PHILS AND GRIFFS GRAPPLE IN DIXIE
Meadows Scheduled to Muri Against Washington in First Exhibition Game Today
LEBOURVEAU LEADS OFF

By EDWIN J. FOLLOCK
Leedsburg, Pa., March 16.
THE MEADOWS will do some pitching today, but he may have little to show for it. The Phils and the Washington Senators are together in the first big exhibition game of the season at Cooke Park, but the Griffiths will not pitch. The line-up with many of the regulars missing.
The North Carolina hurler has not been doing much pitching since he has been here. He joined them in Philadelphia after a winter of baseball in Cuba. Lee was already in excellent shape when the training started yesterday, but he has devoted considerable time to fishing. He has been on the hill only two or three times in the last two weeks, but has warmed up often in the well-known bull pen.
Meadows will not pitch the entire game, and he may not start, but according to Kaiser Wilhelm. Jimmy King and Wilbur Hubbell also will see action.
With the exception of the battery, Wilhelm will use the same lineup as he did against the Leedsburg team. Helene or Withersop will be behind the plate.
Peters Is Hurt
Jack Peters may not even put on a uniform today. The big catcher was out of the practice yesterday as the result of being hit over the heart by a pitched ball in Tuesday's contest. He suffered considerable pain Tuesday night and Wednesday, but was improved this morning.
Helene also is in poor condition. He stepped on a ball while he was running for a foul on the other day and turned his ankle. It was not a sprain, but he probably twisted a muscle or a tendon.
Washington's main attraction will be Nick Aronow, who is expected to turn out to see the ball game and watch the antics of the famous comedian.
Roger Peckinpaugh, obtained from the Yankees via the Red Sox, will not play in the game. Lamotte, a Florida boy, will play shortstop. Judge and Shooks will also be observed from the infield. Courtney and Gleason will pitch. The game starts at 3:30 o'clock.

"Bevo" Clinches Job
DeWitt Lebourveau will be the lead-off man for the Phils when they doff their caps to the public at Broad and Huntingdon streets on April 12.
Whether the Sacramento sprinter will be leading the team into the field is a question he must settle himself.
Lebourveau is the logical man to top the batting order for us. Manager Wilhelm explained, "for he is an excellent first man and will be able to travel on the bases once he gets on. He has more natural ability than any other ball player down here and there's no reason why he can't develop into a good outfielder. If he puts his mind down to it he can."
Bevo will play left field again and the old reliable, Cy Williams, will be the center as usual. Carl Walker undoubtedly will get the assignment in right. This combination is no mean outfield. In fact, it doesn't suffer at all when compared with the others in the league.
While Lebourveau, Williams and Walker are playing around in the outfield, Lee King and Russell Wrightstone won't be sitting on the bench with contented smiles. With these athletes can whale the ball. Wrightstone is a more consistent hitter than the former Giant, but when King gets hold of a ball it means extra bases. He takes a terrific cut at the sphere and when he connects the full force of his lanky body is behind the blow. Either Wrightstone or King will be inserted into the line-up if any one of the three outfielders should show any signs of slowing up or falling into a hitting slump.
It is likely that King will be substituted when left-handed pitchers are working. He is a right-handed batter and could supplant any one of the three regular portside hitters.
