CAMDEN TO ASSIST TERMINAL PROJECT

Council Expected to Rush Land Deal So That Reading Can Get Work Started
NEW PASTORS WELCOMED
When the City Council of Camden accepts a strip of land 144 feet in Ferry avenue, running in irregular shape to a width of 120 feet, work on the $2,500,000 terminal and ferryhouse to replace the present temporary structure will be started by the Reading Railway. Council will meet Thursday, March 30, when it is expected the transaction will be completed.
Plings are already being driven at Mechanic street, and it is expected that the structural work will be started by April 1. The railroad company has agreed to vacate certain streets in lieu of the property offered and to aid in the construction of the new station.
Plans were filed with the Building Commission to provide for a two-story structure that will accommodate at least two sets of tracks. There will be provision made for double-deck ferries. It being stated by railway officials that ultimately it is the intention of the company of having summer excursionists to the seashore. It is planned to have the best of modern equipment, with the office on the second floor. Assurance of the terminal this spring has brought a feeling of gratification on the part of Camden officials who have been pushing the project.

New pastors were welcomed in seven Methodist Episcopal churches in Camden yesterday as a result of the changes made by the New Jersey Conference. The Rev. C. V. Conover, formerly of Angleson, preached in Bethel Church; the Rev. E. F. Hinn, Eighth Street; the Rev. R. E. Smith, Fairview; the Rev. George Taylor, Fairview Village; the Rev. Christian Ernst, St. George; the Rev. Albert Allen, Wesley, and the Rev. W. K. Fisher, Wiley.
The Rev. Dr. George H. Hemingway took as the subject of his sermon at the First Presbyterian Church "The Thoroughgoing School." It was the third of a series of sermons on "The Seven Great Ideals of Life." In the First Baptist Church the pulpit was occupied by the Rev. Dr. Haverall Sheppard, of Three Rivers, Conn.
In the Fourth Presbyterian Church "All-Family Day" was observed, and the Rev. W. A. Williams spoke on "A Christian Home." The wife of Bishop Lester Smith, of India, spoke in Broadway Methodist Episcopal Church last night.

Men, women and children in large numbers yesterday afternoon attended the annual Purim play and concert of the Beth-El Sunday School and the Young Ladies Clubs in the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A., 507 Walnut street, Camden. In the past the Young Ladies Clubs, under the auspices of the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A., gave such entertainments alone, but they are now joined by the Beth-El congregation at Parkside.
An explosion damaged the homes of Horace Bates, 629 Linwood street, and Howard Hinchman, 624 Linwood street, Camden, yesterday. According to the firemen, Bates was looking for a leak in a gas-pipe in the cellar, when in the excitement he struck a match. He escaped injury. The services of the firemen were not required.

Injured in an automobile accident a week ago on the White Horse pike, near Camden, Jess Eichelmann, twenty-two years old, of 3435 Girard avenue, Philadelphia, and his nineteen-year-old sister, Ethel, were able to leave Cooper Hospital, Camden, yesterday afternoon. One occupant of the car, a young man, was killed at the time.
An automobile owned by C. W. Gruber, 3191 Malabar road, in the Fairview district of Camden, was found yesterday morning in Gloucester City stripped of tires, headlights, coil box and everything else that could be removed. The car was stolen at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. It was towed to a secluded spot and there the thieves worked for more than an hour removing the tires and parts. They were seen by a neighbor who thought that they had a breakdown.

Fire drove the family of S. Wenes, a dry goods merchant at 829 Elm street, Camden, into the street at 3 o'clock this morning. The fire originated in the basement of the store and spread to the first floor, damaging merchandise to a total of about $1500. Wenes was awakened shortly after the fire began by the smoke and aroused his wife and two children. They were able to escape without difficulty to the street. The fire was put out without difficulty. The building is a two-story brick store and dwelling.

A horse belonging to Peter Poko, of Mount Ephraim, N. J., was killed last night when it ran headlong into an electric trolley on the West Jersey line, at Jefferson and Chilton avenues, Camden. Poko had left his team standing on Chilton avenue for a few moments. The horse took fright, Poko believes, at a passing trolley. It ran away, snatched the wagon as it turned the corner, broke loose from the harness and ran down the tracks. An express from Atlantic City was coming, and the maddened horse dashed straight into the forward coach. The horse was hurled off the track by the impact, and was dead when the train stopped.

After-Dinner Tricks
No. 114—The Fountain Pen
An ordinary pencil is held between the tips of the fingers and thumb. By merely squeezing it drops of water trickle from the pencil.
The secret is a tiny piece of sponge, which is secretly held between the thumb and fingers, prior to taking the pencil. The pencil and sponge are held together as illustrated, and a little squeeze of the sponge produces the marvelous result. The sponge is dropped in the wash.

GHOST IN LANSDOWNE

Girls Coming From Sorority Meeting Say They Saw Mysterious Figure
Lansdowne has a ghost. At least, that was the certified opinion of several young women on their way home from a Mu Delta Chi Sorority meeting.
Mystic rites, followed by ghost stories and tales of the Antigonish ghost, sent the young ladies out into the night in fear and trembling. They went in a body for protection.
As they neared a dark corner of the Borough highway a light shape flitted before them and groans were heard. Add to that the dull glare of a danger lantern on the street, and the apparition was complete. With shrieks the girls raced away.
Skeptics say that a member of the party is responsible, that she crept out the back door of the meeting and arrived at the dark corner before the rest. The waving of a handkerchief and the groans produced the desired result. But those who fled are sticking by their real ghost.

CHURCH WRECKED BY GAS EXPLOSION

Woman With Flashlight Goes to Aid of Two Injured in Elmer, N. J., Blast
When an acetylene explosion wrecked the rear of the Friendship Methodist Episcopal Church near Elmer, N. J., last night, injuring two men and leaving the congregation in darkness, Mrs. Joseph Reeve produced a pocket flashlight and helped the injured.
Frederick Matson, janitor of the church, was the more severely hurt. He was burned when the lighting plant blew up. Edgar Burten, who was standing near the church, was cut by a stone.
The congregation ordinarily numbers more than a hundred, but because of the rain only twelve or fifteen men and women attended the evening service, conducted by the Rev. C. H. DuBois, the pastor.
As Mr. DuBois was finishing his sermon, Matson went to the small structure in the rear from which light is supplied to the church. One account was that he was trying to add calcium to the acetylene tank; another was that he struck a match and that the tiny flame "troughed off" the gas.
The small building was almost demolished and a huge hole was torn in the rear wall. Mr. DuBois was flung forward, but grasped an edge of the pulpit, saving himself from injury. Members of the congregation were terrified for a moment. Mrs. Reeve, wife of a farmer of Friendship, was one of the first to recover self-possession.
She had carried a flashlight to guide her steps over darkened roads to and from the church. She turned on the light and gave it to Carl Kramme, a member of the choir.
Mrs. Reeve, Kramme and others hurried to where Matson lay stunned and burned. Physicians were summoned and the injured janitor was sent to the Bridgeton Hospital. Burten was taken home. His condition is not serious.

"Mr. Kramme was about the most level-headed man there for the moment," said Mrs. Reeve today. "There was no panic, however, and the members of the congregation hurried out in the darkness after I had given my flashlight to the choir singer."

"The pastor was about to finish his sermon when we were started by a terrific roar. The lights went out and we could hear part of the rear wall falling. Someone told me the janitor was trying to put more calcium in the acetylene tank. Others said he had struck a match."

How to Lose Fat
Dr. Royal S. Copeland, M. D., Commissioner of Health, New York says: "There are only two things necessary to take off fat growth: EXERCISE plus FERTILIZATION AND ATTENTION TO DIET. There is no solvent in the World for Fat—except perspiration and it must be from the result of physical activity."
You must exclude from the diet—the Foods which carry Fat-Producing elements.

Armstrong's Linoleum
for Every Floor in the House

You wouldn't know the old bedroom
The new bed and dresser looked "funny" on the old floor. A linoleum floor and a few rugs worked the change

FOUR walls, a floor and ceiling, windows and a door—that is a room. How are you going to "fix it up"?
Begin with the floor. If your idea of modern linoleum is something to tack down in the pantry, then you don't know what a beautiful floor modern linoleum, properly laid, will make.
Tacks have nothing to do with properly laid linoleum. Linoleum should be cemented down firmly over builders' deadening felt. Laid this way there are no unsightly seams or cracks. The design in the picture is a carpet inlaid, but you can buy rich plain colors, Jaspés (two-tones), parquetry inlaid, marble tile inlaid, and distinctive printed patterns.
Such a floor is quiet, warm (Armstrong's Linoleum is made with cork and is a non-conductor of heat), the easiest of all floors to clean, and is really quite inexpensive. It is a permanent floor. You lay your rugs on it.
We have a little booklet, "Decorative Linoleum Floors," containing twenty-four colorplates, showing some of the Jaspés, carpet inlaid, parquetry and marble tile inlaid, etc. This booklet will be sent free on request. You can take it to a store and show the merchant exactly what you want to see. Any store will give you estimates of the cost of Armstrong's Linoleum put down in your home. All Armstrong's Linoleum is guaranteed to give satisfaction.
