WERE you surprised to hear of KathWerine Thompson's engagement to Osbourne Wood? He's a son of General Leonard Wood, you know, and is out in the Philippines, too. Katherine Thompson is a great friend of Louise Wood's, having met her some years ago in war work, and only a few weeks ago she sailed for Manila to pay a visit to Louise. Yesterday she cabled her engagement to Lieutenant Wood to her father and mother, the Henry B.
Thompsons, of Greenville, Del., and seked that they make the announcement. Thompsons, of Greenville, Del., and asked that they make the announcement.

Katherine is a sister of Mrs. Tom Reath, Jr., and of Elinor Thompson, who came out in this city several years ago. Mrs. Reath was Mary Thompson. They are very attractive girls, and Katherine did wonderful work with the American Red Cross 'during the war, and since then has been working with Anne Morgan in France.

It's rather nice to think that she is marrying the son of a man who will live in Philadelphia, and we cannot but hope that she and her husband will frequently visit the city. General Wood will leave the Philippines in the late summer to come here, you know, and assume his duties as provost of the University of Pannsylvania.

Pennsylvania.
The Thompsons live most of the time The Thompsons live most of the time at their place. Brookwood Farm, Greenville, which is about halfway between Wilmington and this city. The three girls came out here and always came up for all the parties. They are awfully well liked. Katherine did not cable her plans, so whether she will be married in Manila or wait till her return home is not known. As Lieutenant Wood is an army man, it seems likely they will be married there, as it would be difficult for him to get a long-enough leave to come here for the ceremony.

THINK the silk hats which are being worn between seasons are quite good looking. I saw Mrs. J. Wilmer Biddle on Sunday wearing a large model of a sort of soft gray blue taffets, self-trimmed. Her coat was of dark fur and she looked stunning. She was Mrs. Douglas Gordon, of Baltimore, and married Mr. Biddle last fall. Her daughter, Virginia Gordon, came out here this season and in Baltimore,

Mrs. Biddle's stepdaughter, Harriet Biddle, was with her, wearing a top coat of squirrel fur and a medium sized hat of jade green satin, trimmed with an ostrich feather, which came down over the brim of the hat at one side.

AM glad to hear that Alva Sergeant is going to take part in "Why Not 1922." I missed her dancing at the Charity Ball and the "Marriage Tax" very much. She certainly can shake a light foot, can she not? And she is so graceful and slender and so original. Alva and her mother, Mrs. George Sergeant, went to Europe last spring and returned a few weeks ago.

THOSE of us who knew Helen Koues when she lived here some years ago are interested in the announcement of her engagement to Laurie Bodine. Miss Koues is the daughter of the late George Ellsworth Koues, of New York. She is on the staff of a woman's magazine in New York and was formerly a member of the Ladies' Home Journal staff here. Mr. Bodine is a member of the Rittenhouse, Radnor Hunt and Philadelphia Country Clubs. Philadelphia Country Clubs.

DOUBT if you will believe me, but I heard it myself just the other day in the movies. They were showing a picture of a pheasant's nest and just before the birds themselves were put on the screen the line was flashed:
"The male bird is distinguished for his end at Atlantic City.

Suddenly I heard a small boy of eight or nine, who was sitting back of me, speak up and say: "Mamma, what do they call it a male bird for, does it carry the letters?"

NANCY WYNNE.

Piquetine, Cordine, Tricot and Siltex are the media that Parisian Couturiers have chosen for the expression of their finest conceptions of the mode. Spring and summer furs, metal belts and embroidered motifs are introduced on these coats that emphasize the lowered waistline and the slender silhouette.

RUGGED TEXTURES In Travel Capes and Top Coals 25.00 to 125.00

Bonwit Teller & Co. has exercised the utmost skill in the development of the Cape and Coat for Travel and Outdoor activities, zealously avoiding the mediocre, employing textures of swagger ruggedness such as Sonnetta, Imported, Checked and Heather Tweeds, Ursine and hand-woven homespuns.
