the offer closes on Saturday, March 18, and those who take quick advantage of it naturally will receive best choice.

TO TAB CAMDEN SALOON VISITORS

Police Order Is in Connection With New Enforcement Campaign

RESIDENTS RESENT MOVE

Policemen in Camden began today to prepare lists of persons who frequent the saloons there, in obedience to instructions issued at all the police stations.

This action is being taken in connection with a new campaign for enforcement of the prohibition law.

The police are also preparing lists of all saloons suspected of continuing the selling of alcoholic liquors.

Chief of Police Gravenor ordered that every patrolman turn in a report concerning saloons and saloon patrons on his beat after a conference with prohibition enforcement officers.

It is understood that the lists, containing information about saloon keepers and their patrons, will be used to guide the prohibition enforcers in their future Camden drives.

The sacking of the names of persons entering saloons has caused resentment.

Plans have been approved by the Council for the vacation of parts of Van Hook, Viola, Jasper and Emerald streets to make room for the building of the new Reading Railway at the foot of Mechanic street in Camden.

In exchange for the street ends the city is to be given 220 feet of river-front property by the railway company.

It was stated today by representatives of the railway that as soon as the plans are also approved by the City Council at the coming session work on the building of the terminal will be started in earnest.

It is planned to have the work finished by June, 1923. The new terminal is to cost about $2,500,000.

On charges of obtaining money under false pretenses, Albert Ussett, of West and Royden streets, Camden, was arrested in Camden yesterday.

Entering the drug store of Wilbert J. Leth, Third and Washington streets, he wrote a prescription himself and asked the clerk to send it with several toilet articles with change for $10 to a house in Washington street, near Third.

It is charged that when the messenger arrived he was met by Ussett, who took the money and goods and asked the messenger to sit on a step until he returned with the $10 bill. He failed to return.

Automobilists who use glaring headlights are to be prosecuted as violators of the laws governing the use of motor vehicles. State inspectors have been instructed to take the number of all cars being operated with glaring lights.

On an attachment suit brought in the Circuit Court by the Merchantsville National Bank, Under Sheriff Hewitt yesterday afternoon forced open the safe deposit box rented by Alfred D. Mitchell, missing former city treasurer of Salem.

He found only two letters from Philadelphia brokers. The bank brought the attachment to recover $2,500 loaned Mitchell on a note several months ago. He gave as security for the loan Salem municipal bonds.

Representatives of nineteen subordinate lodges gathered at the fortieth annual session of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey, Independent Order of Mechanics, in Camden yesterday.

William Duncan, grand secretary of West Collingwood, reported an increase in membership of 135. Officers were elected as follows: Grand architect, Benjamin W. Hutchinson, of Camden; vice grand architect, William Husted, of Fairton; senior grand architect, Harvey Whitaker, of Millville; grand conductor, George H. Hall, Jr., of Delaware; grand treasurer, William Duncan, of West Collingwood; grand secretary, William Duncan, of West Collingwood; grand treasurer, William Mathias, of Riverside; supreme representatives, Charles E. Greenp, of Riverside, and Harvey Whitaker, of Millville.

Lying in bed with a new-born babe, Mrs. William Cox, 820 Market street, Camden, does not know two of her children died yesterday within a few minutes of each other. They were twenty-three months and four years old, respectively, both boys. Both children were stricken with pneumonia and were sent to a hospital. It was decided not to tell the mother. There are five other children, all young.

Joseph Markness, eight years old, 1008 Budd street, is in Cooper Hospital with a fractured leg. He was run over at Ferry avenue and Ninth street by a truck owned by the Victor Talking Machine Company. It was said at the hospital today that the boy's condition is not serious.

BISHOP BERRY SILENT

Won't Intimate Who Will Be New Methodist Superintendents

Three and possibly four new superintendents in Philadelphia Methodism will be appointed, it is reported, at the closing session of the 135th annual conference which meets next Wednesday morning in the Wharton Memorial Church.

Bishop Berry has returned from Atlantic City and will pass the next six days in making preparations for the conference. The Bishop will give no intimation as to whether the four present superintendents will be reappointed or whether new ones will be named, but it is said that a new factor will enter into the problem and will cause a shake-up among the superintendents.

All the present superintendents have served full terms of six years.

Rob Drug Store of Barrel of Rum

Hyman Garr reported to the police today that his drug store at 1409 North Fifty-ninth street was robbed of a barrel of whisky valued at $300.

THIS IS LAST DAY FOR TAX RETURNS

Report on Income, if Mailed Today, Will Be Honored Without Penalty

$10,000,000 PAID SO FAR

This is the last day for filing income tax returns. All persons who fail to file personally, or who fail to mail their returns before midnight tonight will be subject to heavy penalties.

Under the law all single persons whose net income is $1000 or over, and all married persons whose net income is $2000 or over, must file.

Blakely McCaughey, Internal Revenue Collector for Eastern Pennsylvania, has taken extraordinary precautions to protect both the public and the Government from theft by pick-pockets or hold-up men.

More than eleven thousand persons crowded into the Internal Revenue offices in the Federal Building yesterday, and big crowds are expected today.

Every clerk stationed in the cashier's office to receive funds has been provided with an automatic revolver and a burglar alarm system has been so arranged that even though a hand it may compel a cashier to put up his hands, the cashier could set off the alarm with his foot. This alarm can be sounded from scores of places throughout the office and will bring armed men from all sides.

The office is equipped with a huge vault for the money, although five trips were made to the Federal Reserve Bank yesterday with funds. Money is placed in the vault only after banking hours.

Receipts in the collector's office yesterday were more than $2,220,000 from Philadelphia alone. Almost $10,000,000 has been received from the entire district since March 1.

The office will remain open until midnight. All returns mailed today will be honored, it was announced. The clerks were kept busy until 9 o'clock last night, and in addition to the 11,000 returns filed personally, it was estimated that about 6300 came in by mail.

SISTERS GET ESTATE

Property of John Reynolds is Estimated at $11,000

John Reynolds, former member of the State Legislature, whose will was probated today, left an estate of $11,000 to his two sisters, Margaret H. and Eleanor C. Reynolds.

Other will probated today were those of Margaret B. Cain, 415 North Fortieth street, $11,000; Mary J. Kilpatrick, 1946 South Fifteenth street, $1000; and Edna L. N. Ryan, who died in the Presbyterian Hospital, $10,000.

SIX AUTOS STOLEN

Patrolman Honored

Logan Residents Give Frank Hyres Purse

Patrolman Frank Hyres was publicly commended in the office of Director Cortelyou today when a committee representing residents of Logan presented him with a purse containing a substantial sum in recognition of his service in the district.

The committee was composed of Morris P. Pomeroy, 4531 North Cameron street; George H. Burton, 1423 Bellfield avenue; and J. B. Proza, 4536 North Broad street.

Director Cortelyou said that Hyres' capture of a burglar that beat Mrs. Catherine Lyons in her home at 4238 North Broad street was especially meritorious because the patrolman was unarmed and off duty at the time.
